Village hopes to expand cemetery grounds

Madoc Village Council will be putting an offer on 3.5 acres of land to the south of Lakeview Cemetery this week if they receive approval from Madoc Township. Village plans are to expand Lakeview Cemetery.

The land, owned by Canada Talc Ltd., has already been approved as a suitable location by the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations, reported Clerk Doug Parks at the May 29 Village Council meeting. Reeve Terry Pigden said the owners of the land have agreed to level the rocky soil at the site, remove any boulders and put top soil on as part of the deal. The Hastings and Prince Edward Counties' Health Unit has also approved the site as a cemetery.

Once the village has gone through the necessary steps of purchase, Council will have to decide whether cement boxes will be used in the hole before caskets are put in, or whether a hole in soil will be sufficient. Clerk Parks said that if council decides to use cement boxes, then the village must supply them for purchase.

Following purchase, a person from the Ministry of Community and Social Services will come and draw the plots out for the village.

Says Council:

'Dissolve MRCA executive'

Madoc Village Council is asking Moira River Conservation Authority (MRCA) watershed municipalities to support dissolving of the executive and holding full authority meetings. The motion carried by the council during their May 29 meeting asks municipalities to show their support during the full authority meeting to be held June 7.

Madoc Council backs up Deputy Reeve Tom Barton, village representative on MRCA, who feels many municipalities do not have adequate representation on the MRCA because their representatives do not sit on the Executive Committee. He would like to see the MRCA move to a full authority meeting like the one now being used for the Lower Trent Conservation Authority.

At a meeting of MRCA watershed municipality reeves in Belleville recently, they all supported by motion, the concept of full authority meetings, and the disbanding of the executive.

Office to have new hours

As of Monday, June 11, the Madoc Review office will be closed all day Mondays and Tuesdays, but will remain open all day Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays.

For anyone interested in making appointments or inquiring about advertising, please call the office during business hours at 613-473-4476 or 473-4700. Thank you.

Municipalities look for dump site

Madoc Village Reeve Terry Pigden estimates that there is about four years of use left at the Madoc Disposal Site, and for that reason the surrounding municipalities are looking for another site. Pigden says the village, Madoc Township, Huntingdon Township and Elzevir Township, who are all shaping the present site, have an interest in a piece of land already, but have not had it checked for suitability.

Pigden says the first thing they have to do is hire a consultant firm that will look for potential sites and make recommendations. Before a site is chosen for waste disposal, public hearings must be held and the Ministry of Environment must support the choice.

The Madoc waste disposal site has been in use for approximately 15 years, and lately council has had suspicions that people from outside areas have been dumping there.

The village recently hired a company named Geo Analysis to drill test wells at the present waste disposal site to determine whether leachate was migrating dangerously. The 50 page report tabled at a council meeting about three months ago showed that there was no dangerous movement toward the Supi Farms property and well located east of the disposal site.

Reeve Pigden says at a special meeting of the area Reeves held last month, they agreed there was a need for a new waste disposal site - one that would be in use for a longer period of time.

"We hope that the next one will last 30 to 40 years," says Pigden.

Bicentennial tree in Huntingdon

A white pine tree donated by the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority (LTRCA) was planted as a memorial to the bicentennial last Wednesday behind Huntingdon Township office. Russell Sills, former chairman of the authority and reeve of the township from 1968 to 1972, and Councillor Ken Yarrow assisted authority superintendent Wally Twigg plant the healthy tree. Yarrow is also a representative for Huntingdon on the LTRCA, and Sills is now Ontario representative for the authority.

The LTRCA acquired a number of landscape quality bicentennial white pine trees from the Ministry of Natural Resources for special plantings. The Eastern White Pine (Pinus strobus) has been named Ontario's tree, stated an LTRCA press release.

To commemorate and celebrate Ontario's Bicentennial, the authority has offered to plant one of these trees in each watershed municipality, the release stated.

The white pine is considered to be the tallest conifer in Eastern Canada. It commonly reaches heights of 100 feet and diameters of three feet. The needles of the white pine are 3/4 to 5 inches long, in groups of five. The Eastern See Pines page 11.

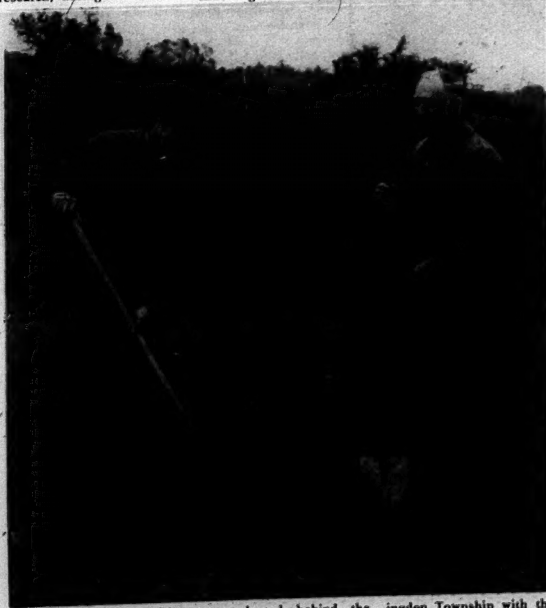

On Saturday, June 2, 25 youngsters from the Madoc area raised about $600 in sponsors for cancer research, during a bike-a-thon held at Madoc and District Recreation Centre. St. Jude's Hospital for Sick Children sponsored the "Ride Against Childhood Cancer". The maximum amount of laps children could do was 150 (or 50 kilometers). Seen in the picture are riders (left to

tree planted behind the township office last Wednesday. The LTRCA have been given trees to plant as memorials in all municipalities in the watershed. Yarrow is a township representative on the LTRCA which shares Huntington Township with the Moira River Conservation Authority (MRCA). Also helping to plant the tree was LTRCA superintendent Wally Twigg and authority information officer Lucille Dorken.

At the Library

By BARB CHAPPELLE

Recent recommendations of the Ontario Public Library System Consultation Paper indicate that sweeping changes are imminent in the Ontario Public Libraries Act. Some changes have already passed in the Ontario Legislature. Still before the Legislature is the question of non-operating library boards.

In our local situation the surrounding townships that are served by the library are called the non-operating library boards, while Madoc is the host library board. Until now, the provincial government has paid a grant to all boards, whether or not municipal support has occurred in the form of a per capita levy or a user fee. The grants are transferred to the host library board and become a source of operating revenue.

One of the recommendations of the consultation paper is that in 1984/85 there will be no grants issued unless there is financial support from the municipalities. There are three options that the consultation paper outlines for the non-operating boards:

- 1) Arrange for library service with a neighboring public library board on a contractual basis.
- 2) Form a union library with several jurisdictions in the area, in which case all members of the union library are responsible for the upkeep of the library.

- 3) Establish a county library service.

4) A delegation from the library board has travelled to the three township councils of the non-operating boards to begin discussions along the lines of the first option. Suddenly, the operation of the library has become an active issue with a higher profile! Everyone involved has been attempting to better understand what these changes will mean to library services in our community. Our desire is not only to keep what has been developed through many, many years of dedicated work, but to enhance our services even more. Through these continuing discussions, all parties involved will be committed to arriving at the best possible solution for the community.

Father's Day is not far away. Children are invited to attend a Craft-Day on June 16 to make something special for their dad. It is necessary to sign up in advance at the library for this activity as there is limited space available. A calendar of events is posted in the library to help remind you of programs. Take a look! You may find just what you've been looking for!

Last Friday was a perfect day for youngsters from the community to get together at the Madoc Public Library and dig over the garden out front and put in new flowers. Most of the students participating in the volunteer work go to school at Madoc Public School. Seen in the picture are the

Township walk-a-thon coming

The township minor ball walkathon will be held on June 9, starting at 10 a.m. from township minor ball in the township. The previous two fundraising efforts involved adult members of the community, but this effort will involve the minor members of the area. This is their way of raising funds to help cover expenses.

The walkathon will leave township diamond at 10 a.m., proceed north on highway 62 to Keller's Bridge Road, then west to Bailey's corner; south to Hemite Road; east to Highway 62, and then north to ball park. If you are driving on this route on Saturday, watch for walkers and be sure to give them your encouragement.

Village donates $50 for potential Olympic swimmer

After reading a letter from Sidney Township, Madoc Village Council decided last week to donate $50 to a trust fund for Reema Abdo, a potential Canadian Olympic swimmer.

swimming, so Sidney Township Council has agreed to raise $5,000.

"Reema's lap times suggest that she indeed is a prime candidate for a medal," stated the letter.

The trust fund for Reema Abdo was established by the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association and will cover travel and training expenses.

Painting can be lots of fun, especially if it is a wee bit different. Heather Clark, 9, of Madoc, found this out in trying string painting at the Opportunities for Youth arts and crafts class in Madoc Public School.

Trinity United Church, Madoc, was the scene of a lovely wedding on Saturday, July 6 at 4 p.m., when Audrey Dianne Perrie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benedict Thiele, 56 Horace Ave., Madoc, and Gordon Roy Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Miller, RR 1, Madoc, were united in marriage in a double-ring ceremony. Rev. D.W. Heard officiated.

Nine local girls held a mini-carnival to fight Muscular Dystrophy and related diseases at Madoc Public School Saturday. The girls got their idea for staging the event while watching TV personality Jerry Lewis who stages an annual telethon to fight the disease.

Responsible for organizing the carnival were Jill Taylor and Brenda Hyde. They were assisted by Kim Lowry, Lori Love, Rhonda Johnston, Wendy Hudson, Anna Bossio, Janet Bossio and Madeline Matacheskie.

Rod Webb, M.P. Hastings-Frontenac, will be one of the members of parliament to have the opportunity to visit NORAD Headquarters, Colorado Springs, U.S.A., and also the SAGE installations at North Bay to see these important areas of the North American Air Defense System.

The visit and briefings is sponsored by the Department of National Defense.

A group of anglers fishing for rainbow trout last week in a lake just north of the Mazinaw caught a four pound rainbow trout. The lucky angler was most delighted with his catch at first, but later when he proceeded to dress the fish for the frying pan was indeed startled when his knife against a squawking bait against a hard object inside the fish. On closer examination the angler found a ten inch, three cornered file in the fish's stomach. Further investigation revealed that the file belonged to a cottager on the shore who had lost the file overboard of his boat previously.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

May 27, 1954 -- Mr. Fred Thompson, of La Riviere, Manitoba, who left this district 34 years ago to make his home in the west, spent the past two months in Ontario and visited relatives in Madoc Township. Besides Madoc Township, Mr. Thompson spent some time in Hamilton, Toronto and Oshawa and visited Niagara Falls for the first time, where he toured Ontario's new hydro project.

In failing health for the past three years, Clarence Theodore Kincaid, Belleville, died in the Kingston General Hospital.

A former missionary to China for the Standard Church for many years, Miss Frances Matilda (Tillie) Danford died at her residence in Madoc, Tuesday evening.

After an illness of some six weeks duration, there passed to his eternal rest in Bancroft Red Cross Hospital, on the morning of Friday, May 21, a former resident of Madoc Township, in the person of Edward Eugene Diamond.

Suffering a stroke four weeks ago at the home of her son, Allan, in Queensboro, Mrs. Florence Alberta Thompson, widow of a former warden of Hastings, Charles Thompson, died at the Alexander Nursing Home, Queensboro, on Monday afternoon, May 24, 1954.

Members of the Madoc Kiwanians and their ladies enjoyed a pleasant evening last Friday when a ladies' night was held in Blue's dining room. The program included several vocal numbers by Mrs. Taylor Redden, numbers by Len Fozard, amateur magician from Belleville, a presentation of lucky number prizes and community singing.

On the eve of Thursday, May 31, the Madoc Public School came alive when children of all grades performed a talent show that drew a full house. In this picture, Denny and Cathy Wallace are seen singing a "country" song.

Sexual abuse film reviewed at Unit

By JAMES FRIEL

Families are encouraged to maintain a "no secrets" rule in the home, said Seonida, a crisis councillor at the Kingston Sexual Assault Crisis Center. It is unfortunate to make children wary of those they trust, she continued, but in 80 percent of cases, children are assaulted by people they know, 50 percent by fathers or stepfathers.

The comments were made during a sexual abuse workshop previewing a video production designed to inform children of what constitutes sexual assault. The May 28 workshop, arranged by the Prince Edward and Hastings County Health Unit, was attended by a group of about 30 social workers and concerned citizens.

The production joins available material intended to educate children on the nature of sexual abuse with specific examples of violations. The tape also emphasizes the "private bodies" concept to sensitize children to their physical rights.

Puppets are used to demonstrate the most common situations in which sexual assault occurs. Children are told at the end of the film to report to a trusted adult anyone trying to touch their private bodies, being forced to touch some other person's or asked to do anything which makes them feel uncomfortable.

When shown to children, discussions both before and after are advised to clear up questions and uncertainties. A teacher's guide is included with the tape. Seonida (her last name is unavailable to preserve her anonymity as a crisis councillor) said the video is intended to teach children the warning signs preceding possible abuse.

There are various signs children must learn to recognize circumstances conducive to assault. They include teaching children to be aware of "secrets, surprises and presents."

If a child is placed in a situation such as those illustrated in the film, firm resistance usually fends off a potential offender. Most sexual abuse offenders look for easy targets and stop overtures if their "feelings" are rejected.

If abuse should happen, children are encouraged to go to a trusted adult to report. If that adult does not believe the child, the child should continue to confide in trusted adults until one helps.

Adults confided in by the assaulted child should not show any anger, but respond calmly and attempt to discover details. The victim may feel the anger directed against him or her.

A child may be reluctant to reveal details. However, details are needed to determine whether to go to the Children's Aid Society or the child's mother with suspicions. There is implied acceptance of the assault when a mother refuses to acknowledge sexual abuse in the home.

The adult should assume the child is telling the truth until there is overwhelming evidence of the alleged offender's innocence. Children almost never make up stories of sexual assault, because the specific sexual details are unknown to them, said the councillor.

A child's behaviour can hold vague clues of sexual assault for parents if the child does not reveal abusive incidents. If the fondness a child feels for a person suddenly turns to dislike, a radical change in behaviour occurs including appetite, nightmares and fear of being alone, difficulty with friends or a sudden rejection of one parent are evidenced, there is a possibility of sexual assault.

More specific clues include hints about sexual activity, a great fear of males (98 percent of sexual abuse cases have, male offenders), inappropriate sexual knowledge, play containing sexual activities, and seductive acting to gain attention.

Any suspected incidence of the sexual assault of children must be reported to the Children's Aid Society by law. Children's Aid Society will investigate the complaint and verify the assault. If there is not sufficient evidence for a conviction, but enough suspicion of the attack(s), the organization will include the suspect in their abuse registry.

Community Corrections annual meet

Youth Offenders' Act explained

By JAMES FRIEL

The Young Offender's Act will deal with youths "in a manner to make them know they've been before the court," said John Nixon, Deputy Crown Attorney in Belleville.

Nixon was speaking to a group attending the Madoc area annual Ministry of Corrections dinner at St. John's Anglican Church Hall in Madoc, May 29. The group attending, the largest yet, also watched a video tape outlining the basics of the new act.

The attorney said that though some may think the new legislation is designed to give young offenders "soft touch" penalties, "the ministry feels juveniles will be more responsible for their actions. They will be dealt with differently, not easier."

There have been few problems, according to Nixon, deputy crown attorney for two and a half years. Crown attorneys received courses in the act before the date of enactment, and judges have been "very fair" in explaining the act to those defence lawyers not yet fully versed in the federal legislation.

The new act was implemented March 31, 1984, one day earlier than the original April 1 target. It currently covers the 12 to 16 year age group with provisions to be developed to expand the level to 18 years. A positive aspect of the prospective expansion of the new legislation, according to Nixon, is that young offenders will not be sharing cells or correctional centers with older, more experienced criminals.

The legislation contains measures for judges to deliver dispositions -- the juvenile court equivalent of a sentence -- of up to three years. Nixon estimated the three years to be comparable to five to eight years in an adult court decision because, unless a special request is made, the offender will complete the full three years dictated. There are not any automatic reducing of sentences as there are in the adult system.

Under extreme circumstances, a series of armed robberies for example, youths can be transferred to adult court for trial, though there are few of these shifts. An offender is often treated lightly on a first offence. A second offence may bring probation, but the third conviction in court usually results in a disposition with time and community work.

Young offenders do time in group homes, an "easy See Diversion page 8."

Council holds contractor's payment until meeting held

At the May 29 Madoc Village Council meeting, council decided to hold off on paying Richard Jones Contractors $2,800 for digging a trench at Madoc Waste Disposal site until they have a special meeting with the company. Up until the last trench, Jones had been charging $800 for digging a single trench.

Village Reeve Terry Pigden said the contractor originally tendered at $800 for the first trench, and "they stayed there until this one".

"He did not receive authority from the village to change the outstanding agreement," said Reeve Pigden. "If we're going to get bills like that, we're going to have to re-tender."

Councillor Jim Watson said that they have paid more than enough and "clean-up hasn't taken place".

Grant Madoc Village Council Community Corrections a total of $150 for the 1984 year.

Arena Board

It was reported at the May 29 council meeting, that Ken Adams, Madoc, has been contracted to insulate the south wall of the Madoc and District Recreation Centre at a cost of $5,100. Burt Hennigar of Kingston will be installing a new condenser to back up the one there now.

Both measures have been taken to assist with putting ice in early this year.

The Recreation Centre Board are having a special meeting June 12 to interview the best prospects for new arena manager. As of this spring, Bill Lahey retires from the job.

It was reported by Huntingdon Township Councillor Ken Yarrow recently that there were nine or 10 applicants for the job. By about 9:30 p.m. on June 12, the board should know who will fill the position.

Glen Nickle nominated for medal

Glen Nickle, a lifelong resident of Madoc has been nominated by Madoc Village Council to receive a Bicentennial Medal.

The council decided to nominate Nickle for the provincial medal for his volunteerism and community service over the years at their regular meeting, May 29.

The motion approved by

Red Cross Safety

It is at this time of year when the lakes and rivers look so appealing, especially to your young ones. Let's make sure they're conscious of safety rules before you let them go out on their own. If you would like more information on Water Safety/Small Craft Safety, get in touch with your local Red Cross Branch at 745-8222. Through Red Cross, everyone can learn to play it safe both in and around the water.

council read: "That the village council nominate Glen Nickle for the Provincial Bicentennial Medal in recognition of a lifetime dedicated to minor sports, support of community service groups and the community at large."

The provincial government will be giving the bicentennial awards at designated locations in Ontario some time this fall.

Sweeper

At the May 29 Village Council meeting, council discussed the possibility of purchasing a backhoe, bucket and street sweeper attachment with Foreman

Percy Crawford and decided to check with the Ministry of Transportation and Communications to see if there is a subsidy available.

Crawford said the sweeper attachment would save time and labor expense because it would pick the dust and grit up if used properly.

Last Wednesday, 24 students from Madoc Township School went to O'Hara Mill Conservation Authority to explore the nature trails, study the history of the buildings and grounds and play various games. The Review managed to catch a few youngsters in flight and load them on a picnic table. From left to right (front) are: Chastity Freeburn, David Warren, Michael Hofzyer; (back) Cara Donato, Stacie Johnson, David

District Figure Skating Club annual

By KAREN BAILEY

An excellent number of interested parents attended the May 7 annual meeting of the Madoc and District Figure Skating Club. President Leslie Chapman opened the meeting by introducing our area representative, Mrs. Grace Post from Peterborough.

A question and answer period was held for approximately one hour, followed by a short coffee break and then the rest of the meeting took place.

First on the agenda was fund raising. Our Dance Committee informed the group that plans were well under way for our bicentennial dance to be held on Saturday, June 23, with music by "Thurlow". It will be held at the Madoc and District Recreation Centre. The dance is sponsored jointly by the Madoc Old-timers and the skating club. There will be prizes for best dressed couple in the bicentennial theme. Tickets sold in advance will be priced lower than those sold at the door. There will also be a lunch served during the event.

The skating club is also working with the Madoc Minor Hockey and the MTM Junior C Hurricanes Hockey Club to sponsor a truck and tractor pull to be held at the Madoc Fairgrounds on July 29. The skating club will be responsible for helping man the canteen. Joann Smith is doing our posters.

We then discussed last year's skating program to determine anything needed to adjustments accordingly.

Following the discussion, an election of officers was held and the following were elected for the 1984-85 season: President Leslie Chapman; Vice-President Elaine Johnston; Secretary Karen Bailey; Clerk-Treasurer Joan Wiggins; Accounting Betty Jewell. The Board of Directors are: Peggy Johnston, Gord Johnston and Sandra McNeil.

The committee chairmen will be selected at our next meeting, which will be held Monday, June 11, 7:30 p.m. at Madoc and District Recreation Centre.

TOPS Club News

By JEAN ASSELSTINE

There are now 25 TOPS and two KOPS members in Madoc. If you are curious what TOPS and KOPS stands for, it is Take Off Pounds Sensibly and when the magic day arrives that you get to goal weight, you become a KOPS which means Keep Off Pounds Sensibly.

No fad diets or quick cures in our club, the key word is "Sensibly." On May 23rd we held a bridal shower for Teresa Sire who is to be married on July 21st. On Jun 6, we are looking forward to meeting with our Area Captain, Connie Sutherland from Bancroft, when we will be discussing our Area Rally Day in October, to be held this year in Bancroft. The Area Rally Day is the most inspirational day of the year for TOPS members, when we meet with our friends from other cities and towns in our area. On this day members are honored in many different categories for their weight reduction, culminating with the crowning of the King and Queen, the man and woman who has lost the greatest number of pounds during the year.

TOPS meets in the firehall on Wednesdays, from 6:45 until 8:30.

The Corporation Of The Township Of Madoc

BY-LAW NO. 630-84

Notice of the passing of a by-law to designate property in the Township of Madoc to be of historic or architectural value or interest pursuant to the Ontario Heritage Act.

The Council of the Corporation of the Township of Madoc hereby gives notice that By-Law Number 630-84 being a by-law to designate 5 buildings on Part of Lot 6, Concession 3, Township of Madoc to be of historic or architectural interest pursuant to the Ontario Heritage Act, 1980, was passed by Township Council on May 7, 1984. The property on which the buildings are located is more properly described as follows:

All and singular that certain parcel or tract of land and premises, situate, lying and being in the Township of Madoc, in the County of Hastings and being composed of part of Lot 6, in the Third Concession of the said Township of Madoc, more particularly described as follows:

Commencing at a point distance two hundred and eight-five feet measured on a course of north ten degrees sixteen minutes west from a point in the southerly limit of said Lot 6 distance six hundred and ninety-three feet measured westerly therefrom from the south east angle thereof; thence north ten degrees sixteen minutes west two hundred and seven feet; thence south eighty-eight degrees eleven minutes west one hundred and twenty feet; thence south one degree fifty-three minutes east one hundred and eighty-one and five-tenths feet; thence south eighty-three degrees six minutes east one hundred and fifty-two feet more or less to the place of beginning.

This property is described under Instrument 97299 in the Registry Division of the County of Hastings.

These buildings are erected on the site of the first white settlers homestead in the Township of Madoc and are typical of settlement buildings of this area built in the mid-nineteenth century. The Mill itself is of unique design and is perhaps the only one of its type found in Ontario.

Diversion projects for offenders to be developed

 going system," according to Nixson. The youth continues schooling and is under strict supervision. More trouble while at the group home can land the offender in a detention center.

Following the incident, any records kept such as briefs, photographs or fingerprints must be destroyed in five years. If the records are kept beyond that limit, an offense has been committed.

Diversion projects, intended to help young offenders avoid prosecution by allowing enrollment in rehabilitation programs, have yet to be established. The lieutenant governor in council is responsible for the programs, but none are known to be designated, revealed the attorney.

"The main, if not the only problem," comes from the legislation's omission of requiring students to attend school until legally eligible to quit.

In thanking Nixson for his time, Reverend Paul Kompass noted his interpretation of the new legislation is that the law had been updated in recognition of adolescence, instead of the former arbitrary juvenile and adult court divisions.

As of May 12, O'Hara Mill historic site in Madoc Township has been open and busy. Again this year, students have been hired to take care of the grounds and take tours through the historic buildings and grounds. The program manager this year is Jim Kay of Cooper [center], who is a student at Loyalist College in the social services program. The technicians working at the site are Parti Dunford of Madoc (left) and Rosemary Miller of Stirling (right). Parti is also a student at Loyalist taking social services and Rosemary attends Sir Wilfred Laurier University in Waterloo where she takes Business Administration.

Connie and Duke Pringle from Belleville spent Thursday with Frank and Barb Pringle.

Pat Bailey has returned home after a couple of days in St. Joseph's Hospital in Peterborough.

Our fire call lines were busy after lightning struck a machine shed at the home of Gerald Graham. Madoc Township fire trucks quickly responded, aided by neighbors and were able to keep the blaze confined to that building.

Five ladies from Cooper-Remington Women's Institute enjoyed the district annual meeting at New Carlisle on Tuesday.

Fred and Jean Bailey visited with Ross and Barb Bailey in Arnprior on the weekend.

Mrs. Henry Whiteman and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Whiteman called on Marguerite Stire on Wednesday.

Brenda Conley and baby daughter spent a week with the Stires so Joe and Marguerite could get acquainted with their new granddaughter Rebecca Christina Conley.

The Cooper Carnival Players entertained the Tweed and district folk with their version of "The Showboat" in the Tweed Playhouse on Thursday night. Interlocktor. Gord Lennox kept the show almost under control, but Bones (Don Bailey) and Tambo played by Bob McNeil provided the audience with many unexpected chuckles. Solos by John Beer, Lorne Hagerman, along with Bob and Don, who joined forces for some spiritual quartettes were well received. Theresa Stire and Vicki Lennox delighted the audience with their renditions of the sacred music of the southland.

During intermission, the audience were able to take part in the production, when Kim and Lisa Rollins sang "Tomorrow", then led in a sing-song.

Pat, Tim and Margie Bailey also entertained during the intermission with The Prescher and the Bear and led the audience singing Volderie - and yes little Margie is just three years old.

Tweed provided a real treat when their own little girls, Megan Harris and Kimberly Spencer, played three numbers on their violins accompanied by Megan's father John Harris on guitar.

Thanks to Gord Pigen and Cable Vision, many Madoc people were at the show. The people from the country appreciate the coverage we get even though we cannot have cable TV here.

Some beings like it hot

By ARLIN HACKMAN

Stretching out and soaking up the summer sun has to be one of life's more pleasant activities. Especially in a country with eight months of winter. Well it seems like eight months then I woke today to a thermometer chilling at nine degrees.

There probably is no other animal that takes sunbathing so seriously as to risk skin cancer the way we do. But turtles and butterflies come close. And they have more urgent reasons for doing so. In fact their survival often depends on it.

Turtles, for example, being cold blooded animals, have to get a lot of work done in our short summer. Well, you say, then they shouldn't be loitering about should they. Wrong. In fact, by stretching itself out on a log to catch the maximum sun possible, a turtle can achieve a body temperature five degrees warmer than the air around it. And the warmer it gets, the faster its body chemistry works, speeding up digestion, making it a more vigorous hunter when it slips black into the water and, most important, prompting faster egg development within females which gives young turtles an earlier start in a harsh climate.

For butterflies, the benefits of basking are more immediate. They simply can't take off in flight unless their body is 27 degrees or higher. That's even hotter than many summer days, and yet butterflies are a common sight this time of year. Again, the secret is that by sitting with its wings spread to catch the greatest sunlight, a butterfly can dramatically raise its internal temperature within a matter of minutes. Because it cools during flight, a butterfly will make frequent stops to sunbathe on cooler days.

White Pine played an important part in our history - ever since the first explorers realized the value of Ontario's forests. Today, the white pine is still economically important for the valuable softwood lumber it produces, the release explained.

The LTRCA has been actively promoting a reforestation program in the watershed since 1926. This spring, apart from the special bicentennial plantings the authority expects to plant about 100,000 trees.

summer too. Only they don't seem to want or need the same amount of "down time" slowly roasting in the sun.

Each year, the Federation of Ontario Naturalists organizes a Young Naturalists Camp for young people aged 10 to 14 years. It offers field trips, birding, geology, nature art, botany, photography and much more in the realm of nature education. This year's camp is from July 2 to 6 near Dorset, Ontario.

Havelock Midgets, new league team heads pack

The Havelock Men's Recreational Ball League 1984 season is now under way with a new member of the team league as leading standings as of May 24. The Havelock Midgets have jumped into an early lead with three successive victories for six points. Tied for second are 3M and Indusmin with two victories for four points while Nordic Cresting is in third with 2 points on the strength of one win. Campbellford and Trent River have yet to earn their first victories.

A meeting to elect the 1984 officers was held earlier with Glen Acorn elected as president. Don Mathews elected as recording secretary and John Hudson named treasurer. The rest of the executive is made up of a member of each team. Nordic Cresting is represented by Terry Patterson, Indusmin is represented by Jack Sargent, Rick Ellis represents Campbellford, Ken Reid represents Trent River, the Havelock Midgets are represented by Greg Cole and 3M is represented by Bill Buchanan.

Regular league play has double headers on Sundays, Tuesdays and Thursdays at 7 p.m. and 8:30 p.m.

League play began on Tuesday, May 22, when Indusmin defeated Campbellford 8-5. The winning pitcher was John Currie. That same night, the Havelock Midgets got their season off on the right foot by defeating 3M 7-2. Craig Smith was the winning pitcher.

On Thursday, May 24,

Nordic Cresting downed Trent River 5-0 with Glen Acorn getting the win. In the 8:30 game, 3M hammered Campbellford 11-4. Kevin Morley notched the win.

On May 27, Trent River was defeated 5-4 by the Havelock Midgets with Bill Carl getting the victory. In the second game, Indusmin shutout Nordic Cresting 3-0 for Rod Levesque's first win of the season.

On May 31, the Havelock Midgets extended their winning streak to three games in a come-from-behind win against Campbellford. Campbellford took an early 2-0 lead in their half of the first inning, but the Midgets came back with a run of their own in their half of the inning.

For the next few innings, the teams played scoreless ball but the Midgets finally put it together to down Campbellford 12-3 in a late inning surge. Bill Carl got the win for the Midgets.

In the second game of the night 3M trounced Trent River 9-2 with Bob Buchanan receiving the win.

On Tuesday of this week (June 5) Indusmin will meet 3M at 7 p.m. while Campbellford and Trent River meet at 8:30 p.m.

Thursday's match-ups have Nordic Cresting going against the undefeated Midgets at 7 p.m. while Indusmin challenges Camp-belford at 8:30 p.m.

Sunday, June 10, 3M will meet the Midgets at 7 p.m. and Trent River will go up against Nordic Cresting at 8:30 p.m.

Rice Lake 3 pitch has surprises

The Rice Lake Three Pitch Championship got underway last weekend under clear skies in Hastings and Roseneath. Tournament organizer Don Hawks described the first two days of action as "good ball with some surprises".

"A number of the strong teams at least some that were expected to be strong lost to some average teams. So, I am very pleased with the opening rounds", said Hawks.

The tournament started with 26 teams and played down to eight over the weekend. The A and B champions from each day advanced to the finals this Saturday in Hastings. Hiawatha took the B championship on Saturday in Roseneath behind Scarborough Amex in a six team mini-round. While in Hastings Birdsall Beach surprised many by taking the A position in Hastings and advanced to the final along with Cobourg Westend.

On Sunday the eight team tourney was played, in Roseneath with Alderville taking the top spot and Coyle's Carpentry placing second. In Hastings Rick Fife Stables advanced by winning the A championship with the Up Your Hill Gang placing second.

All eight teams, now advance to the final this Saturday in Hastings. "Everyone starts even again on Saturday and in three pitch anything can happen," said Hawks.

"I expect some exciting and fun ball on Saturday. In three pitch one good inning or one bad one can be the difference, so every team has a real chance to take the tournament," he continued.

Madoc Peewees win two

Monday, May 21, in Tweed, the Madoc Peewees ran rough shod over Tweed Peewees 22-3.

Tweed managed only one safe hit off Madoc pitcher Steve Bancroft, who fanned 10 batters. Alan Danford and Craig Miller each had perfect 5 for 3 at bat for Madoc.

Playing host to Eldorado the Madoc Peewees won a tight one 10-8 on a big comeback by the Eldorado club on Wednesday, May 30. Mike Kehoe led Madoc hitters with a 2 for 3 at the plate. Tom Deline earned two RBIs for Madoc with a singing single on inning two. Mark McQuigge, Mark Freeborn, and Blaine Burnside each earned solid RBIs on hard hits for Eldorado.

Former Stirling hockey player drafted by Sudbury A team

Marty Goeree, 17, was drafted in the 10th round by the Sudbury Wolves (196th overall). Marty played for Kingston Voyageurs Jr. B. Hockey Club 83-84, and for the Minor Hockey, Stirling, from 1976-1983. He would like to acknowledge the help of the late Ted Dobson in furthering his hockey skills, as well as Cecil Solmes and Stirling Minor Hockey.

The Rice Lake Three Pitch Tournament drew 26 teams for two days of baseball last weekend in Hastings and Roseneath. Eight emerged from the competition and play, for the championship this Saturday in Hastings. Above some of the action from last Sunday.

Lakefield Soccer

Determination big factor in Mosquito 4-1 win

BY MARG HILL

Determination is a factor in any game but especially when the elements are as much of a challenge as the opponent. Such was the experience of Lakefield's Minor Mosquitoes soccer team, May 28, as they soared by the Ravens 4 to 1. Soggy shoes and dripping faces characterized most of the second half until the game was called. Kudos goes out from coach Ron Honig to all the parents who drove players to the game and sat through the shower to watch the play. MVP: Brad Collyer. Goalie: Eric Honig.

The May 30 Minor Mosquito game against the Oilers had a different outcome. Whenever a goalie is listed as the most valuable player, it's a sure bet that he made some great saves and spared the team a huge embarrassment. Eric Honig is the hero in this case. Not only was it a rough game for Lakefield, the Mosquitoes played two members short while the Oilers had plenty of relief.

Final score 1-0. Manning this year's Minor Mosquito team is Jason Bond, Ian Reid (temporarily sidelined with a broken collarbone), Steven Gagne, Eric Honig, John Anderson, Andy Wilson, Mark Hinan, Aaron Bellamy, Derek Wellman, Trevor Lee, Brad Collyer, Chad Lawrence and Justin Knott.

Other results: Tuesday, May 29 Lakefield Major Mosquitoes vs. Astronauts cancelled. Lakefield Bantams vs. Jeff Purvey's cancelled. Both teams showed but not the referee.

Wednesday, May 30 Lakefield PeeWees 1, All Metal Weldings 5. MVP: Shaun Priker, Goalie: Neil Davison.

Thursday, May 31 Lakefield Bantams 1, Louis 0. MVP: Rob Hollier. Goalies: Keith Myles, Phil Ferreri.

Again this year, Lakefield players will be tested in the Canadian Soccer Association's Skill Award Program. Bronze, silver and gold levels of achievement will be awarded for these categories: juggling, heading, fitness, shuttle run, dribbling and passing and shooting. As in Canada Fitness testing, the scores are rated for the player's age and based on the successful completion of a task, usually within a specified time limit.

Progress charts are available so that players may compare their "personal best" over a number of years if they wish. All players are encouraged by the Lakefield Soccer Club to practise on their own for these awards. More information is available from the coaches.

Winless Legion may surprise

The Lakefield Legion remains winless after their first six games after action last week in the Lakefield Men's Softball League.

However, if their final game before the June draft is any indication the Legion may surprise a few teams very shortly.

After losing May 29, to On The Spot 12-5 they fell behind early in May 30 game against Switzer Sports 8-3 after five innings before they showed their first signs of improvement during the young season.

Tom Birch nailed a Kevin Gilders pitch over the centre field fence for a three run home run and then in the bottom of the seventh they scored two more but came up short by one run, losing 9-8. The Legion, who obtained Birch two weeks ago in a trade with Dixie Lee also obtained Bob Irwin a week later in another trade with Dixie Lee. The Legion who will get the first round pick in the June draft should show much improvement this week.

Larry Pluard went two for three at the plate for Switzer Sports in their sixth win of the season against one loss and a single tie. In other action, May 30, Dixie Lee climbed into a tie with Home Hardware for second place with a 4-1 victory. Randy Traynor was the winning pitcher giving up just two hits while Doug Hill was tagged with five hits by Dixie Lee.

Following the Legion game May 29, Home Hardware shut out Bowes and Cocks 5-0 with Doug Hill getting the win pitching a five hitter while Kevin Robinson gave up six hits in taking the loss.

Home Hardware got the only run they needed in the first inning when Sean Hill reached base on an error and Luke Weirsdma and Scott Hill hit back to back singles.

The June draft took place June 4th with the lowest place team picking first and so on unless the team had traded their picks.

There is action every Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday at the Kingston Lumber Diamond with double headers beginning at 7 p.m.

Rain plays havoc with Madoc

Rain put a damper on much of the field activities this week; although the men's league did manage theirs before the rain set in. Only two results reported. Bannockburn Devils defeated the Tannery boys and the Panthers doubled the Elders.

The only report on the other games was the accident prone game on Friday evening which saw a broken nose and a broken leg as end results. And they call this a fun league!

Monday and Tuesday all games were rained out, although some did manage to get started.

On Wednesday the rain stopped, but the cold set in. The squirrels lost to Stirling 7-4; the Atoms travelled to Springbrook to defeat the Springbrook girls 13-6; the Beauties defeated Madoc 9-7 and the Bantams boys lost to Madoc 10-6. On Thursday the PeeWee boys defeated Tweed.

In the only ladies' league game the Raiders defeated the Bandits 19-17. Hopefully the weather will co-operate better next week, and all games will be played. See you then.

Fishin' with Frank

BY PHILL LUNKER

"Pickerel! Yes, Frank, I love catching them, and I love eating them."

"I haven't had much luck around here though," I said.

"I know a good spot," said Frank.

"Where is it?" I eagerly inquired.

"In town," he muttered.

"Where in town?" he was pressing him now.

"At the dam," he whispered.

"I've fished the dam and it's n'r good," I said.

"Well, it used to feed me every day when I was poor.

Haven't fished it in years now that I'm working."

Off we went, grabbed our gear, a box of worms and some tackle, and proceeded to the spot. Frank dropped his tackle box at the exact location where I had fished for the last three years with no luck.

"This is it?" I queried.

"A great spot," he replied. "But don't tell anyone."

"What kind of bait?" I asked.

"Any kind - worms, spinners, jigs. If they're hungry, they'll take it."

We rigged up to Special

Chesters. (my favorite worm harness not available in any store) and cast into the fast water.

"Now, put your rod down and walk away from it. Let the current do the work," tutored the old man.

The sun was just sinking when bang! my rod doubled over. I reeled in and landed a nice 20 inch pickerel.

"Not a bad spot, is it Frank?"

My line was barely in the water again when I landed another nice one. Soon, I had a total of three and was getting smug, when Frank landed a beauty. A small grin crept onto his face as he snapped it onto the stringer. Then, suddenly, we both had a fish on our lines at the same time. A matching pair of pickerel of about 18 inches were added to our catch.

After a busy hour we had caught 11 pickerel and

Red cross tip

It is at this time of year when the lakes and rivers look so appealing, especially to your young ones. Let's make sure they're conscious of safety rules before you let them go out on their own. If you would like more information on Water Safety/Small Craft Safety, get in touch with your local Red Cross Branch at 745-8222. Through Red Cross, everyone can learn to play it safe both in and around the water.

released five. The remaining six fish were 16 to 22 inches. It took us two dinners to finish eating them.

On numerous occasions I have returned to the spot and caught countless pickerel on almost any bait, plug, or spinner. The best part is, it's in town by the dam and it's a great spot. But don't tell anyone!

OPEN DAILY: Sun. 1-6, Mon. - Fri. 11-5, Sat. 1-5
A International Event supported by Ministry of Citizenship & Culture through Winario

On Sunday, June 10, 1984, hundreds of runners - children and senior citizens, Sunday joggers and experienced athletes - will participate in a fun run through historic Prince Edward County.

The relay run along the Loyalist Parkway (Highway 35) is being staged as a Bicenennial event by the Ontario Heritage Foundation, an agency of the Ministry of Citizenship and Culture, and the Quinte Knights of Columbus Track Club. Bata Footwear, manufacturers of North Star products, is sponsoring the event.

The 56.5 kilometre run will start at Centennial Park, Trenton and finish at Macaulay Heritage Park, Picton with exchange points in the historic towns - Carrying Place, Consecon, Hillier, Wellington and Bloomfield - along the route.

Each community, in keeping with the "Celebrating Together" theme of the Bicenennial, will welcome the runners with banners and flags and entertain them with activities and exhibits. Special festivities have also been arranged for the event's closing at Macaulay Heritage Park, Picton.

The fun run will cap a weekend of celebrations in the area. Local communities, heritage organizations and service groups will present an array of exhibits, performances and concerts. Old time fiddling, a military encampment and a pancake breakfast are just a few of the activities planned to entertain residents and visitors of all ages and interests.

The non-competitive run is open to all. Teams with a maximum of six members may enter. Registration forms are available at libraries and chambers of commerce throughout central and eastern Ontario and at the Quinte's Isle Tourist Association office in Picton. There is a $5 per team entry fee which covers souvenir hats and posters for all runners.

A number of draw prizes are being offered to participants in the fun run. One of these is a trip from Kingston to Quebec City for the members of one team to attend "A Festival of Togetherness", July 13-16. This event is part of Quebec '84, an international celebration marking the 450th anniversary of Jacques Cartier's arrival in Canada. The festivities include cultural and scientific activities and entertainment based on wind and water themes.

Other draw prizes include copies of Loyal She Re-mains, A Pictorial History of Ontario donated by the United Empire Loyalists Association and a fall-winter, 1984-85 bed and breakfast weekend in Prince Edward County.

The Ontario Heritage Foundation is dedicated to fostering wider interest in local history and stimulating greater participation in the preservation of the province's historical and natural resources. The Bicenennial offers the Foundation a unique opportunity to heighten public appreciation of the province's past. During 1984 it will be showcasing the rich heritage of several areas of Ontario and it has chosen to concentrate its heritage promotion efforts on the Bay of Quinte, a region which played a significant role in the early history of the province.

The mix of athletic and heritage events the Ontario Heritage Foundation plans for the Quinte area is unique among the Bicenennial celebrations being organized throughout Ontario and it is expected that the festivities will attract province-wide attention.

A good investment has just been made even better...

ANNOUNCING A CANADA SAVINGS BONDS RATE INCREASE!

Effective June 1, 1984, the rate of return on the last two series of Canada Savings Bonds (S37 issued November 1982 and S38 issued November 1983) has been increased to 10 1/4% per annum

for the 5-month period ending October 31, 1984.

This means that bonds of these two series (S37 issued November 1982 and S38 issued November 1983) earn interest at the rate of 9 1/4% per annum for the 7 months which began November 1, 1983 and 10 1/4% per annum for the 5 months beginning June 1, 1984.

The rate of return payable beginning November 1, 1984 will be announced when the terms of the new 1984/85 Series are made public in October.

SERIES 37 AND 38 RATE INCREASE

Both Regular Interest Bonds and Compound Interest Bonds of these two series earn the new rate of return.

As a result, each $1,000 Regular Interest Bond will now pay $96.67 interest on November 1, 1984. In addition to simple interest at the rates stated above, Series 37 Compound Interest Bonds earn compound interest at the rate of 9 1/4% per annum for the 7 months which began November 1, 1983 and 10 1/4% per annum for the 5 months beginning June 1, 1984.

With this increase, the annual value of a $1,000 Compound Interest Bond of these two series will grow as tabled here. These values are based on minimum rates guaranteed from November 1, 1984 to maturity: 8 1/2% for Series 37 and 7% for Series 38.

Annual Values of a $1,000 Compound Interest Bond

Value as of Nov. 1	Series 37 (1982/83)	Series 38 (1983/84)
1984	$1,228.27	$1,096.67
1985	1,332.67	1,173.43
1986	1,445.95	1,255.57
1987	1,568.85	1,343.46
1988	1,702.20	1,437.51
1989	1,846.89	1,538.13
1990	-	1,645.80

ALL OTHER OUTSTANDING SERIES

All other outstanding unmatured series remain unchanged. Bonds of these series continue to earn interest at the rate of 10 1/4% per annum.

This rate of 10 1/4% is also the minimum rate for subsequent years to maturity.

Milk Marketing Board

The Ontario Milk Marketing Board is asking that recent increases in Farm Credit Corporation interest rates be reversed. In a letter to Ontario's 95 federal MP's, the OMMB warns that the increases reflect changes in FCC policy that could help destroy the family farm and raise consumer food prices. Farm Credit rates jumped from a uniform 13% to between 14 and 15% depending on the term of the loan. According to a release by Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, the increase was needed in part to offset anticipated loan losses resulting from the recession last year. The OMMB is concerned this means the Farm Credit Corporation will become a lender of last resort with higher interest rates to match, and won't provide the kind of stability the Board sees as necessary to agriculture.

In an earlier submission on farm credit policy, the OMMB pointed to research that showed high interest rates hit small business and farms hardest, while big business was sheltered. The submission also noted that farmers had to invest more money than any other kind of business to generate the same revenue.

The OMMB's letter is in support of efforts by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture to bring about changes in Canada's farm credit policy.

Trappers' Council supports trappers

Submitted by Roger Blowes
Secretary, Centre Hastings Trapper's Council

It is time to fight back.

This, we think, is the real message that Ken Brynaert delivered in North Bay. Mr. Brynaert is the executive vice-president of the Canadian Wildlife Federation. He was speaking to the 27th annual convention of the Ontario Trappers' Association.

The idea of a man devoted to preserving wildlife talking to an association of trappers, and endorsing their position, is enough to drive some so-called conservationists up the wall.

And these so-called conservationists are a powerful and often "unscrupulous" gang of professional money-raisers. They manipulate the media and play the TV cameras to convince cat owners, dog lovers and pet shop operators in European suburbs that Canadians are a blood-thirsty gang of seal slaughterers, wolf shooters, beaver trappers and lynx murderers.

They recruit film stars in Paris, housewives in London or Bloomsbury, and well-meaning folk around the world to give them money so they can educate those terrible Canadians. And, if the Canadians will not be educated, and stop their wicked ways, they will organize trade boycotts and put economic pressure upon Canada to make the nation conform to their standards. These so-called conservationists mostly come from countries that have little or no wildlife. And many of them are disgusting hypocrites.

They don't want Canadians to trap beaver, but they eat beef that has been branded, castrated, slaughtered and skinned. They walk on shoes made of leather, eat lamb or mutton, eat pork, eggs and poultry. All these animals and birds have been raised for one purpose - to serve human needs. And all had to be killed to do it.

It is not a pretty picture. Every day, millions of animals are killed to serve the human race. Most are killed humanely, but as a recent report showed, there's a great deal to be done in the slaughter houses to make them more humane.

These same conservationists and animal lovers set traps for mice, kill rats with poison, send stray dogs to pounds, and will generally kill off any animal they consider to be vermin, or just a nuisance.

In a word, many of them are hypocrites.

Yes, some of them do good work. The Greenpeace people have done an excellent job in fighting the senseless slaughter of the whales. Others have fought the equally senseless slaughter of wild animals in Africa and other countries.

But to a very large extent, Canada has been victimized by a motley collection of kooks and self-serving publicity hounds who really don't give a hoot for the animals they claim to protect. They are really only interested in publicity and bucks.

They refuse to recognize that both trappers and hunters have a vested interest in true conservation. The trapper who overtraps his lines will have nothing to trap in years to come. And it is the same for sports hunters.

As Mr. Brynaert said, many of these groups who call themselves conservationists are really anti-conservationists.

The beaver is a good example. Without trapping it would not be long before much of Northern Ontario would be cut off from the south except by airplane. Roads and railways would be flooded, with the industrious beaver blocking every culvert.

If the beaver invaded suburbs and blocked culverts, the same people who scream about trapping in the North would demand action so that they didn't get their feet wet while getting their cars out of their garages.

But there is a contemptible double standard in the world, and a lot of dirty politics. People who walk on leather, wear wool, and eat meat are very anxious to wipe out the trapping industry. If they were asked to kill the animals that provide them with clothes and food they would probably both the job or starve.

The truth is that the trapping industry has a vested interest in preserving wildlife and increasing it. And the trapping industry, one way and another, provides 100,000 jobs in Canada.

There is some cruelty involved, but the industry has made great strides in improving its trapping methods. But it is unlikely that the beaver that drowns in a couple of minutes suffers as much as the mouse caught by the cat lover's pet, or the rat killed by poison. And the trapper doesn't castrate, brand, or shear his animals as farmers do routinely.

The trappers and the sports hunters probably do far more to preserve wildlife than all the much publicized so-called conservationists ever will.

But they must fight back and educate the public, not only in North America, but also in Europe. And North-erners, particularly in North Bay and area, must support them in their efforts.

Hastings North Women's Institute held a Bicentennial Tea last Saturday afternoon in Ivanhoe Hall. Money donated during the day goes

French exchange: Workathon to be held

The Hastings County Board of Education is sponsoring a one day Workathon to raise money for activities to be scheduled for 88 English-French exchange students. The Workathon will be held on June 23, and public school students will work a maximum of six hours in local nursing homes. They will canvass for sponsors for each hour of work they complete.

There will be 44 Hastings County public school students going to Levis, Quebec, from July 3 to 16 to stay with families, and then from July 19 to 31, the 44 plus an equal amount of new found friends will come to the county.

Five of those students going to Quebec this year are from Madoc: Rhonda Taylor, Ann Graham, Laura Travis, Anita Willemssen and Karen Wiggins. The students from Stirling are: Crystalyn Knight, Shawna Grogan and Connie Pickering. Travelling from Tweed will be Mathew Britain, Craig Morton; from Roslin, Sandra White; Plainfield, David Weidhaas and Foxboro, Julie Dudgeon.

The children will be doing volunteer work at three nursing homes in Belleville and area, and the Trent Valley Lodge in Trenton.

The exchange, organised by the Society for Educational Visits and Exchanges in Canada (SEVEC) will be in its second year. The non-profit organisation receives federal and provincial funding for the exchange, but students are still required to pay a fee to cover some costs.

Board of Education authorities report that July 25 is the tentative date set for the student's trip to O'Hara Mill. During the week, the students travel as a group, and on weekends, they stay in pairs and remain with the hosting families.

MRCA executive power remains intact

The Maitland River Conservation Authority (MRCA) turned down a motion by Madoc Village Deputy Reeve Tom Barton to dissolve the executive and hold full authority meetings every month. The vote was taken at a full meeting held in Belleville on June 7.

There was a great deal of confusion concerning the wording of Barton's motion that was seconded by Paul Whittaker. Belleville Alderman Stu Meeks said the motion read "dissolve the executive", but Barton said he meant "dissolve the executive system".

"We can only vote on the basis of the wording we have before us," said MRCA Chairman Ted Wilson.

There were no motions by any of the 16 representatives to change the wording of the motion. In fact, because of this confusion over the meaning of the motion, some municipal representatives ordered by their council to support the motion, ended up voting against it. Out of 16 votes, 11 voted against and five voted for adoption of the new system.

Before holding the recorded vote, representatives were given a chance to express their views on having full meetings one at a time. A majority of members said they would like to watch the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority (LTRCA) for the next year and see how they do with full monthly meetings. LTRCA just passed a motion to go to full authority meetings.

Many members felt that the MRCA was just too big a watershed and would have too many representatives (21) to effectively go to the full authority meetings, and costs per term and mileage would be too high.

What Barton said he meant, was that the authority's committee system remain intact, but have full meetings monthly instead of just the executive. With the present system, he said, not all the watershed municipalities are represented at the executive level. In discussing the motion, some representatives said they were not always sure what was going on at the executive level.

Minister of Natural Resources Allan Pope recently sent a letter to all conservation authorities recommending a change to the full authority meetings. He said he would like to see all authority members involved in all aspects of authority functions.

The reply to this statement by some MRCA representatives was that the conservation authority that Pope refers to in his letter only has 10 member municipalities, whereas here MRCA covers 21 municipalities.

"I have the uneasy feeling that the resolution has not been thought through - nor the mechanics to carry through with the step," said Chairman Wilson.

Wilson said that if MRCA went to full authority meetings he would quit. He said that to run a meeting on a monthly basis with 21 voters was "ridiculous", it would take too long to pass motions. He also said in his final statement that if the executive was dissolved there would be "no monitoring of spending" and the 1985 budget due this summer would be hard to complete without an executive committee to consult.

"I'm not really prepared to remain as chairman when there is no monitoring of spending in place," said Wilson.

During recent months, mounting criticism and attention has been directed toward the MRCA. Some municipalities, particularly Madoc Village, have said it is hard to get information from the authority on certain projects. In his opening remarks, Wilson said that "reasonable amounts of information" can be obtained by asking.

"Authority bashing has become a popular sport. There seems to be in our society an urge to do away with things of lasting value ... Political hassling from inside and outside the authority have taken too much time from our main job," said Wilson.

Wilson also said that he was not aware of talk concerning a switch to full authority meetings and was taken by surprise.

"If a letter was too much effort, a phone call would have been adequate. I'm beginning to wonder if I still live in Hastings."

Eastern Star has money for dialysis

Mary Barton of Madoc, Past Grand Matron of Eastern Star Fraternity, recently announced that the Ontario Grant Chapter has interest on an investment that will be given for the purchase of a kidney dialysis machine for Belleville General Hospital.

The delay at present is for the hospital to get ready to accept the machine after its purchase. They must have a special room set up, have enough money for installation, start-up and staffing. Barton said that Kingston General Hospital and Belleville may now be talking about setting up a satellite clinic in Belleville.

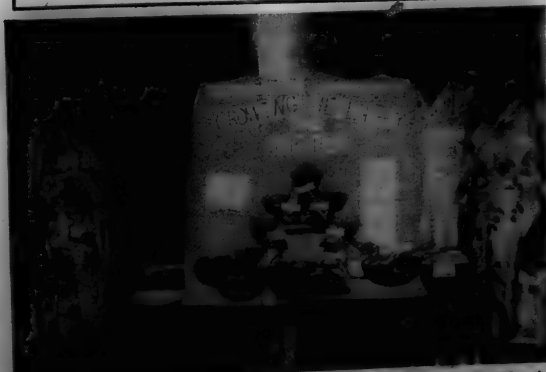

At present, patients from the area requiring dialysis must travel to Kingston for treatment.

The money that the Eastern Star invested, comes from a home in Agincourt which they sold.

"The Eastern Star has been doing a tremendous amount of good work all over the province of Ontario and now, through their generosity, have offered to make money available to buy this dialysis machine."

"I myself, have been talking to various people connected with the Eastern Star and senior government officials, and I am aware of the fact that the purchase of the dialysis machine is just one aspect," said MPP Jim Pollock.

Some 20 displays were set up at Centre Hastings Secondary School auditorium last Thursday night as part of the Women's Institute fund-raising day.

"More Cents Than Dollars". Organizing the event was Valerie Clark, Rural Organization Specialist. Seen here are members of the Cooper-Hastings WI

TEN YEARS AGO

September 4, 1974 - the municipal council of the village of Madoc is spending more money than it originally figured on.

"But it is worth it," says
eve T.C. (Bert) Barton.
The council had originally budgeted some $1,500 for renovations, but figure current work on the premises will cost around $6,500.

New boards are being laced around the ice surface, showers are being added in two of the dressing rooms, all of the dressing rooms are being repainted, and holes "kicked in various walls around the building," are being repaired.

"Kicked in," he emphasized. "It should never have happened."

There'll be ice in the Madoc Arena a lot earlier than usual this year. Reeve
C. Barton told the Madoc

Review today that he hopes there will be ice in the building by October 1 - some two months earlier than the usual December 1 starting date.

A new water and sewer line is going in on Nelson Street, Madoc. The village is carrying out the project itself, and was actually forced into the program, because the municipality's number two well has been draining private wells along the street.

Pioneer Days, possibly the biggest event to be held at O'Hara's Mill, took place Sunday with people from all over the countryside attend-

26, 27 and 28. Last year, at the one day festival, some 350 persons attended from various parts of Ontario,

States. The time has been increased to three days this year so as to provide for folk dancing and music in

The theme of the festival

Liberal finance critic criticizes government polls

Liberal Finance Critic Rick Reid has accused government of being overcritical in spending 30 cent more on public opinion polls last year while held civil service salaries a 5 percent increase. The province spent $692,142 on polling (a $145,000 increase over the previous year). How can the Treasurer justify that when he takes a hard line on government expenditures?" he asked. Look at one example of these polls. When they were thinking of taking on the Federal Health Minister (again over the new Canada Health Act) they spent $6,000 on a poll on health issues and $45,435 on a poll on attitudes to health care. When they decided not to sue with Mme. Begin. Included in the polls paid for by the taxpayers was a $7,500 poll for the Treasurer of people's attitudes toward the Ontario economy. If the government was truly concerned about wasting public money, they should have turned the scissors to the opinion poll budget first, he said. Expressing the view that the time has come for the conservatives to make the results of the polls known to the taxpayers who pay for them. As well as spending thousands of dollars on self-promotion for such programs as its Shop Canadian plan, the government also spends thousands of dollars more on polls to determine how effective its advertising is. He noted that the province spent $42,000 to test reaction in England to Ontario tourism advertisements.

Consultants' Fees
Pat Reid also criticized the government's increased spending on outside consultants, who he said are displacing civil servants in order to give the impression of belt-tightening. He cited the case of the Ministry of Government Services' figures which show a 517 percent increase in spending on outside management consultants from 1977-78 to 1982-83, when payments

President says Ontario Treasurer failed in budget

Malcolm Buchanan, President of the 55,000 member Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, says that the Treasurer of Ontario failed in the budget to come to grips with the most critical issue facing education today - that of provincial government underfunding.

"The Treasurer is expecting the school boards to provide more while providing them with less," Buchanan said, "while at the same time threatening their local autonomy." He was referring to the statement of the Treasurer, Hon. Larry Grossman, in his Budget about a plan to monitor "the spending performance of our school boards" and "a veiled threat" that the province may move, in the Treasurer's words, "to control mill rates formally."

The OSSTF President said, "It is ironic that Mr. Grossman expects school boards to provide programs that will meet new challenges in technological and skills training, in areas of special education and maintain excellence in education while at the same time he is, in real terms, cutting grants to Ontario school boards." Buchanan continued, "The Treasurer's own expenses will increase by 7.4%, while school boards have been ordered to keep within a 5% limit."

The secondary school teacher leader said that Mr. Grossman's claim that his grants to school boards were generous "flew in the face of reality." Buchanan noted a recent statement issued by the Association of Large School Boards of Ontario that the average increase for 1984 over 1983 in grants from the province for 13 large boards was 0.12%. "That is far from adequate, let alone generous," he said.

The Ontario secondary school President said that there seems to be a diminishing commitment on the part of the government to support education, despite its increasingly critical importance as a training ground for Ontario's youth.

Buchanan cited a study in the Canadian Tax Journal which provided data indicating Ontario's spending on elementary and secondary education as a percentage of gross domestic product is less than for any province except Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, and lower than the national average.

He said the study also showed that on the same basis Ontario spending on vocational and occupational training was in a three-place tie with Alberta and British Columbia as the lowest in Canada.

Buchanan said, "This year's budget continues the erosion of provincial government support for education. He added, "In 1984-85 the percent of provincial revenues going to support General Legislative Grants to school boards is expected to fall to a modern low of 12.2%, down from 16.5% in 1975/76. In real dollar terms the total General Legislative Grants will be less this year than last, and will be some $366 million less than in 1977/78."

The OSSTF President continued, "In June of 1980 the Ministry of Education in a report entitled Issues and Directions said '...we cannot expect that the real cost of education on a per-pupil basis can be lowered if we aim to maintain the present level of service and make further progress towards the goal of equality of opportunity.' Buchanan said, "Figures provided by both the Treasurer and the Minister of Education show clearly that in real dollar terms both the total grants paid to secondary education and the per pupil grants are lower today than in 1980 by substantial amounts. One can only conclude that the government is not willing to continue, to make the financial commitment required to maintain service and provide equality of educational opportunity." Buchanan said, "That would seem to be the message of the Budget, which is an instrument which reflects the real priorities of the government."

The secondary school teachers' President concluded his statement by saying that the Budget was a disappointing document in that it did not provide the necessary incentives to bring about the economic transformation which was its theme. "Youth training programs which are not based on a balanced, adequately funded public education system will produce band-aid solutions. Long term results will be achieved only if the Treasurer and the government will work closely with Ontario school boards and the education community to develop meaningful programs that will be assured

Federal Summer Canada Works projects

Four College and University students began work at the beginning of May on several Conservation projects. The students were hired under a federal Summer Canada Works agent of $15,119 for an 18-week period.

One part of the work project will involve the design of a new entrance to Goodrich-Loomis Conservation Area. The final touches will also be put on the Authority's flood forecasting system when staff gauges are installed on a number of watershed creeks. The crew will also be working on a number of other projects.

The LTRCA has been pleased with the success of past Summer Canada Works programs and is looking forward to another productive summer.

Sprink Walk - June 3
Bring the family for a breath of fresh air to the LTRCA's Sprink Walk. It will be held at Goodrich-Loomis Conservation Area on Sunday, June 3, 1984 at 2 p.m.

Goodrich-Loomis Conservation Area is west off highway #30 about eight kilometers north of the 401. The 208 hectare site is the LTRCA's most popular area and has a number of interesting natural features.

Authority staff will be assisted at the event by several guest leaders. The outdoor education centre on site will be open following the walk for coffee and discussion. The walk will leave the main parking lot at 2 p.m.

Sprink Water Awareness Program - SWAP
In the past few years, the public has shown growing awareness and concern over the increasing number of drowning deaths involving school children locally, and throughout the province. Several Conservation Authorities, including the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority, have received requests from area schools for a water safety program. These requests started the development of the Sprink Water Awareness Program or SWAP.

The SWAP is a series of presentations designed to warn school children (grades K to 8) and the general public about the dangers associated with the spring water runoff.

This spring the LTRCA made a SWAP presentation at two schools in the watershed. The program and presentations were discussed at an April meeting of the LTRCA Information and Public Relations Advisory Board. At that time it was decided the LTRCA would develop its own program with a view to providing presentations to watershed schools in spring '85.

Six local Authorities have met to discuss the SWAP. They are: the Lower Trent, the Moira River, the Otonabee Region, the Crowe Valley, the Kawartha and South Lake Simcoe Authorities. At the meeting the possibility of combining resources to produce a more effective SWAP presentation was discussed.

Presently the LTRCA is working to develop its SWAP presentation and will be meeting again with the other Authorities in the near future.

Belleville tops target

The Belleville and District Unit of the Canadian Cancer Society has once again topped its campaign target.

As of last week, the local unit had accumulated $102,850 which included the actual campaign in April, special events and daffodil and daffodil pin sales.

The campaign objective this year was $75,000 - up from the $68,000 target last year.

The residential canvass

(including employee donations) has so far brought in $60,915 this year, and another $10,000 is expected from canvassers in Tweed, Sidney Township and Country Club Village.

Commercial donations account for $6,650 and industrial canvass total to date is $4,355.

And special names donations - individuals canvassed from the unit - brought in $1,250.

That means this year's campaign has already raised $75,170 and is expected to have raised more than $85,000 by the time all donations are accounted for.

Along with campaign funds, the local unit has also raised about $22,000 from special events and $7,700 from daffodil and daffodil pins. There is, however, about $8,000 in expenses to be deducted from these totals.

Nuclear arms discussion to be held in Marmora

BY JANICE BROWN

Nuclear war is a very frightening subject. As our scientists are now learning, even a very limited nuclear exchange will put the earth in a 'nuclear winter' and will do irrevocable damage to the planet.

Citizens of the world are becoming increasingly aware of the threat of nuclear war. In places far removed from Canada, it is now coming into focus, that this issue must be dealt with immediately.

There has recently been a joint declaration made by six countries (Greece, Sweden, Mexico; India, Argentina and Tanzania) calling for an immediate freeze and a multi-lateral disarmament. The Netherlands have refused the shipment of Cruise Missiles that were scheduled to be deployed there. The Global News report of this refusal said it was "clearly a direct result of public opposition".

Canadian citizens are also becoming aware of the threat of nuclear war. This fact is evident in the hundreds of groups now in existence in our country, working for a multi-lateral disarmament. One of the objectives of these groups is to make the subject an issue in the upcoming election. One of the main focal points for these ever-increasing groups, is the Peace Petition Caravan Campaign. This petition is being circulated nation-wide and will be presented on Parliament Hill this fall.

petition are:

We ask that the Parliament of Canada act to refuse the testing of the Cruise missile in Canada and to reject research, production, testing and transport of any nuclear weapons, their delivery systems or components in Canada.

We ask that Canada be declared a Nuclear-Weapons-Free Zone in accord with similar initiatives by other nations and become actively involved in working for the multilateral de-escalation of the arms race.

We further ask that wasteful spending on the arms race be diverted to fund human needs so as to ensure prosperity through peace.

Finally, we ask that the above-stated objectives be subject to ratification through a "free vote" in the Parliament of Canada.

Nationally, the campaign is sponsored by all the peace groups, and by the leaders of many of the principle church groups including: The Right Rev. Clarke MacDonald of the United Church; the most Rev. John M. Sherlock, President of the Canadian Conference of Bishops; and Dr. Russell Legge, President of the Canadian Council of Churches. Other names that have endorsed the campaign are: Margaret Laurence, Pierre Berton, Patrick Watson, Danny Crossman, Robert Bateman and Leonard Cohen.

Sailing school to be conducted on Crowe Lake

Good news for those people who would like to learn how to sail a boat. A mobile sailing school conducted by the Ontario Sailing Association and sponsored by Wintario is coming to Marmora July 2 to 6. Morning, afternoon and evening classes in sailing will be given at Booster Park, Crowe Lake. All boats and equipment supplied.

Each student will receive 15 hours of instruction. The courses are based on the National Learn-to-Sail Proficiency Standards in a program which makes learning to sail both fun and exciting, while maintaining a high safety standard. Courses are offered at both the Beginner and Intermediate levels. The students receive certification for the level of proficiency they achieve.

Anyone can attend who is over 10 years of age, and able to swim.

The Mobile Sailing School is fully equipped with five Alcan "Petrel" sailboats, a rescue/coach boat, two certified instructors and a van which provides their accommodation while on location. The instructors run three classes per day - in the morning 9 to 12, afternoon 1:30 to 4:30, and evening 6 to 9.

The aim of the program is to provide sailing instruction at a minimal cost to any member of the community. One week of lessons (15 hours) costs $45 per person.

CHSS Martial Arts News

BY BOB WALTHER
Bob Grabowski and the year 1983 were good pals. Bob will never forget that year. It all started last March for the Frankford area resident, when he wrapped up his first tournament win. You could tell back then that Bob had a knack of slipping his side kick into his opponent's ribs at the most embarrassing moments - when they thought for sure, by golly, that they had already won! He developed that knack into a consistent edge he carried to every tournament.

The special point about Bob's 1983 endeavors, was his image on the tournament floor. He was never cocky or overconfident. He was quiet, elusive. His techniques weren't overpowering. They were, in a word, deft.

Bob brings a particularly bright image to Karate the way it's practised at Leonard's Trent Valley Karate Club, especially for the young people. He's proof that you don't have to grow like a rooster in a barnyard to be heard.

For his dedication to martial arts and for the strength of his technique, Bob was recently rewarded with a Blue Belt in both Karate and Jiu Jitsu, making him the highest Kyu Belt member of the Trent Valley Club. Bob also understands that another privilege with the Blue Belt is the hard work that lies ahead. That reward also comes with the territory and is one of the pleasures of the martial arts.

Trent Valley has provided me with a list of members from the Frankford-Stirling area who have been promoted over the last while. Sincere congratulations are in order for the following martial artists - Kelly Revoy, Jennifer Revoy, Bill Forbes, Pat Forbes, Phil

Baynes, Ken Hill, Marshall Thompson, Christina Thompson, Shannon Thompson, Bob Leshaw, Christina Boyle, Sandy Grabowski, Doug Wilkinson, Brenda McLellan, Gary Forbes, Chris Gravelle, Reg Stacey, all to Yellow Belt in Karate and in Jiu Jitsu; Marilyn Lohmes, Andrew Billyard, Dave Fraser and Bev Leonard to Orange Belt level in Karate and in Jiu Jitsu.

Kai Shin Karate members should not forget the superb Ontario Youth Championships in Oakville on June 24, dedicated to the memory of Senaei Menardo who died in a boating accident down south. The shiai will take place at the Trafalgar Village Mall.

Summer grants awarded

Bill Vankoughnet, MP for Hastings-Frontenac-Lennox and Addington is pleased to announce that further funding has been received for projects under the Summer Canada 1984 Student Employment Program.

The additional grants of $108,019 will provide employment for 52 additional young people working a total of 530 work weeks and will help furnish a wide variety of services for the riding.

This brings the total funding to $435,019 with 2,143 work weeks and employing 199 young people during this Bicentennial year.

"Local residents are aware of the needs in their own communities and have put together programs to meet those requirements, and I am pleased that these projects are being funded for the benefit of the communities in the constituency and wish those who are participating in the programs a most successful summer," Mr. Vankoughnet stated.

Pastor named president-designate

The Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada chose a former missionary to Brazil as its president-designate for 1985-86 Conference year, the Rev. Edward Stuart (Ted) Colwell of Tabernacle United Church, Belleville.

He was born and raised in Bowmanville and received his theological education at Emmanuel College in Toronto. He was ordained by the Bay of Quinte Conference in 1965.

After three years on the Coe Hill pastoral charge in Peterborough Presbytery, he and his wife Molly were appointed missionaries to Brazil, where they served for eight years.

On returning to Canada, he served in the Hastings-Rosemeath charge in Cobourg Presbytery, and since 1979 has been at Tabernacle United Church in Belleville.

The Colwells have three children: Susan, Tom and Heather.

In his acceptance speech to conference, Rev. Colwell said, "I will apply my experience as a missionary to my term of office. In as far as in me lies, I will reach out and bring to you the world," he said. He quoted John Wesley, the founder of Methodism, one of the parent denominations of the United Church, as saying, "The world is my parish."

"But when I become president I won't own the place," he said. "I will be open to your guidance, to who you are, and to how you want to serve."

Rev. Colwell has chaired the Conference Division of World Outreach and Belleville Presbytery. At present he chairs the Personnel Committee of the National Division of World Outreach.

Polls criticized

Grange Commission
The terms of reference of the Royal Commission which is investigating the deaths of 36 babies at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children has been changed to enable the Commission's Chairman, Mr. Justice Samuel Grange, a free hand in commenting on the conduct of individuals "with respect to both the investigation and the prosecution of Susan Nelles."

The Attorney-General has stated that Mr. Justice Grange is entitled to comment on the conduct of individuals short of expressing a legal conclusion in relation to civil or criminal responsibility, and that it must be stressed that the Royal Commission is not a trial, either criminal or civil.

The amendments indicate that "the Commission may receive evidence and submissions and comment fully on the conduct of any person during the course of the investigation, institution, and prosecution of charges arising out of his deaths...provided that such comment does not express any conclusion of law regarding civil or criminal responsibility."

Provincial Budget

The Opposition continues to attack the provincial budget. Areas under fire include day care, social housing and the environment. Liberal Leader David Peterson demanded to know why the Treasurer took only "baby steps" in providing 1,500 subsidized day care spaces for the province. For Metro Toronto alone, the waiting list is 3,500. In Ottawa-Carleton it's 608, and London and Sault Ste Marie each need 80 spaces, he said.

While conceding that the 1,500 spaces "will not solve the problem entirely", the Treasurer contends this is an important addition. David Peterson also produced a list of people waiting for social housing in the province, which totals more than 30,000 families and individuals. The budget provides for 640 units a year across the province for the next five years, which amounts to virtually ignoring social housing, he said.

Kids' painting contest

More than 200,000 school children in Ontario are expected to participate in Bank of Montreal's annual Canada Week "Kids' Paint".

The program involves more than 500 branches and 1,000 schools.

Children from kindergarten through grade six have been creating paintings and drawings based on the theme "What Canada Means To Me".

Their work is being displayed during June at Bank of Montreal branches, affording parents, relatives and customers a unique view of Canada as seen through the eyes of our children.

A Certificate of Participation will be given to each child.

Haggerty is investigating.

On Wednesday, May 9, 1984, David Hannah of Eldorado, Ontario, reported a tire on his car had been slashed while parked in the parking lot at the Madoc Hotel. Damage was estimated at $100.

A NEW PROPERTY TAX EXEMPTION to help Disabled and Seniors live at home.

Why was this new program introduced?

"Many elderly and disabled people want to live with their families. However, in some cases, providing shelter requires extensive home renovations which result in increased property taxes. We must encourage—not penalize—families for their efforts to provide shelter and supportive care."

Budget Statement—May 15, 1984. The Honourable Larry Grossman, Q.C., Treasurer of Ontario.

"Accordingly, I am announcing today that homeowners who undertake renovations or additions, specifically to keep an elderly or disabled person at home and in the community, will be exempt from any increase in taxable assessment that would otherwise occur."

Does the program involve direct financial assistance for alterations? No. The savings are in reduced property taxes each year, not in grants or loans for alterations. Under this program, the assessed value of the improvements will not be included when your property tax is calculated, providing the improvements were made to help a disabled or senior live at home.

Who can apply? Any property owner who makes improvements to accommodate people who are 65 or over and those of any age with physical or mental disabilities that would otherwise require them to live in an institution.

Can only the family of a disabled or senior person apply for this exemption? Not necessarily. For example, you may wish to make improvements to accommodate a friend in your home. Moreover, disabled or seniors can apply for the exemption directly, if they make alterations that will enable them to continue living in their own homes.

What about group homes? Non-profit group homes can apply, but only as long as their improved accommodations do not exceed three residential units. Larger institutions—operating multiple facilities to care for the disabled or seniors are not included in this program.

Can commercial properties qualify? Yes, in some cases. For example, a family operating a retail store could apply for the exemption if they make improvements to an apartment upstairs for the accommodation of a family member or friend who would otherwise be compelled to live in an institution.

What types of home improvements qualify? Any addition, improvement or alteration specifically related to the needs of the disabled or senior resident qualifies for this new exemption. These may include such features as special bathroom modifications or additions to an existing home. (Please note: general repairs and maintenance do not increase assessment anyway).

Does the exemption apply to changes underway or completed before the program was announced? Only alterations started after May 15, 1984 when the program was announced will qualify for the property tax exemption once the work has been completed.

How long will the exemption apply? The tax exemption continues as long as the senior or disabled person uses the property as their principal residence.

How do you receive this new property tax exemption? The first step is to call your local Assessment Office at the number listed below. To avoid any possible disappointment, please contact us before finalizing your plans. We look forward to discussing the program in greater detail.

Please talk to your local Assessment Office. We're anxious to help.

Street-proofing book

By REV. RAY SKELTON
Marmora Pentecostal Church

Re: Sexual Abuse Workshop - Madoc, May 28, 1984.

At the workshop I made a reference to a background paper which was submitted to the Eastern Ontario Social Concerns Committee for the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada dealing with Sexual Assault: Child abuse; Children as sex objects. (April 1984).

From this report came the suggestion that parents "Street-Proof" their children without creating an abnormal fear of adults and that this could be accomplished by using the teaching kit "Protecting Your Children from Sexual Assault" by William Kaur; Lynn Heitritter $12.50 available from Little Ones Books, P.O. Box 1030, Malton, Ontario, L4T 4C9; or from PAOC, P.O. Box 1600, Belleville, Ontario, K8N 5J3.

Correction

In an article that appeared in last week's paper entitled "Sexual abuse film reviewed in Unit", it said that The Hastings and the Prince Edward Counties' Health Unit put on the film review and discussion. Actually, the Centre Hastings Support Network put on the workshop that was held at the Health Unit in Madoc.

News from diamond

On the big diamond the Beauties were hosting Tweed and they too were having their hands full. At one point in the game, they found themselves behind 5-2. They rallied, however, in the bottom of the fifth and scored 7 runs. Another was added in the sixth, making the final score 10-5. Candy Osborne and Suzanne Franks shared mound duties. Paula Harris again drove in three runs with a triple.

Then, in the late game, in a game of endurance both for players and spectators, the Cheddarettes emerged victorious in a 22-19 decision over the Bandits. The lead changed hands several times before the final decision. Pat Brownson had two grand slams in the game and scored two other runs for the Bandits. She also hurled for the Bandits.

For the Cheddarettes,

Shaw had two singles. Solmes and Foster collected a double each and Lori Donaldson connected for a two run homer.

Out-of-town scores saw the Bantam boys losing a 5-0 decision to Springbrook. In Madoc, the Angels split their games with Madoc, losing the first 6-5 (this was a continuation of a rained-out game). They won their second decision 19-18. Their record now stands at 2-2.

In Queensboro, the Hannah Electric girls from Bannockburn defeated the Cougars 19-7. Hannah Electric now have three wins. In Madoc in another long game, the Whirlwinds were soundly defeated 22-1 by the Phillies. The Phillies are also at a 3-0 record for the year.

The games from Thursday's schedule will be covered next week when I return with more news from the township.

Jean Chretien

Hastings Frontenac, Lennox and Addington

Among delegates in the Hastings Frontenac, Lennox and Addington Liberal Association, there is a cautious leaning towards a Jean Chretien vote.

Three delegates out of nine have said they are presently more in favor of Liberal leadership candidate Jean Chretien, but are still keeping open minds. Two delegates sided firmly with John Turner and two say they are going with Don Johnston on the first ballot.

The consensus seems to be that most like Chretien because of his patriotism and personality, but can't commit themselves 100 percent until the final confrontation at the convention.

Hastings, Frontenac, Lennox and Addington Liberal Association President Irene Backholm has said she is uncommitted "at this point". She says that her favorites are Chretien and Turner.

Youth delegate Paul Proderick of Amherstview said he is in favor of Donald Johnston: "Right now I'm leaning towards Don Johnston, but I'll probably end up with Chretien in the end. I think most people here are leaning toward Chretien". See Hastings page 2A

Northumberland

Northumberland Youth Delegate Sheila Delanty, 17, of Cobourg, is going to Ottawa "this weekend, uncommitted but leaning towards Jean Chretien."

Phil O'Grady, a 19-year-old grade 13 student from Castleton, will be going to the convention, uncommitted, but leaning towards John Turner, but Chretien is also in his mind. He has been a party member for only five months, having been drawn to it by the leadership convention.

Mary Ann Outwater, of Brighton, a member of the Northumberland Liberal Party executive, is also uncommitted, but has narrowed it down to either Donald Johnston or Jean Chretien. "I'm not very keen on Turner because he left the party for nine years". She has been on the executive for three years and Liberal all her life.

Norah Buckley, a 12 year party member, is going to the convention uncommitted with leanings towards Jean Chretien. "I've been impressed with some of the things the candidate I've seen have said and done, but I'm definitely undecided about who I will support on the first ballot. After that I'll see what is happening at the convention," she told Cembal Publications.

The John and Jean show ends this Saturday

A Canadian love/hate story will come to an end Saturday when Liberals from across the country elect a successor to Pierre Trudeau, Canada's longest reigning French-speaking prime minister.

Without doubt, the country will get a new style of leadership from that of the cerebral, confrontationist Trudeau.

Since February 29, the day Trudeau leaped into history, the country has watched as former finance minister, John Turner, the crown prince in exile for the past eight years, demonstrated that politics isn't like riding a bike: it doesn't come back to you right away.

Almost straight off the starting block Turner stumbled, first over the Manitoba language dispute, then over his position on the Quebec government's language law. Turner followed that up by getting into a very public dispute with Trudeau over circumstances surrounding Turner's resignation from cabinet in 1975.

Turner told reporters, in what he later claimed was an informal discussion, that Trudeau refused to support Turner's attempt at finding consensus on voluntary wage controls so Turner quit.

In a dramatic move, Trudeau flatly denied the claim and Turner took a step back from his sometimes informal relationship with the press and had a staffer follow him everywhere with a tape recorder.

By the latter stages of the campaign, it seemed that whatever the press made of Turner's gaffes the delegates themselves were pretty much unconcerned. Their assessment and support for Turner was bolstered by polls showing that for the first time in two years the Liberals were ahead of the Tories and that Turner was their best bet to keep things that way.

The other frontrunning candidate almost didn't make it off the starting block at all.

Energy Minister Jean

Chretien, "the little guy from Shawinigan", was shocked to discover, when he assessed his chances of winning the leadership, many who had told him they planned to support him jumped ship when Turner made his move.

By mid-campaign Chretien, who may not win the convention but has won the respect of all observers, had recovered his poise sufficiently to joke he took his time entering the race because he didn't want to scare Turner out of the campaign.

Turner, though the candidate of the Liberal establishment, was pitched as the candidate of change and it was left for Chretien to defend the party's record even while on the outs with the "rainmakers and king-makers" he denounced during his campaign visit to Peterborough.

Also rans: Don Johnston, John Roberts, John Munro and Mark McGuigan, all managed during the campaign to claim third spot with Roberts claiming at one point he was in second and a half. Clearly never in third Eugene Whelan never made the claim.

Turner staffers were telling the press in Peterborough last Thursday what had already become conventional wisdom: the election of a leader will not happen on the first ballot. That is a major change from the assessment three months ago, when many saw the campaign as the prelude to a coronation of Turner, a Bay Street lawyer.

Much of the credit for slowing, if not stopping the Turner bandwagon, goes to Chretien who has received emotional support from Liberals everywhere he goes. He may suffer though from the "Flora Syndrome", named after Flora MacDonald, a candidate for the Tory leadership in 1976.

MacDonald was told by far more delegates than voted for her that she had their support.

John Turner

Peterborough

Perhaps it's visions of electoral sugar plums dancing in their heads, maybe it's John Turner's blue eyes, whatever the reason, Turner the one-time finance minister and big league corporate lawyer, seems to be the pick of the pack in Peterborough among Liberals headed for this weekend's leadership convention.

Led by the party's candidate, lawyer Barry MacDougall, who finally gave up his official neutrality in an interview with us last week in favor of Turner, most Peterborough Liberals are backing Turner.

While the two women delegates, Marg Tunney and school board trustee, Monica Jackson, claim they support Turner's main opposition, Energy Minister Jean Chretien, neither would say their support will last past the first ballot.

Jackson wouldn't even guarantee her support for Chretien would last until she made it from Peterborough to Ottawa.

MacDougall, a long time Liberal worker and currently one of only six nominated Liberal candidates in the country, said he had leaned toward Turner right from the beginning of the campaign. "While Turner's gaffes during the campaign caused MacDougall some 'uneasiness' he was supporting Turner in part because of their long time acquaintance with each other."

That association with Turner has convinced MacDougall Turner is the See Peterborough page 2A

Jack Bonn is a retired businessman in Trenton who has been chosen as a delegate at the Liberal Convention in Ottawa June 16th and 17th. When he spoke with him last Friday he stated that he was "going to vote for John Turner unless something happens to change my mind between now and next Saturday. He is the best equipped to win the next election and unless something new turns up at the convention then he'll have my vote."

Mr. Bonn has seen both Chretien and Turner several times as they passed through the area and he also travelled to Toronto and Peterborough to listen to what they had to offer on those occasions.

Mr. Bonn stated that he was a senior citizen and that he "has seen a lot of governments come and go. Some good, some bad. I've made up my mind who can get this country back on the road to prosperity and I'm interested in the welfare of Canada, so that is why I take an active roll in the politics of this country."

Next Thursday morning Mr. Bonn and his wife, who is an alternate delegate, will be on the road to Ottawa and John Turner has one firm supporter from Northumberland if he makes the right moves from now until convention time.

Odessa, said she is going to the convention uncommitted, but she has a leaning toward Chretien. She said she is "definitely not a Turner supporter."

"I like his authority," Mylks said of Chretien, "and I think he has got a lot of good answers."

Joan Vastokas, delegate from Madoc, said she is torn between John Turner and Jean Chretien. She said she has, at present, a leaning toward Turner.

"I'm waiting to see how they act in front of me," said Mrs. Vastokas. "I think how a Prime Minister carries himself in Public is important -- know how to handle himself in other countries, as well as at home."

Mrs. Vastokas' husband Ron, who was once president of the association, is also a delegate, but was not available for comment. Joan spoke for her husband, saying he is "leaning heavily toward Turner."

Delegate Breen O'Connor of Marmora said recently that he is leaning toward Jean Chretien, but will keep an open mind going into the convention.

strongest of the leadership contenders on the economy, and he is just as sure Turner will bring about a resurgence of the Liberals in the west.

Turner's toughness is another reason for MacDougall's support. He said unlike others who fudged their position on the deficit, Turner met it head on, saying it had to be reduced.

"He didn't shy from the deficit," said MacDougall, adding "You can't ignore it, hoping it will go away."

And while MacDougall did have some concern about the rustiness of his man at the start of the campaign, he said that by the time Turner made it to Peterborough last week, he showed clearly "he hasn't lost his touch with average people."

The weatherman co-operated with the men's league on the weekend and saw a full slate of games played.

The Bannockburn Devils played 500 ball losing their Friday night game to Moore's Corners and winning their Sunday night game over the Factory. In the second game on Friday night, O'Hara's defeated Queensboro. The Panthers handed the Cooper boys a defeat on Sunday.

In a single game on Saturday, the Eldora defeated Tannery 6-3 in a very evenly matched game. Brian Plumb was on the mound for the Eldora and Brennen Devolin and Dana Cresser shared the mound duties for Tannery.

On Monday, minor ball took over. The Squirrels travelled to Tweed and were defeated by a 19-3 thumping by Tweed. The boys were not playing the type of game they are capable of and, as a result, they were handed a very sound defeat.

In Madoc, the Beauties continued their winning ways and defeated the Madoc Bananas 19-9. Andrea, pitching for the Beauties, chalked up twelve strikeouts. Paula Harris carried a hot bat for the team, collecting four hits for four trips to the plate. She drove in eight runs and scored two runs as well. Tracey Trotter also had four hits.

In Eldorado, the Peewee girls defeated Stirling 15-13. On the large diamond, George Wood started the Atom girls with their first practice of the year. These girls will be having exhibition games in the future.

In the ladies' league, the Bannockburn Angels defeated the Cooper Connections in a come-from-behind victory in the bottom of the seventh. Final score was 6-5 for Bannockburn.

On Tuesday night the weather co-operated again and all games were played. The Atom boys hosted the Springbrook girls and defeated them 9-2. These boys have yet to be defeated. The Peewees travelled to Tweed to play and came home with a 17-5 victory.

On the down side, the Cheddarettes lost 22-9 to the Raiders and the Gold-diggers outlasted the Bandits 22-17.

Wednesday evening was another long night at the park for the spectators. On the little diamond, the Squirrels were handed another lesson from Tweed as they were soundly defeated 15-0. These boys have a lot of potential and should be putting up a better show than they are.

If the Shoe Fits

by Ralph Haron Manager

Can children feel short shoes?

There is a saying in the shoe trade, "Children's feet seldom hurt." Why? Growing children have soft bones in their formative years, and if their feet are in tight shoes, the children might not complain. However, the bone structure is changing, which will create problems later on.

We have often seen shoes two sizes too small on children and yet they say they feel fine. But where are growing feet to go in small shoes? Many times you will not see the bunions, ingrown toenails, corns developing, but a basic change in foot proportions may show up in six months or a year. Basic weakness in arches or rotating heels are hard to correct. Ask a mother who has had a child wear corrective shoes, braces or splints. It is an expensive nightmare and progress toward correction is usually slow.

We have all types of insurance for life, health, and property. For proper foot insurance, have your children's feet checked regularly and make sure the shoes you buy them are fitted by persons who consider shoe fitting a profession - not a sideline.

Agriculture's allocation in the Ontario government budget rose 16.3 percent this year over last year with a total of $355 million set out in the recent budget document, which also indicated support for a national Agribond program.

The increase given the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food was the highest proportional increase awarded any line ministry for fiscal 1984/85. Agriculture Minister Dennis Timbrell said in comment to the budget presented by Treasurer Larry Grossman. The increase was $47 million more than OMAF's expenditures last fiscal year.

Timbrell said OMAF's budget share, plus funding for agriculture in the budgets of other ministries (based on last year's level of support), meant Ontario assistance for this primary industry could top half a billion dollars for the year ahead.

"The increase shows the government strongly supports agriculture and recognizes the contribution made to the provincial economy by our industry which is the second most important source of export dollars after cars and car parts," the minister said.

The Treasurer said this growth reflects additional funds for new initiatives and enrichments of priority programs.

"The Ontario Farm Tax Reduction program will be enriched by $18 million to $90 million and the Beginning Farmer program will provide a further $9 million this year. Action is also being taken by the Minister of Agriculture and Food on our $62 million five-year commitment to the new Ontario Red Meat Plan and progress is being made in negotiating a national Tripartite Stabilization Program," the Treasurer added.

"The agricultural community has consistently indicated that its fundamental concern is the cost of credit. Accordingly, I am announcing today that we are prepared to set up a national Agribond program with the federal government.

"In recent years, Ontario and other governments have independently introduced programs to help farmers cope with the high cost of credit. My colleague, the Minister of Agriculture and Food, is taking the lead to consolidate the various programs under a Canada-wide Agribond program.

"Our proposal is cost effective and, with federal government participation, will lead to a substantial cut in borrowing costs for farmers. This is a high priority for us, and we are determined to see established and appropriate national arrangement."

Timbrell pointed out that his ministry's allocations are not the only source of government funding for agriculture. "For example, in the last fiscal year, retail sales tax exemptions and rebates to the agricultural sector were estimated to be about $140 million," the minister said.

Timbrell outlined last year's spending for a number of other government programs which benefit agriculture: -- $12.2 million for fuel and gasoline tax refunds to farmers on 30,000 claims. -- $500,000 for farm tank grants. -- $10 million in BILD grants which were part of $51.7 million spent on agriculture since 1981. This does not include funding for the high technology and farm machinery centre in Chatham constructed under BILD through the Ministry of Industry and Trade.

-- $1.22 million from the Ministry of Energy for agricultural energy projects and the Greenhouse Incentive program.

-- $600,000 from the Ministry of Northern Affairs for northern agricultural projects.

In addition, no sales tax is paid on colored diesel fuel, an exemption for which no dollar estimate is available.

"Although my ministry's expenditures amounted to $288 million last year," Timbrell said, "total government funding to agriculture from all government sources was more than $450 million in the last fiscal year."

Farm implement buyers protection act

Statement of Don Boudria, MPP, [Prescott-Russell]

I am tabling in the Legislature a Bill entitled the New Farm Implement Buyers Protection Act, 1984. The purpose of this Bill is to:

(a) Entitle the purchaser of a defective farm implement to obtain a refund of the purchase price during the warranty period of 1,500 hours or five years, whichever comes first or, if the machine is less than two years old or has been driven for less than 800 hours, an equivalent farm implement in replacement.

A new farm implement is considered defective if it has been the subject of four unsuccessful attempts to repair a major defect or been out of service for thirty farming days in any year or sixty farming days in the course of attempted repairs and the defect remains uncorrected.

(b) Allow a transfer of the warranty to subsequent owners where the farm implement is still within the warranty period.

(c) Where a defective tractor or combine is out of service for repair during the warranty period for more than three farming days and the manufacturer or dealer fails to supply the purchaser with a replacement unit, the manufacturer or dealer is responsible for any crop losses that result.

Reliable farm tractors and combines are an expensive and indispensable part of successful agricultural operations; yet farmers have little in the way of fair protection when he or she purchases new or used equipment or requires machinery repairs. (Last year Ontario farmers purchased $215 million of farm machinery and parts.)

This type of legislation has the support of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture who have sought comprehensive protection for farmers from poorly designed or manufactured equipment and from companies not being able to deliver emergency parts at a critical time.

In brief, this Legislation will provide a "Lemon law" for farm machinery.

Five-part program to boost production efficiency and quality

The Ministry of Agriculture and Food is implementing a five-part program to boost production efficiency and quality in the beef and sheep industry, Agriculture and Food Minister Dennis Timbrell announced recently.

The five development programs represent the first phase of the $62 million five-year red meat plan Timbrell announced in January.

"The red meat plan is aimed at providing long-term solutions to the problems of the red meat industry," he said. "It has two thrusts — one, to improve the marketing systems for sheep and beef and another to develop programs to improve efficiency and ensure the long-term viability of the red meat industry."

"The development programs which I am announcing today will address the profitability of the industry and help to create an efficient and cost-competitive industry," said Timbrell.

The five program areas provide funds for a red meat research fund, cow/calf development, cattle feeding development, Regional Agricultural Enterprise Centres and sheep development. The programs were formulated by a committee of representatives of the red meat industries and the ministry. The committee will meet regularly to review the program.

Red Meat Research Fund
This $1 million fund will accelerate research aimed at improving the efficiency of the red meat industry. For example, research dollars will be channeled into projects which could include the improvement of artificial insemination for sheep, pasture improvement for cow/calf operators and carcass identification and rail guarding for beef producers.

Cow/Calf Development
This program is aimed at increasing the efficiency of the cow-calf sector in Ontario. Under this $6.3 million program, producers must participate in the Beef Herd Improvement Program. Optional programs include assistance for capital facilities, herd health, certified preconditioned calves, forage testing, enterprise analysis, weight scales and identification tags.

An eligible producer could obtain a grant to cover two-thirds of the cost to a maximum of $1,500 for materials for handling facilities such as chutes, gates, pens or fences.

Stocking/Slaughter Cattle Feeding Development

A total of $2.4 million per year will be directed toward improving the efficiency of beef stocker and cattle feeding operations through modern management techniques and new technology. Producers must participate in a compulsory weighing program. Optional programs fund capital facilities, forage testing, herd health and enterprise analysis.

Under the compulsory program, producers may qualify for up to $750 per year to offset weighing costs.

Regional Agricultural Enterprise Centres [RAEC]

The ministry will provide $1.1 million annually to increase the profitability of beef and sheep production in areas where there is little opportunity for diversification out of beef or sheep or where an opportunity for increased development exists. These RAEC staff will encourage further development through education programs to improve profitability and business management in cow/calf development, cattle feeding and sheep developments. There will be four geographic administrative centres with a total of 17 staff. See Red on page 9A

Making your fences work

BY JIM REID

The keys to dependable and efficient use of Electric Fencing are simple and easy to understand. Follow this checklist to avoid some common mistakes and make the most out of your electric fencing.

1) High Power

There are electric fences designed for many different uses. A common source of problems is trying to power too much fencing with a fence controller designed for short distances and smaller areas. Remember, you need sufficient power to provide for the hardest conditions of very dry ground in summer, or very wet conditions when poor insulation or masses of wet grass and weeds can reduce the effectiveness of your fence. Electric Fence Controllers are available with the capacity to power 5 acres of fencing up to models which will power 400 to 500 acres. So choose a unit you can depend on, and don't expect too much from too little.

2) Good Grounding

Electric fences work by sending an electrical pulse out along the fence wire. The animal that touches the fence acts as the switch in the electrical circuit, enabling the electrical impulse to flow through the animal down to the ground and thus return, through the ground to the fence controller, to complete the circuit. Frequently, poor results with an electric fence are caused by not sufficiently grounding the fence controller. Especially in drought conditions attention must be paid to good grounding. Two or more ground rods driven deep into the soil 6 feet apart and connected together to the ground terminal of the fence controller may be required. In very dry conditions a ground wire strung along the fence will ensure a full power shock.

3) Good Insulation

Too many advertisements for "No Insulators Required" have misinformed farmers about the necessity of good insulation on their fences. Sure, you can staple a wire to dry cedar wood posts, hook up your electric fence controller and "Pres-to-it works", until it rains. Even in good conditions a well insulated fence will give better performance than an uninsulated one. In wet weather an uninsulated fence will leak so much power as to be no fence at all. That's when the cows get out. The best insulated fences are built on self-insulating fibreglas posts with heavy-duty porcelain insulators at the corner and end posts. If plastic "nail-on" type insulators are required, use only those which provide at least 3/4 of an inch surface distance between the fence wire and the post. This will minimize power loss when the wire and insulators are wet.

4) Good Electrical Conductivity

Transmitting electrical impulse on an electric fence follows the same rules as transmitting electrical power in your house wiring. The smaller the wire used, the less the power available at the other end. Small diameter wire increases the resistance, "electrical friction", and robs your fence of much of the power your fence controller is putting out. Experience has shown that best results are obtained using 12½ gauge steel wire on permanent multi-wire fences. Temporary fencing, using flexible plastic or fibreglas line with steel or aluminum filaments to carry the power, should never be relied on for maximum performance over long distances, although its convenience, and portability make it very suitable for short, moveable fences.

5) Good Advice

Information is available, FREE, from many sources on the hows and whys of building and using electric fences. Take your questions to an expert, someone with experience of using electric fencing in many applications. A few minutes good advice could save you hours of chasing cows.

Apple tree replanting program extended

The assistance program to help eastern Ontario apple growers replace trees that died from severe winter conditions has been extended for one year. Agriculture and Food Minister Dennis Timbrell announced recently.

The extension will take the program to March 31, 1986 at an estimated added cost of $350,000.

The existing $500,000 program, announced July 1983, gives rebates to growers to cover the cost of buying root stock to replace trees that dies in the 1980-81 winter. The stock must be bought from Ontario nurseries to be eligible for rebates, which are available to a maximum of $2,000 an acre for the 1982, 1983, 1984 and now 1985 planting years.

Nurseries, when grafting, need two years before the root stock is available to the industry. Because of the recent demand, there has been a shortage of significant varieties, like Macintosh, Empire and Northern Spy.

WOMEN IN RURAL LIFE

"Women in Rural Life - The Changing Scene" is the title of a study recently completed by the Ministry of Agriculture and Food. The study, conducted by Molly McGhee, former Director of the Home Economics Branch, is a result of 48 public hearings held across Ontario in 24 different locations. The study takes an in-depth look at women's roles in rural Ontario. It outlines many of the problems and frustrations women face in their struggle to be regarded as equal partners in the farm enterprise.

located in the following OMAF offices: Emo, New Liskeard, Chatham, Stratford, London, Cayuga, Walkerton, Markdale, Ferguson, Elmville, Lindsay, Stirling, Perth and Kemptonville. Staff will be specially trained to assist producers with performance testing, business management and ration formulation. RAEC staff will also organize the county or district clubs which play an integral part in the development programs. Membership in these clubs is compulsory to qualify for the grants.

The study lists many of the priority areas of concern to farm women along with over 30 recommendations dealing with these concerns.

A conference for farm women is being held June 21st in the Constellation Hotel, Toronto, to deal with many of the issues raised in the study. The conference, sponsored by OMAF is by invitation only.

Molly McGhee's report entitled "Women in Rural Life" is available for those interested by contacting the local offices of the Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

RED MEAT PLAN

The recently announced Red Meat Plan aimed at cattle and sheep producers is designed to provide some long term solutions to the problems faced by the red meat industry. The program has two thrusts. One is to improve the marketing system for both sheep and beef and the other is to develop programs which would improve efficiency and ensure the long term viability of the red meat industry. Of particular interest to local producers will be the program for cow-calf development designed specifically to increase efficiency in the cow-calf sector.

To participate in this program, producers will be required to take part in the county beef herd improvement programs. The basis of this program will be performance testing and will take the form of recording weaning weights and yearling heifer weights.

Incentives under the program include $25 per weaning weight and $20 per yearling weight for heifers. To qualify, producers must be able to identify all cattle and must be able to meet the general eligibility criteria which includes having at least 10 calves born within a 90-day period.

Producers who qualify and participate in the performance testing program, will also be eligible for a grant on capital facilities to cover two-thirds of the costs of materials up to a maximum of $1,500. Eligible costs will include materials for chutes, gates, pens, watering equipment and devices and fences. Eligible producers who annually participate in a veterinary supervised herd health program may also be eligible for a $100 rebate.

Other incentives include a $5 grant per calf where approved pre-conditioning programs are carried out, 2 free forage analyses annually plus $100 per year to producers who supply records suitable for enterprise analysis. The basic requirement is to maintain a Performance Testing Program through the local Beef Herd Improvement clubs which will be established across the province.

A somewhat similar program will be in place for

extension of the program," explained Timbrell, "is to give nurseries the time they need to grow sufficient root stock for re-planting which, in this case, will be 1985."

The apple tree crop is the best fruit crop in eastern Ontario.

"It's important that we restore production," the Minister said, "so we can replace imported apple juice with our own as well as increase domestic apple supplies."

MF introduces new field cultivator

It takes a versatile field cultivator to handle field work that includes weed control, seedbed preparation, chemical incorporation and summerfallowing.

Massey-Ferguson has introduced the MF 266 Field cultivator to handle all these tasks.

The new MF 266, featuring both mounted and pull-type models, is available in 47 different configurations to fit tractor power and field size as well as transport width and height restrictions.

Mounted, Pull-Type Designs

Mounted models of the MF 266 are available with eight, nine or 13-foot main frames with an overall working width of up to 25 feet. The three-bar design frame of the mounted unit is 67 inches deep from front to rear, giving ample room between shanks for trash flow-through.

Pull-type models are equipped with a well-braced four-inch square tubular steel hitch for strength and reliability. Center sections of 10, 15 or 17 feet are offered to provide flexibility and meet transport width requirements.

Frame depth is 89 or 96

inches depending on model. Overall working width ranges from nine feet 11 inches with rigid frame to 49 feet seven inches on the five-section folding pull-type models.

The smaller pull-type models have single main frame axles and economical crank-adjust gauge wheels on the wings. Larger models offer the option of tandem axles on both the main section and the wings with hydraulic control for convenience.

The double-folding, five-section wing frames on the larger sizes reduce transport height for safer movement and storage convenience.

For sheep producers, rebates amounting to 50 per cent of the cost of materials to a maximum of $5,000 will be available for those who qualify on chutes, gates, pens, handling facilities, scales and other equipment as approved. In addition, there will be assistance for forage testing, herd health, lamb grading and enterprise analysis.

New developments

Milk supply update and outlook

Total milk marketings were 1.7 percent higher in April, 1984 than they were in April, 1983. This marks the fifth consecutive month-over-month increase. Previous increases were 1.4 percent in January, 3.7 percent in February and 2.9 percent in March.

While total milk marketings for the balance of the dairy year (May to July) may be higher than for the corresponding period last year, it is anticipated that the rate will moderate as the end of the dairy year approaches.

The most recent estimate for provincial utilization of MSQ is 103.5 percent. This down slightly from the 104 percent reported last month.

The current estimate is based on the following factors:

- i) actual marketings for August, 1983 through April, 1984;
- ii) forecasting total milk supplies for the remainder of the dairy year to be up 1.7 percent;
- iii) assuming fluid sales for the current dairy year to be 1.5 percent higher than last year and;
- iv) assuming 100 percent utilization of cream quota.

As noted in the previous issues, the projected year-end provincial utilization may change in the coming months, depending on what steps producers take to bring production in line with quota holdings.

Two examples may help to put the situation into perspective.

a) If total marketings for the last three months of the dairy year were at the same level as last year, provincial MSQ utilization would be approximately 102.9 percent.

b) In order for provincial MSQ utilization to be 100 percent for the dairy year, total marketings for the remainder of the dairy year would have to decline by roughly 6 percent compared to the same period of a year ago.

(N.B. These figures are estimates and are based on the previously cited assumptions regarding fluid sales and cream quota utilization).

In view of the tight quota situation at the time, producers had been strongly advised over the past months to keep their production in line with their quota holdings. Given the slackening production trend over the past two months, it is becoming increasingly apparent, that the quota situation is loosening somewhat. While it is too soon to estimate the amount, it is beginning to appear there may be over-quota levy refunds on small amounts of over-quota production at the end of the year.

Producers therefore need not be overly concerned about shipping small amounts of over quota production. Producers in a position to ship large amounts of over-quota milk are still however strongly advised to bring their production more closely in line with their quota holdings.

The Fluid Market

On a sales day adjusted basis, fluid sales increased by 0.5 percent in April compared to April 1983. This follows increases of 4.0 percent in January, 1.5 percent in February and a 0.5 percent decline in March compared to the same month a year ago.

Through the first nine months of the current dairy year, sales day adjusted fluid sales are 2.0 percent higher than for the same period last year.

One Foot in the Furrow

By Bob Trotter

As Shakespeare would say, she is a harmless, necessary cat. We acquired her. She has, finally, adopted us, after more than a year here as a non-paying guest. Only in the last few weeks has she decided she likes us as well as our home.

Her name is, for cat's sake, Buppy. It was not intended that way.

She was a stray, found in town by a teen-aged daughter and brought home with ticks in her ears and fleas on her body. The lady of the house had decided many months ago that we would have no more pets. After innumerable felines and a dozen canines over the years, we had buried a

Greater Trash Flow and Obstacle Clearance

Twenty-four inch vertical clearance from the tip of the shovel to the underside of the frame allows more trash flow for non-stop operation, while seven-inch shank spacing is close enough for better weed control and thorough chemical incorporation.

The MF 266 features a 2 1/4-inch square welded tube frames for rigidity and long life. The 9/16-by-1 1/4-inch shanks on extension spring mounts, absorb shock loads and trip out to 16 inches high when contacting hidden obstacles.

Optional three- and four-bar mounted finishing harrows are available to give a final finish for a smooth seedbed. They feature coil teeth design with adjustable angle and 12-inch teeth for vibrating action to break clods and control stirring action for customer preference.

ago. But how do you say no to a tearful teenager who also loves animals?

The woebegone kitten was originally dubbed Buggy because she had so many bugs on her when she got here. But a grandchild learning to talk called her Buppy and Buppy she is.

A shivering, quivering ball of black fur for the first couple of weeks, she timidly took over the laundry room after her first traumatic visit to the vet for debugging and a couple of shots. Her appetite then—and now—was prodigious. Instead of one can of cat food a day, it was two until she got some flesh on her lean bones.

She continued skulking through the downstairs, skittish and frightened of everything that moved. She has extra long rear legs. When startled, she went straight up in the air, fur extended, until she looked like a porcupine. Her long, skinny tail became twice as round.

It was no contest. We protested. Demanded another home be found for her. Threatened to put her out and lock the door but she prevailed. We said we would keep her until she was healthy and fat. The teenager kept her indoors and had herself an indoor pet to add to the horses in the barn.

Buppy remained aloof for weeks, trusting no one. Even when the teenager left home, she was wary. She grew—wow, did she grow!

We thought she would go back to one can of cat food daily. No such luck. She still eats two a day; would eat three if given to her. She has grown a foot high with a coat as sleek as a black bear's and claws as long as a lynx's.

She roams the house as though we were the boarders and she, the owner.

It has been said that no one ever owns a cat and she is the perfect example of that truism. She has appointed herself as the watchcat of the house—won't even go outside in good weather.

She has taken over the spot in our hearts that was empty when the old dog and cat went to that big sandbox in the sky.

What is it about animals that makes mankind love them? It is because they never fall out of grace, I guess. They are what they are with no guile, no guilt, full of innocence and caprice.

They can be starved and beaten yet still give love to their masters, the agape love that asks nothing in return.

We love Buppy now and, in spite of our vows before she came about not having more pets in the house, she will have a home as long as she wants to stay here.

She is heading across the floor now, tail up high and ready to leap onto my lap for a brief second before wandering off to see the lady of the house.

Most egg prices stable

Farmers in most of Canada will see no change in their egg cheques in June.

The formula used by the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency to set the farm gate price for eggs, dictates stable prices for most egg producers this month. Farmers were paying more last month for interest charges and labor and less for feed, but not enough to trigger price shifts.

Meanwhile, farmers in Newfoundland and Quebec will receive two cents more a dozen, while Nova Scotia producers will see a one cent increase. The price for Manitoba farmers will drop a cent on each dozen large eggs produced.

Recent changes in the way the agency calculates prices spurred the shifts in these four provinces. These changes were necessary after federal and provincial partners in the national egg plan failed last month to approve changes to the pricing formula.

The agency establishes the price farmers receive for grade A large eggs at the start of each month using a government monitored cost of production formula. The price consumers pay is independently decided by wholesalers and retailers.

Holstein Association celebrates its centennial

(NC) — The Holstein Association of Canada is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year.

The anniversary provides an opportunity to reflect on the growth and development of this important breed and our dairy industry in general.

Most popular breed

When the first Holstein cows arrived in Canada in 1881, few realized how important this breed would become. Today, more than 85 per cent of the dairy cattle in our country are Holsteins.

A hundred years ago, there was some concern about the Holstein's value as a dairy animal. But, its popularity now is a reflection of the record of improvement, in terms of milk production, butterfat and protein, that has taken place since then.

Agriculture Canada has played a major role in the improvement of our Holsteins.

Our dairy Record of Performance (R.O.P.) program has been an important tool for Holstein breeders since 1905.

In the last 25 years alone, the number of Holstein cows on test has increased five times. Average milk production per year has increased nearly 40 per cent and butterfat by 37 per cent during that time.

The average Holstein cow on R.O.P. today produces 6,702 kg per year compared to 5,044 kg 25 years ago.

Demanding 'round the world

That efficiency not only helps hold the line on the price of dairy products for Canadians, it has also made our Holsteins a popular export commodity in demand around the world.

Exports in 1983 of registered Holsteins are estimated at 17,000 head. Canadian Holsteins last year were shipped to such countries as South Korea, Iran, Colombia, Morocco, Great Britain, France, Mexico and even the Netherlands where the breed originated.

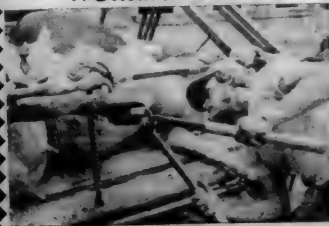

Exports of Holstein bull semen have also grown rapidly. Last year we sold about $8.8 million worth of Holstein semen to more than 50 countries.

It's all a reflection of the excellence of our Holsteins.

Wheat - Canada's golden commodity

(NC) - Ask Canadians what our most important food export is. They'll most likely answer wheat. And they'll be right.

Canada is a major wheat-exporting nation.

Last year we produced almost 27 million tonnes of wheat. We exported 80 per cent of it - more than $4.6 billion worth.

Canada's important role

Our role as a wheat-exporting nation is one reason why the International Wheat Council, an organization composed of the nine major wheat exporting nations, 40 importers, and the EEC, has decided to hold its 100th session in Canada, in Ottawa, on June 25th to 27th.

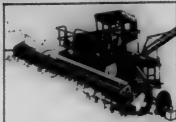

It's also fitting because Canada's long-standing participation in the I.W.C.

This organization meets twice yearly to solve world wheat problems. It also promotes an increase in international wheat products trade and ensures that exporters fulfill their food aid commitments.

There are numerous reasons why Canada is one of the leading wheat-exporting nations.

We have the land. And many people - researchers, producers, transporters and other industry people - all work together to ensure the farmers' efficiency.

Canada is also one of the world's leaders in wheat breeding. Researchers in my department are constantly working to find new varieties more adaptable to the extremes of Canadian temperature.

They are also trying to find wheat with the highest yield and that which is most disease resistant.

Agriculture Canada breeders have introduced three new bread wheat varieties in the past three years. These are Benito, Columbus and, most recently, Katopwa.

Benito matures earlier than other varieties. Katopwa yields and threshes well. Columbus introduced just two years ago, already represents more than eight per cent of the area seeded to bread wheat.

Columbus takes several extra days longer than Neepawa to mature, but its claim to fame is its special resistance to sprouting and weathering. This is very important to our export market, particularly after a wet fall.

As a major wheat producing and exporting nation, I am proud of our role in hosting the I.W.C.

Wheat is our number one food export, making it truly our golden commodity.

Eugene Whelan is Canada's Agriculture Minister.

New mobile mechanical service gives farmers an option

From the past ten years that Andy Engel has spent lying under cars, tractors and various types of farm machinery, he has come to realize that there is a great need within the community for a mechanic who is mobile and willing to work on these machines wherever they happen to quit. Therefore, Andy decided to develop his own clientele around Stirling.

His motto has become, 'Have Truck - Will Travel' and from his home on the Ridge Road beside Mumby Equipment Painting he can have his van loaded with torches and tools on most local job sites quickly and on short notice. The indoor facilities at the Mumby garage are also available to him for any type of major overhaul work that must be protected from the elements.

Andy also stresses that some of the smartest dollars that we can all afford to spend are on preventative maintenance. Many of the most costly repairs that he has worked on while employed with other firms have been directly related to the simple things such as not noticing a grease fitting on a machine until that particular bearing seizes up or failing to have proper lubricant levels in the drive trains at all times. His trained eye has often saved a customer "more than the cost of the call just with some simple adjustments that would have been a very big problem by the end of the season."

So, the next time you are standing in a scorching field with a machine that is not doing what it is supposed to be doing for you, there is an alternative to the float pulling in to take your machine away to be fixed. You can have it done right there before your eyes, and Andy doesn't mind you watching over his shoulder or lending a hand to speed things up.

Andy Engel is the area's newest "machine doctor" and he still makes house calls. With his van full of tools, torches, and electronic equipment, he hopes to fill a need felt by many farmers with his mobile repair service. Experience has taught him that poor maintenance can be a very expensive bad habit, and so he stresses that regular maintenance is the key to long term, low machinery operating costs.

Labour Minister Ramsay Announces New Minimum Wage Rates for Harvest Workers in Ontario

TORONTO -- Ontario Labour Minister Russell H. Ramsay announced recently that the hourly rate currently $3.50 will rise to $3.85 on June 1. This rate was last revised in April of 1982.

The student rate will rise to $3.00 on June 1, 1984 from the current $2.65 per hour. The student rate applies to persons under 18, working 28 hours per week or less during the school term or full-time during school holidays.

In announcing the new rates and increased lodging and meal allowances, which employers may deduct against the minimum wage, the minister noted that at the July-August peak of the 1983 harvest season, about 7,000 fruit, vegetable and tobacco growers in Ontario employed about 40,000 paid workers.

Hay exports hold promise for Ontario producers

A University of Guelph agricultural engineer is studying the use of force to make a "little hay" go a long way.

Dr. Walter Bilanski says by packaging hay into higher density bales, hay could become an important cash crop for export for Ontario farmers.

"Hay in its present form is too expensive to ship because it is too bulky. But if the bale density can be tripled, the cost of shipping hay to places like Saudi Arabia and Venezuela could be much lower."

In the study, funded by the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, Bilanski is investigating factors that affect the forage's ability to stick together.

He says of the variables under test, the total force applied to the baled hay and the hold time seem to have the greatest bearing on the hay's adhesive qualities. Grass length, grass mixture and bale shape are less important.

But the hay's moisture level is crucial, he says. "High density hay will spoil unless it is dried to a moisture level of about 10 per cent to 15 per cent — a percentage that is difficult to achieve under Ontario drying conditions."

Bilanski says artificial drying is a realistic possibility for Ontario hay producers, considering that the world price for hay is more than $200 per tonne. But more research must be done in this area, he says.

"One of the most promising methods involves pressing three bales into a one-bale size. But if moisture is too high, the hay's keeping properties are affected."

Retraining Centre looking for residents to join board

The Centre Hastings Retraining Centre is revitalizing its Board of Directors, and are looking for residents of Madoc to fill available positions. "About $150,000 to $180,000 of government money goes to main street in Madoc, and the last board did not have a single Madoc member," said Bill Irish of Thomasburg, one of the remaining members of the retraining centre board.

Irish has been asked by the centre to get some new faces on the board, particularly some from Madoc. So far he said a few prominent people from the area have volunteered to sit on the board, but they are mainly from out of town. He said they are looking for a total of 12 board members.

The board meets once a month. The Centre Hastings Retraining Centre is a non-profit organization designed to give mentally retarded (MR) adults a place to work, while at the same time giving programs to teach them life skills. Each student is put on a special program according to his or her needs.

The programs are funded by the Ministry of Community and Social Services (MCSS). Funding is broken up into two parts: Life Skills (funded 100 percent) and percent funding). CHRC is under the corporate umbrella of COPE (Constructive Opportunities for Progressive Employment).

With 80 percent funding for the workshop operation, the MR "clients" only have to come up with revenue to cover the other 20 percent of the budget. Irish said the 30 full time clients would only have to make $16,000 from the workshop operation.

There are 30 full time clients working at the centre now. An outline from CHRC said that approximately half of the trainees live in their natural homes and half live in homes which are funded for their care. There are five staff members working at the centre.

This year the CHRC has been contracted by the village to do work at the cemetery. Trainees will do work on the grounds, cut grass and any other maintenance required. That will bring about $3,000 in cash.

Temporary Manager-Director, Doug Dixon, said that they get various small contracts throughout the year. He said in the past, they have been hired to make educational folders for the board of education, produce wooden skinkers for a factory in Trenton and more.

"We haven't been able to land an ongoing contract so far. I think it is because of our location. Let's face it, the companies in Belleville are going to turn to ARC Industries. That's why the contract in the village is exceptional and we're pleased," said Dixon.

Other sources of revenue for the centre is furniture stripping and refinishing. Dixon said that it has been going well lately. They also sell wood products in the store out in front of the building on Durham Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell of the Lester B. Pearson Peace Park near Tweed were seen in Ottawa last week in front of the Civic Centre. While delegates and media were registering for the liberal convention, the Caldwell's were handing out information on the park.

Govier hired as arena manager

Harold Govier, former assistant manager of the Madoc and District Recreation Centre has now been named manager. Mr. Govier takes the place of Bill Lahey who left his position this June.

Govier was assistant to Lahey for the past four years. Arena Board Chairman Linda Matchett said he was an obvious choice because of his background experience and working knowledge of the arena.

In total, nine people applied for the advertised job and four were interviewed on June 12 at a special meeting.

The next step for the board will be to look for an assistant manager to fill the position opened by Govier. The board plans to advertise.

The next regular meeting of the Madoc and District Recreation Centre will be held June 20.

Minor Ball Lottery held

In the third draw of the $500 lottery sponsored by the Minor Ball Association, a local man from Bannockburn was the lucky recipient. The draw was made at the ball park at the completion of the walkathon by Stacie Johnston, daughter of president Mel Johnston of the Field and Recreation and Association.

This is the third degree and so far winners have been varied. Congratulations to Neil Wood's local store owner in Bannockburn, who was the holder of the winning ticket. His ticket was put back for the last three draws.

The next draw will be held on July 8, at the diamond at 8 p.m. There are still tickets left.

MTM Lottery Draw coming

The second MTM Hurricane Lottery Draw will be held Thursday, June 21, at 9 p.m. The draw will be televised on Community Cable 4 from Pigden's Studio.

The winner of last month's draw was Eljod Grey of Cooper. The monthly prize is $1,000.

Madoc Peepees now 5-0

Madoc Peepees made it five wins and no losses Wed., June 13, with a 6-0 victory over Tweed in Madoc.

Actually, it was all Steve Bancroft, who held Tweed Peepees to just one hit while striking out 18 batters. Adding to his pitching feat he went two for two at the plate, including a grand slam homer. Steve batted in five of Madoc's six runs. So the score could have read Bancroft defeats Tweed single-handedly.

Tim Quinnettville added a solid single in two trips at bat for Madoc, also.

Craig Morton struck out 11 Madoc hitters, while Ron Jackson gained Tweed's only hit coming in the last inning to spoil the "no hitter" attempt by Bancroft.

On June 13, the Kiwanis Governor for Eastern Canada and the Caribbean attended a dinner and made an address in Madoc. Governor Marc L. Letchford (left) and his wife Molly said they enjoyed their visit.

Women learn about fire

BY CAROL PARANUTIK

Do you know that the Madoc Township Fire Department has three trucks which together are capable of pumping 1000 gallons of water per minute and has 19 volunteer firemen? That was just a small part of what the members of Hart's "Riggs" Women's Institute learned at their regular monthly meeting last Tuesday evening at the WI Hall.

As guest speaker at the meeting, Grant Ketcheson gave an impressive and informative talk on the department. With the use of charts, posters and maps, Grant outlined the history of the brigade, noting that Jerry Morrison of Eldorado has been fire chief since its inception. Grant spoke enthusiastically about the most recent additions to the equipment, including a new fire hall, small "jaws of life", radio system, hose drying racks, fire float, ventilation fan (which is capable of completely changing the air in a house in three to four minutes) and the trucks themselves. He gave a detailed report on how a call is received and how the men are contacted in seconds with their portable beepers. Grant pointed out that every fireman goes through serious training. There is a practice or a meeting for films and lectures every two weeks. All firemen have taken an emergency first aid course in the beginning and they update with a short course every winter. He explained the coding system of locating fires and stressed that every household should know the code for their location. See WI page 11

May 19, 1974 - There has been some misunderstanding concerning the bingo to help pay for the arena compressor, and the attempt to raise funds to build a new community centre. Did you know that last winter the arena compressor broke down? Did you know that the village immediately stepped in and ordered the only available compressor in Canada? They did this because the old compressor was not worth repairing.

On Monday evening, May 6th, the Chapter Room of the Madoc OES was filled to capacity for the celebration of the 48th birthday of the Chapter.

The Merry Mixers Square Dance Club wound up the dancing season with a dance and pot luck supper on Wednesday evening, May 15th, at the home of Harry and Ruth Ashton.

The situation at April 8, 1974: Recent changes have been made to the Ontario Succession Duty Act. Some of these changes relate directly to agriculture and will affect estate planning for farmers.

The most important item is that succession duties will be forgiven on farming assets. This applies to farming assets only. Farming assets include: land, buildings, machinery, livestock, quotas, residence on a farm and shares in a farming corporation. To be eligible, these assets must be used for farming.

TWENTY YEARS AGO June 18, 1964 - Wallace Hawcock Robb, Canada's foremost poet on Indian folklore, was the moderator of the weekend discussion group seminar held at the Madoc Art Centre on June 12 to 14.

On Monday, June 22, at 7:30 p.m. an historical plaque commemorating the founding of Actinolite will be unveiled in that community. The ceremony will take place on the grounds of the United Church. This plaque is one of a series being erected throughout the province by the Department of Tourism and Information, acting on the advice of the Archaeological and Historic Sites Board of Ontario.

Farm organizations throughout the county of Hastings honored agricultural representative Sidney MacDonald and Mrs. MacDonald, Friday night, with a social evening and presentation in the Stirling Community building.

With the early dry spring weather, the cottage-minded persons have invaded the district with the result that sales are ahead of last year's total for this time of the year.

Quinte Mall undergoing $10 million expansion

Over 40 additional stores and services, and elaborate office complex, and hundreds of new jobs, will be the result of eight to 10 million dollar expansion, well underway now at Quinte Mall in Belleville.

Cambridge Leaseholds, a Canadian company based in Toronto, that owns, maintains and operates 37 shopping centres coast to coast, is expanding the Quinte Mall to meet the demand for greater selection and services. The expanded Quinte Mall will not only meet the changing demands of the Belleville area, but will also increase its drawing power from secondary markets from Oshawa to Kingston.

In addition, a two-storey office complex is being erected and is designed in such a way that expansion could easily be undertaken as the need arises. The Quinte Mall is now leasing offices in the complex, which will be integrated with the mall and house a cross-section of professionals. The target date for the opening of this office complex, which will be known as "100 Bell Boulevard" is early January, 1985. The retail expansion will be comprised of medium to high grade fashion stores for men and women, children's stores, shoe stores, a food court, services and more. The general contractor for the expansion is Eastern Construction, a Toronto firm that oversaw the construction of the original mall in 1971, and the first addition in 1977. Bill Thompson, General Manager of Quinte Mall, says, "We are on schedule with the expansion, and the public can look forward to its opening sometime in late October".

Improvement and modernization of the existing mall is also in progress. Revamped seating areas and fountains, skylights that will allow more natural light, new plants, and exterior changes, are all part of the general facelift. In anticipation of more shoppers, parking will be increased by over 650 spaces, making a total of just under 2,800 parking spaces. Plans for improved access to the mall have also been designed and will be implemented in the future. Thompson says, "reception of the whole project has been great. The public will have a larger centre with better selection and services, and a lot more parking than most centres offer". Perhaps even more important in these times of high unemployment, the expansion at the Quinte Mall will create hundreds of new jobs for people in the area.

Belleville harbor to be serviced with grant

The berthing which accommodates approximately 76 recreational vessels in Belleville harbor will be serviced with water and power under the federal government's special recovery program, the Honorable Romeo LeBlanc, Minister, Public Works Canada announced June 11th.

This project is one of more than 100 projects to be funded under the $2.4 billion Special Recovery Capital Projects Program. All of these will have dual benefits, contributing to economic recovery and employment over the next four years and also putting in place key facilities, equipment or services that will enhance economic and regional development opportunities for the private sector in the balance of this decade and beyond.

This $65,850 contract was awarded by Public Works Canada on behalf of the Department of Fisheries and Oceans to Bill Bailey of Belleville Limited, the lowest of six bids received in response to a public tender call.

Work will involve the installation of water and power lines and electrical outlets at the berths. The project is a continuation of the general harbor improvements started last summer under the special recovery program.

Plans and specifications were prepared by Robert G. McEwen and Associates Ltd., Belleville, and the project manager is J.J. Finery, Public Works Canada, Toronto. Work is scheduled for completion in the late summer of 1984.

Tweed's Strawberry Social

Summer arrives officially on Thursday June 21, and once again it brings with it Tweed's Strawberry Social. This annual event serves as the main fundraiser for the Tweed Festival '84, the town's Bicentennial Celebration.

The social also features several local artists previewing their work which will be displayed during the main artshow and Festival Day July 28. Artists such as Molly Bramley, Debra Tate-Sears, Stephanie LeMan, Doug Robinson and others will be available to talk to people about their work.

Hoping to boost attendance at this years social the Tweed Festival Committee has decided to sell a limited number of advance tickets. Last year over 200 people attended and the committee hopes to top this figure.

Tickets are $3 for adults and $1.50 for children and seniors. They are available from several Tweed merchants or any committee member.

Proceeds from the social will go towards organizing a full day of music, children's entertainment, corn roasts and even a concert band show on Saturday, July 28. At noon, Tweed's new main street will be officially re-opened and merchants will again participate with a sidewalk sale.

For the price of one ticket you can enjoy fresh strawberries with real whipped cream, see an artshow and support community events.

Think on these things

BY ZELLA L. MYERS

Father, so many times we fuss about such little things. Irritations so small they do not deserve our time or energy.

When you have given us indescribable volumes of beauty

—The burst of morning dawn,

A child's moist kiss fresh with spontaneous love,

The cool, quiet depth of a mountain path,

The sudden light and warmth in a friend's eyes...

And then, Lord, we have the exotic privilege of reading

—Your Word

And speaking with You;

And the knowledge that You hear and care.

God, when these distractions come

And our mouths open to complain

Or our hearts agitate with negative thinking

Stop us, Father-God

And bring to the every corner of our souls

Your Words:

Whatsoever things are true,

Whatsoever things are honest,

Whatsoever things are just,

Whatsoever things are pure,

Whatsoever things are lovely,

Whatsoever things are of good report

...Think on these things.

And then we'll know for sure

That what You've said is true

And then, in You, Father-God,

We will rejoice evermore!

This year's Madoc Bantam D's are gearing up for a hot season. Until they start in the OASA Bantam D Play-downs, they will play in the Hastings-Addington

The village with the longest name is Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrndrobwllllandysiliogogoch. The 59 letters of this British town mean "The church of St. Mary in a hollow of white hazel, near to the rapid whirlpool, and to St. Tisilio church, near to a red cave."

Alma Blackburn.

The bus report was given by Costan Paraniuk. The trip to see the Queen is July 17, leaving the apartments at 12 o'clock to go to Kingston.

Alma Blackburn installed the officers for the Sr. Citizens Club for next year commencing in September. The Senior Citizens were treated to a delicious supper of Kentucky Fried Chicken, potato wedges and coleslaw by the Senior Citizen's Bus Conveners.

The program was led by Annie All. Beta Alore read a poem for George about "Fathers". Ruby Hamilton's grandson David favored the club with guitar and song with "Flowers for Mamma" and "I wouldn't

Prince Edward Players choose historic home

The Old Danforth Road built in 1801 by Asa Danforth was built to connect York (Toronto) to Kingston. It follows the same route as Highway 35, through Prince Edward County starting at Carrying Place and ending at Stone Mills, Glenora. This was a thriving community in the 1800s with a plaster mill, Little Giant Water Wheel Foundry, moulding mill, hotel and the flour and carding mill which was operated by Hugh MacDonald, father of Sir John A. MacDonald from 1825 to 1856.

It is in this historic building that the Prince Edward Players have chosen to make their summer home. Keeping the original structure in tact the group has utilized their space accordingly and the effect is a dramatic combination of warmth and effective setting.

The Prince Edward Players are Eastern Ontario's Premier Dinner Theatre Company. During the winter months they travel shows to major hotels in Trenton, Belleville and Kingston. The group also performs for service groups and private parties in smaller communities.

The Glenora Mill Summer Theatre has given the players a home in Prince Edward County where as well as performing they have unlimited rehearsal space. They will continue to provide excellent theatrical performances to the community at large.

During the summer the comedies that are planned are: June 8, 9 - Mind with the Dirty Man; June 15, 16 -

Buttons; June 22, 23 - Buttons; June 29, 30 - Buttons; July 6, 7 - Barefoot in the Park; July 13, 14 - Who's On First; July 20, 21 - Who's On First.

Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. and the Mill is located just east of the Fisheries, past the Wheelhouse View Restaurant and the Ferry Boat. Come and enjoy a full night of entertainment. For further information call 599-2842.

Herbal teas are gaining popularity. Many people are looking for natural, refreshing, low calorie beverages that do not contain caffeine. Some herbal teas fit that description.

Medical folklore gives herbal remedies a magical reputation. Herbs were our first medicines because that was all we had. In the early part of the 20th century scientific study eliminated ineffective herbs. Other herbs that have medicinal value have gradually been replaced by synthetic compounds that do a better job. Scientific research continues to give us useful compounds such as chymopapain from the papaya plant and digitalis from the foxglove plant.

There are many books extolling the benefits of herbs and herbal teas. Many of these sources claim that herbal teas can cure or prevent everything that could possibly ail you, all without side effects. Remember, if it sounds too good to be true, it probably is. Read closely, there is probably a disclaimer to protect the author from legal suits should you become ill following his advice. This should be your warning to carefully evaluate the information.

Herbal teas - are they safe?

Since herbal teas have been used for centuries all over the world, doesn't that mean they are safe? While some herbal teas, such as mint and rosemint, offer delicious alternatives to coffee and tea, not all herbal teas are safe nor should any herbal tea be consumed in large amounts over a long period of time.

CAUTIONS

1. Don't try to treat yourself for medical problems with herbal tea. You are making several dangerous assumptions. You assume you know what's wrong, the type and amount of tea to drink, and that there are no side effects. A 25-year-old woman consulted her gynecologist because of abnormal menstrual bleeding. The case was puzzling until it was learned that she had taken a tonic of herbal tea containing tonka beans, melioli and sweet woodruff. These are sources of coumarins which reduce the ability of the blood to clot.

2. If you gather your own herbs to brew into tea, be sure they are correctly identified. An elderly couple in Washington, D.C., were recommended comfrey tea for their arthritis by a health spa. The wife picked what she thought was comfrey and made tea for lunch. They both died within 24 hours. The tea was brewed from foxglove, the source of digitalis, a powerful heart drug. Some comfrey can contain pririolizidine alkaloids which can cause liver damage and cancer in rats. Therefore, comfrey is not recommended for internal use as in tea.

3. If you are allergic to ragweed you should stay from Chamomile and Yarrow tea. A 35-year-old woman, allergic to ragweed, suffered a severe reaction after just a few sips of Chamomile. Ragweed and Chamomile are from the same plant family.

4. Some herbal teas contain toxins that affect the central nervous system or cause death. A young man who drank a tea from jimsonweed suffered hallucinations and became totally disoriented.

5. When you are trying to reduce your caffeine intake remember, not all herbal teas and beverages are caffeine free. Read the label. Herb or spice blends, that contain coffee, black tea, green tea, mate, kola, cacao, and guarana have caffeine.

6. Some herbal teas are severe diuretics or strong laxatives. Three young women bought senna tea as a substitute for ordinary tea and coffee. They suffered such severe diarrhea after drinking just a few cups that they required emergency

Strawberry Special

What better way to herald the summer than with plenty of fresh Ontario strawberries. This year, prolong the celebration! Preserve Ontario's strawberry season by freezing the berries, or by making them into tantalizing jam. Here are a few hints to make that easier.

Freezing Ontario Strawberries

Sort, wash in cold water, then hull.
Dry Sugar Pack

Place whole or sliced strawberries in a shallow bowl. Sprinkle with sugar. Stir briefly and gently until sugar is dissolved.

Three-quarter cup sugar to four cups sliced strawberries or one-half cup sugar to four cups whole strawberries.

Place prepared strawberries in air-tight freezer containers or bags. Remove as much air as possible. Seal container.

With Sugar

Place whole strawberries in a single layer on shallow trays. Freeze. Package frozen strawberries in freezer containers.

Label with contents, quantity and freezing date. Freeze immediately.

Frozen this way, the strawberries will keep best for 18 months.

The fresh flavor and firm texture of strawberries are best maintained by freezing sliced strawberries in sugar.

Thaw frozen strawberries in the refrigerator, at room temperature, or submerge frozen container in lukewarm water.

For best results, serve thawed strawberries when still slightly frozen.

STRAWBERRY JAM OLD-FASHION 'D STYLE
4 pounds Ontario strawberries (12 cups prepared)
4 pounds granulated sugar (9 cups)

Rinse, then hull strawberries. Put them into a pot over very gentle heat. Press the berries against the sides of the pot with a wooden spoon to extract the juice. They should be soft in about 10 to 15 minutes. Add the sugar slowly and stir until it is dissolved. Bring the jam to a fast rolling boil and boil it for exactly 10 minutes, stirring frequently. Let the jam stand for about five minutes, skim and stir so that the berries will be evenly dispersed through the jam, then pour into hot sterilized jars. Cover at once with one-eighth inch hot paraffin. Cool, then cover with tight lids. Makes about six pints.

FREEZER
STRAWBERRY JAM
1 quart Ontario strawberries (1 1/4 cups prepared)
4 cups sugar
2 tbsp. lemon juice
1/4 bottle liquid fruit pectin

Rinse, then hull strawberries. In a bowl, thoroughly crush strawberries, one layer at a time. Measure 1 1/4 cups into a large bowl. Add sugar, mix well, then let stand 10 minutes. Add lemon juice and liquid fruit pectin, and continue stirring three minutes. (A few sugar crystals will remain). Ladle quickly into glass jars or plastic containers (up to two cups capacity each). Cover at once with tight lids. Let stand at room temperature until set (may take up to 24 hours). Store in freezer. Makes about five cups. May be refrigerated for up to two or three weeks.

Ivanhoe Institute

Mrs. George Wood opened her home for the last meeting of the summer until September. Our president opened the meeting in the usual way, with the Ode and Mary Stewart Collect. Roll call was answered by 12 members. "What You Could Learn About the Bicentennial". Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Moved by Norma McMillan and secretary Tena Trunman, that all bills be paid. Thank you notes were read and reports given by the standing committee. Mrs. George Wood gave a report on the District Annual held at Carlo. On July 29 at 1 o'clock, several events will take place at Ivanhoe Hall put on by the Ivanhoe Institute. Collection was gathered and Pennies for Friendship.

Mrs. Peter Rooper gave us some highlights of the "United Empire Loyalist". A skit was put on by Mrs. Russel Sills and Mrs. Peter Rooper entitled, "A New Beginning," which was enjoyed by all.

Tena Punman thanked Laura for opening her home and Laura and her assistants served a nice lunch.

Use caution with herbs

medical treatment.

7. You should not give herbal teas to infants. Allergic or toxic reactions may occur. Chamomile or fennel tea are not recommended for colic.

8. Use herbal teas in moderation. Even commonly consumed foods contain toxins that, if eaten in extremely large amounts, could lead to serious health problems.

9. During your pregnancy use herbal teas with caution. There is very little known about the safety of herbal teas during pregnancy.

10. Do not take your medication with herbal teas. It may enhance or negate the effects of the drug.

Fire protection discussed at WI meet

Among other interesting pointers the speaker gave was the importance of having fire extinguishers and smoke detectors (with regularly checked batteries) in every place of residence or business. The Class ABC fire extinguisher is the kind to purchase, since they are good for almost any kind of fire. 'PPPS' - pull pin, point nozzle, press handle and spray - is all you have to remember to operate an extinguisher. Grant spoke about EDITH - Exit Drill In The Home - and several other survival techniques. In conclusion, the speaker stressed that every child should be taught to dial 0 and ask the operator for Zenith 66660 or just simply ask for the fire department in case of emergency.

After a short question period, Lamoine Foley made a presentation to the speaker in appreciation for his enlightening talk.

During the business portion of the meeting, Elsie Franks gave a report of the District Annual which she and eight members) attended in May, thanking the branch for allowing her to be a delegate.

Elsie Vierich, who had attended the Officer's Conference in Waterloo, expressed her thanks to the Branch for sponsoring her and gave an excellent report on the business covered there. At the same time, Elsie also thanked the ladies for the gifts she and Helen Trotter had received for leading the short course, 'More Cents Than Dollars'.

A short discussion was held on the upcoming strawberry social. Due to the later harvest of berries, the date has been postponed to Wednesday, July 4th. It will take place in the WI Hall from 7 to 9 p.m. An executive meeting will be held at the home of Pearl Foley on Wednesday, June 20, at 7:30 p.m. to make plans for this.

Several members noticed the top soil and flowers placed at the front of the hall by the President, Linda Watson and PRO Carol Parankuk recently. It was decided to purchase more flowers to complete the project.

After some discussion with the guest speaker, it was unanimously agreed that the women of the Institute would conduct a door-to-door canvass of the immediate area to ensure that every household has a telephone sticker bearing the number for the fire department and their individual location identification code.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, September 18. Members are asked to note the change of date in their programs.

Bicentennial service to be held

A service of praise and thanksgiving involving members of the churches of Madoc and surrounding townships will be held on Sunday, June 24, at 2:30 p.m. in Trinity United Church in Madoc.

This event is part of the Bicentennial observances planned by the Village of Madoc. Bicentennial Committtee. There will be a choir of children, a combined choir of a number of local churches, hymns well known to all, a story of the experience of early settlement in this area, a soloist, a male quartet and lessons read by the reeves of the village and townships. A number of the local clergy will also be taking part.

Originally, the service was to be held as an outdoor event, but in order to provide a special musical offering it was decided to hold the service in one of the churches. The people of Trinity United are graciously being host on the community event.

Turner: the saviour from election wipe out

Ottawa - It's just after 2 p.m. Saturday June 16, the day and time the country and the 5400 assembled Liberals have been waiting for far longer than the three months it has taken for the official race for the rose.

Balloting is about to begin and up in the stands John Napier Turner, the prince in exile through the years since his resignation from the House of Commons in 1976, emerges from the lobby, making his entrance into the hall. Down through his supporters comes Turner to thunderous applause and chants of Win the West.

But wait. Down front, a Turner organizer frantically waves off both the candidate and his troops.

Turner's early. Front and centre party president Iona Campagnola hasn't quite finished giving delegates instructions on voting, and Turner doesn't get everyone's attention.

Back goes Turner, emerging from the stands a few minutes later to thunderous applause and chants of Win the West.

Ah yes, the now legendary Turner miscue.

His mistakes though make little, if any difference, to his supporters. They believe he will save them, from what even three months ago looked to be, certain electoral annihilation at the hands of Brian Mulroney's Tories.

There were few of the elements of last year's Progressive Conservative Party leadership convention at the Liberal Convention: none of the intrigue, none of the intensity, none of the bitterness and none of the excitement.

The best the Liberals could muster, was the surprise endorsement of Turner by Cabinet veteran Cape Breton's Alan McEachen. But even McEachen's jump to Turner, coming just as the voting booths opened, had the air of stage management and the politics of overkill. Senior Quebec member finance minister Marc Lalonde was said to be waiting to make the same walk, if Turner's only real opponent Jean Chretien did well enough to be a serious threat.

Down on the floor of the convention, both the media and the delegates did their best to pretend it was a race.

time for a relaxed interview with Peterborough riding president Jeff Leal, who says Turner will help the party in the west because he supports giving the west, and all regions more power. Perhaps, he says, not institutionalized power, but more power all the same.

He says the key argument that he's pitched to local Chretien supporters is that a Turner/Barry MacDoughal (the nominated Liberal candidate in the riding) pairing will do better than one teaming MacDoughal with Chretien.

His biggest argument is that Turner will do well with disenchanted Liberals, Tories and New Democrats. Fellow delegate Dave Morton says that's because Turner is the real candidate of change, adding that local P.C.'s are known to be most worried by the prospect of squaring off against Turner.

Leal points out that of all the candidates only Turner has turned the fear of Tories, the much talked about need to move right in the campaign, around and accused the Tories of moving left to try and counter the Liberal position. Leal likes that.

A little later candidate MacDoughal chats for awhile about his support for Turner. He says rightly or wrongly Turner is seen as the candidate of change, something he thinks will spill over into the federal election MacDoughal predicts will be called for late August.

He points out, in response to doubts about Turner being the real candidate of change, that the movers and shakers of the party who supported Turner he didn't move to them.

With that he excuses himself, a good hour before the first ballot results are announced, saying he's going to line up for the next round of voting MacDoughal's one Turner supporter who figures his man will win but not by much and not on the first ballot.

Just before the first ballot results are announced Leal predicts Turner will be close, "within a hundred" votes of winning and that he'll finish things off on the second ballot.

Leal, like most others on the floor, could see what had been obvious all day. Only the most naive of Chretien's supporters would look you in the eye and say they would win.

While most of us got to watch the Liberal leadership convention from the quiet of our livingroom, Madoc Review Editor Steve Gombos and Lakefield Chronicle Editor Roger Gillespie covered from the floor of the Ottawa Civic Centre. Here's a bit of what they saw and heard.

Greg Metcalf of Pontiac convention. His move was not too popular with Turner supporters.

Before the first ballot, Mylks said she knew it would be close, but didn't lose faith. But after getting the first ballot results, and finding out that Don Johnston was staying in the race, she was sure Turner would win it on the second.

Party never stopped at Civic Centre

Friday afternoon, hours before the candidates' speeches were to begin, Lansdowne Park, site of the 1984 Liberal Leadership Convention was a hotbed of activity.

The Turner tent drew the biggest crowd, where delegates and media participated in mass food and beer consumption.

At the same time, group leaders for the Chretien and Turner supporters were organizing frenzied cheering sessions on the steps of the Civic Centre.

Starting early in the afternoon, Turner gofers were loading boxes of hamburgers and chicken burgers and driving them shuttle in three-wheeler bikes to the cheering delegates on the steps. If,

Chretien gets shaft, waiting to be wooed

By now the excitement, pain and tears of the Chretien camp will be a dull but ever-present echo for more than a thousand delegates who supported him in Saturday's Liberal leadership convention in Ottawa.

To the utter shock of near-by Turner supporters, a delegate from Pontiac, Ontario switched from John Turner to Jean Chretien before voting on the first ballot started.

"I switched after last night... Why didn't Turner say 'I love Trudeau' last night?" said an elated Greg Metcalf.

But Metcalf was not the beginning of a trend. Most delegates in the Turner camp were solidly opposed to Chretien.

At 2:20 on Saturday afternoon the Civic Centre went wild when Alan McEachen turned up to throw his support in with John Turner. As it turned out Roberts, Munro and Whelan joined Chretien.

It was obvious by then that the Roberts crowd and Chretien crowd were friendly and it looked as if it was only a matter of getting the first ballot over before they would go to Chretien.

Denise Mylks, delegate from Hastings, Frontenac, Lennox and Addington Liberal Association said she was for Chretien all the way. She said she definitely felt that Chretien had a chance to win.

"Boy, he was good," said Mrs. Mylks. "I felt on Friday that if it went to three ballots then Chretien would win."

Before the first ballot, Mylks said she knew it would be close, but didn't lose faith. But after getting the first ballot results, and finding out that Don Johnston was staying in the race, she was sure Turner would win it on the second.

"I was let down. I thought he would do better," said Mylks. "But I'm not too disappointed on the outcome because I like Turner, but I was for Chretien."

Former federal candidate for the Hastings, Frontenac, Lennox and Addington Liberal Association Ron Vastokas, Madoc, was for Turner all the way.

"I think for Turner now, it would be to give Chretien a good job -- deputy prime minister would be a good move on his part," said Vastokas.

Vastokas felt that if Chretien were offered the job of deputy prime minister publicly he would take it. But in private it may be different.

"People's egos play a big role in these events, whatever their political color," said Vastokas.

Vastokas thinks that Chretien was definitely treated a heavy blow last Saturday after losing his bid for the party leadership. He said Chretien may now be waiting to be "wooed" because he had a lot of delegate support and a lot of them are "not overwhelmed" by Turner.

When asked if he thought Trudeau should have made a speech after Turner was elected, Vastokas said: "I felt he could have said something about the party or something. I don't know why he missed that opportunity -- it could have been something to do with the fact that he and Turner are not on the best terms. All in all, it was very friendly -- at least publicly."

One of the most interesting developments of the convention was the fact that Don Johnston remained on his own. Some say he is planning to follow in Turner's footsteps. At the 1968 Liberal Leadership Convention, John Turner stayed in the race and ended in the last ballot with 195 delegates, so he formed the club that now is the nucleus of his present organization. Johnston finished on the second ballot with 198 votes.

for some reason, the progress of the shuttle was delayed for an instant, a box of greasy food was picked completely clean by ravenous onlookers.

It wasn't so much the fact that everyone was starving, or that the food was particularly good -- it was the fact that the food was FREE.

The people who were stultifying themselves for the early part of the afternoon on hamburgers and chicken were soon watching smarter folk who lined up for the fish and shrimp dinners being pumped out from the smoky Johnston camp next door.

Early in the afternoon, the Munro camp was nearly deserted. Heaping plates of oranges sat on tables in

Lakefield Men's Softball Results

Greg Davey of Bowes & Cocks hit his second home run of the season last week, but had to be the most gratifying of the two as he was the first player this season to hit a grand slam to lead his club to a 15-11 defeat over first place Switzer Sports.

Davey hit the grand slam in the first inning, as Bowes & Cocks scored six runs in the high scoring game, and although Switzer threatened, Bowes never relinquished. Bowes Rod Harris was the winning pitcher and went two for four at the plate. Jack Sullivan was the losing pitcher. Bruce Switzer hit a two run home run in their part of the first inning, while Rob Gilders went two for three at the plate.

In the nightcap Dixie Lee came from behind scoring four runs in the seventh inning to defeat On The Spot 6-4. Dave Yale was the winning pitcher, while Grant Shewen took the loss. The win moved Dixie Lee into sole possession of fourth place, as both teams were tied for that spot before going into the game.

On Tuesday night the newly sponsored Blakes IGA, who replaced the Lakefield Legion, lost to Home Hardware by a count of 8-6. The loss ended the Blakes winning streak at two games. Blakes fought back from a 5-0 deficit, but Home Hardware scored three runs in the final inning for the win. Al Hawkins was the winning pitcher, while Scott Hill hit two doubles and two singles for home. Tom Birch and Dave Carswell had two hits each for Blakes, while Fred Sullivan lost his first start of the season.

In the late game, Bowes & Cocks hammered On The Spot 12-4. Bowes who ended up in first place last season before losing in the finals to Dixie Lee, are finally starting to show their form from 1983. Greg Coyle hit his third home run of the season, while Greg Davey continues his hot hitting with two doubles and a single. Brother Gord Davey was the winning pitcher, while Grant Shewen took the loss.

On Thursday night, Switzer Sports downed Dixie Lee 7-3 after fighting back from an early 2-0 deficit. Kevin Gilders got the win giving up nine hits, four of those to veteran George Payton. Randy Traynor took the loss, giving up just seven hits.

Home hardware made it back to back wins over Blakes IGA in the second game this time by a 9-3 count. Dave Pind went three for four for Home Hardware as Doug Hill was the winning pitcher. Francis O'Brien took his first loss of the season for Blakes, while Dave Carswell went two for three at the plate.

Next Thursday night Switzer Sports will be looking for revenge against Bowes & Cocks in the late game, while Home Hardware will face the struggling On The Spot in the 7 p.m. match-up.

Midgets travel to Norwich

The Havelock Midgets, competing in the ORSA Championship Tournament, will travel to Norwich on Saturday, June 23rd.

A steady downpour on Sunday forced postponement of the double-knock-out tournament until Saturday.

Havelock won the first two games on Saturday, June 16. Havelock doubled up on West Lorne, 6-3, behind a 13 strike out performance by pitcher Craig Smith. Scoring runs for Havelock were: Jeff Stewart, and Troy Ward, with two, while Ken McGee and Alan Wilde each crossed the plate once.

Later at 7:30, Havelock clobbered Petrolia, 7-1, as Smith fanned seven batters, gave up only one hit and didn't allow one run. Sean Ouingdyke pitched the last two innings and gave up two hits and none run. Jim Parceld drove in four runs, while Stewart scored four runs. Also scoring were Smith, McGee and Ward with one run apiece.

Havelock must now take on Javistock on Saturday morning at 10:30.

Also, Havelock played both games without their starting shortstop and second baseman, and no second year Midget players.

Property Pointers - By Alex Winkler LL.B.

John Ward has asked me to comment on the lawyer's function as part of the Property Management Team. At the outset, it is important to understand that the sale or purchase of property in Ontario must be completed pursuant to a written agreement. This written agreement is a contract and the person signing that contract becomes bound by the terms contained in it. In addition, the purchase and sale of property, and the uses of property in today's times are highly regulated by the province, local counties, townships and municipalities. As a consequence, a multitude of various regulations and statutes govern ownership of property. Specifically, it is the function of the lawyer in any real estate transaction to inform and represent his client at all stages of the process.

The first stage, involves the individual contacting the lawyer to obtain an understanding of the implications of signing a contract, to ask the questions that he or she should be concerned about in acquiring property and to obtain an understanding of the lawyer's function in representing them in the process.

The lawyer's primary function in representing his client is to facilitate the client in achieving his or her goal and being satisfied with his or her bargain. When a lawyer has an opportunity to have a prior consultation with a client, a client can be advised about the issues of zoning, planning, survey, potential costs, potential income tax problems, implications of mortgages and many other aspects, some of which are general factors present in all real estate matters and others which are to that client's needs.

In addition, the client achieves an understanding of the importance of reviewing the Agreement of Purchase and Sale with the lawyer before signing it, to ensure that the client's understanding of what he is buying and what he is paying, is consistent with what is in the agreement. The standard Agreement of Purchase and Sale used by real estate agents in Ontario contains some twenty-three paragraphs and each one of those paragraphs has consequences to the parties of the contract. Unfortunately, all too often people execute an agreement without really understanding the legal effect of those paragraphs on their transaction. Quite often problems in the completion of a real estate transaction arise from the client's misunderstanding or assuming that certain things are present in the agreement when in fact they are not.

Upon the receipt of an executed agreement, the lawyer then performs his second function in the transaction, and that is to investigate all aspects of the title. He must conduct all necessary searches with the various government agencies involved in land to ensure that there are no liens, claims or rights on the property other than those which his client is prepared to accept. At all times the lawyer must ensure that his client is protected and that the client receives the bargain for which he has negotiated. Often during this aspect of the transaction, many further negotiations and discussions may occur between the parties in order to complete the transaction.

Upon completion of the transaction, the lawyer's final function is to assemble the documentation and to provide for his client the appropriate documents, and in the case of a purchase, his certificate of title. This certificate of title forms the major portion of the lawyer's fee when acting for a purchaser and it constitutes a guarantee by the lawyer, backed by The Law Society Insurance Fund, to his client outlining what the client has bought, the liabilities, debts or liens that the property may be subject to, a summary and explanation of the services rendered and the lawyer's findings in that regard and provides finally, an accounting of the receipt and payment of monies received from the client.

The buying and selling of real estate is probably the most significant financial transaction that most individuals will be involved with in their lifetime. It is surprising to think how many of these individuals will go ahead and sign an Agreement of Purchase and Sale without having a complete understanding of what they are doing. Such individuals would never consider undertaking their own car repair or fixing their own electrical appliances, but these same individuals think nothing of signing an Agreement of Purchase and Sale for $60,000 or $70,000 with implications involving long-term debt obligations that they may never resolve in their lifetimes without the benefit of professional expertise.

In the buying and selling of real estate, each professional brings to that transaction his own particular expertise and knowledge for the benefit of the client. In a transaction where the parties have obtained their bargain, the greatest satisfaction will result.

Sixth season

Arbor summer comedy could hold key to future

If you want to make money in the Kawartha area in the summer time, you sell frozen yoghurt cones, or maybe set up a live bait shop. You don't start a theatre company. At least, not unless you're a bit of a gambler.

Arbor Theatre's artistic director, John Plank, strikes you as being a risk-taker, but one who realizes that, if he wants to stay in the game, occasionally the deck has to be stacked in his favour.

So, each of Arbor's six seasons has been productions one would find on any summer stock program (a label Arbor has consciously avoided using). But along with the shows with Obvious Commercial Appeal, plays like Last of the Red Hot Lovers and Dames at Sea, we've seen productions of A Life in the Theatre, Equus, Twelfth Night and The Caretaker. Not exactly straw hat circuit fare; it seems that the businessman has to make room for the artist.

It is a formula that so far seems to have worked. Not only is Arbor Theatre still existing where others have disappeared, (who remembers the Peterborough Summer Theatre?) every year has seen a steady increase in audience size, from 10,000 in 1979 to over 20,000 last year.

Which isn't to say there haven't been problems along the way. Like most arts organizations are trying to exist on diminishing arts funding, and faced with rising prices, Arbor is having financial problems.

At first glance, this year's slate of plays seems to be a concession to the economic situation, reversing Arbor's trend to take a few changes. All four plays this season are comedies and, after all, people love a good laugh, so what could be safer than comedy?

One wonders if Mr. Plank's board of directors, eyes on the purse strings, had a hand in making this decision. But no, Plank isn't prepared to relinquish his power yet. He still believes in the only system of having a strong artistic director at the top and the play selection was largely his. Why then all the comedies? Mainly, it seems, because the idea of an all comedy season was different. "You'll notice," Plank says, "we don't like to repeat ourselves."

And when you examine the titles individually, it turns out that not all can be considered safe choices.

The only title that will be instantly recognizable is The Importance of Being Earnest. A little over-produced perhaps, but still a challenge to do and, Plank says, Arbor's version promises to be of a calibre whose equal would be hard to find anywhere in the country. (Look to this production for the return of actor Bernard Hopkins, who will play Lady Bracknell).

Banking on the success of last year's production of Alan Ayckbourn's How the Other Half Loves, Plank has chosen to do the British playwright's. Relatively Speaking which will open the season this Wednesday. Plank will handle the directing chores on both of the above.

Associate artistic director Don Shipley (soon to take over from Robin Phillips at London's Grand Theatre) will direct the other two selections which promise to be a hit more off the wall. First of all, there is We Can't Pay! We Won't Pay!, by the Italian playwright Dario Fo. The play which has been successfully produced all over the world, is a satire on consumerism and tells the story of two housewives who take advantage of an anti-inflation demonstration to make off with a load of groceries. This production is being sponsored by Peterborough Square and Arbor must be congratulated on this marketing coup: imagine a merchant's association endorsing a play in which the heroines are shop-lifters!

The musical Last Call, appropriately the last show of the year, is the company's true wild card. First of all, it is Canadian, which isn't to imply that the popular theatre audience hasn't gotten over its aversion to things Canadian, which it has. But, it does mean it is the one play people are least likely to have heard of. (It originated on the West coast and had a short run in Toronto about a year ago with quite favourable reviews). Secondly, it is satire, and satire as we all know is what closes on Saturday night. And thirdly, it is about nuclear war. If an amateur company, according to Plank, amounts to using tax dollars to support what is essentially a private club which benefits only a small section of the community, its members. Plank believes that we must "politicize the arts".

Politicians and the public must be made to understand how essential a part of the community cultural institutions are. When asked by one alderman if this year's grant means the city will have to go on lending support to Arbor, Plank's ever there was a down message hidden inside a comedy, it has to be in Last Call.

But as Plank points out, if you want the best people to work for you, people like Shipley and designer Janice Lindsay, whose work has been seen in some of our best theatres, you have to offer them plays they will want to work on and this means avoiding the usual summer stock fare.

Will the season manage to draw the 19,000 ticket buyers the company needs to meet their budget? Plank says advance ticket sales are about where they were this time last year, so it seems the audience hasn't rejected the idea of a homogenous season.

On other fronts, Arbor's fund raising has been quite successful, especially in its appeal this year to Peterborough city council, which responded with a healthy $27,500 grant. Still, Plank says, it took a long time and a lot of work to get that degree of support; and it was support that wasn't entirely unanimous. There are some councillors who can't understand why the taxpayer's should help finance what is largely a commercial venture, especially when they already fund theatre in the community in the shape of the city's yearly grant to the Theatre Guild. Plank argues that having a healthy commercial theatre here provides economic benefits for the whole area. Funding

Fishin' with Frank Monster muskies

Now, I've only caught a few muskie in my life. In fact, I've only fished muskie for six years. Up until then, trout and bass were the fish I preferred to pursue. Then, I moved to the Kawartha Lakes.

To be quite honest, I've never really caught and landed a BIG fish. I do catch good size fish and lots of them, but a true lunger has never been in my boat.

I have, however, seen many huge fish. Unfortunately, they either outsmart me before I can land them or I pass them going the other way. I've turned my boat around and hooked a couple, but they usually spit the hook out, give me a wave of their tails, and are gone. Other times, I've had them alongside and their sheer size has made my jaw drop open and my mind stop working. It always amazes me how a fish can win a fight in this manner.

There are two large muskies I know about in the Katchewanooka Lake area. One I have never seen, but a good reliable source (and a friend) visits this fish once a year. He dives for rapalas and tackle at the Young's Point dam. Facing downstream, about three feet under water, the bank is undercut, and in this cut, lives a monster just over four feet in length. I don't know how a diver measures a muskie underwater, but I respect his ability. This muskie sits in there all summer snatching meals as the prey go by in the current. Unfortunately this fish stays in a place that would be impossible to present a lure or bait.

The other large muskie I know of protects a narrow channel just off the Lakefield Park. The first time I ran into the beast, I was using an eight-inch sucker on the end of my line. All of a sudden there was a slight bump to the rod tip and then the line was slack. I reeled in and just the head of the sucker was left! Small minnows will not excite this giant, but I have lost two other very large suckers to this brute. On one occasion I saw his shadow just before he snapped my line.

It was to this small narrow channel that I took Frank one evening. Frank, being on a tight budget, wanted to eat the bait fish we had brought along. They were larger than most fish we had hooked that season.

"Lousy place to fish," he grumbled, "too many boats."

"No decent fish would live here in all this traffic,"

he complained.

Then, using a brand new wire leader, hooked a twelve inch sucker onto his rod and lowered it over the side. He sat there for the better part of an hour, when suddenly he felt a slight tremor at his rod tip and the line went slack. He reeled in to find not only the bait gone, but also half his leader.

"Must've been a defective leader," said Frank. "Could be," I replied. "That's the darndest thing. You don't suppose it was that fish?" he asked. "Probably not," I said. "Must've been a defective leader," repeated Frank.

"Yes, Frank, defective." "You don't suppose it was?" he whispered. "Definitely not!" I answered.

Madoc Peewees keep on winning

During the past week two more victories came to the Madoc Peewees.

Wed., June 6th, here in Madoc, the local boys took an easy 14-5 win away from Stoco. Todd Jewell, Steve Bancroft and Derek Chapman each collected two hits each for Madoc. Back to back homers came off the bats of Bancroft and Chapman. Bancroft pitched 5 hitless innings and fanned 13 batters for Madoc.

Thurs., June 7th, in Eldorado, the Madoc Peewees made it four straight this year with a 9-4 win over Eldorado.

Steve Bancroft struck out 14 batters through five innings pitched for Madoc! Shawn Gray struck out nine Madoc hitters over six innings pitched for Eldorado.

Derek Chapman lashed a home run, triple and single for Madoc, upping his team leading batting average to .692.

Peter Denison had two for three at bat and 3 RBIs. Steve Bancroft also went 2 for 3 for Madoc.

Shawn Gray laced a towering triple for the Eldorado club in a losing cause.

Madoc Peewees Defeat Stirling 10-4

Mon., June 4, Madoc visited Stirling in exhibition softball and came home 10-4 winners.

Mike Kiley and Chris Sylvester each led Stirling hitters with 2 for 2 at the plate.

For Madoc, Derek Chapman had a perfect 3 for 3 at bat, while Steve Bancroft, Todd Jewell each had two hits to add to the win.

Calling all town criers

Oyez, Oyez, Oyez...calling all Town Criers! As part of the province's 200th birthday celebrations, Nordair is sponsoring the Ontario Bicentennial Town Crier Festival and Cry-Off.

Each municipality in Central Ontario has been invited to appoint or select an official Town Crier to compete at the Regional Festival in Peterborough on June 29.

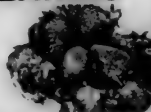

Town Criers 'na' dress in the traditional uniform of the town crier, or in a uniform which reflects the heritage and interest of their community. In addition, their two-minute cry should reflect the history, physical features and Bicentennial activities of the community they represent.

At the Regional Festival, Town Criers will be judged on costume, originality, and best overall presentation. The winners in each of these categories will be flown compliments of Nordair to the Provincial Festival and Cry-Off at the Super-Ex in Ottawa, on August 26.

If you live in the Central Ontario area, which includes the counties of Prince Edward, Northumberland, Hastings, Haliburton, Peterborough, Victoria and the regional municipalities of Durham and York, and you would be interested in becoming your community's Town Crier, contact your municipal office for more details.

Few farm operations suffer more from adverse weather conditions than the field drying of hay. Prolonged periods of wet weather often ruin high protein alfalfa intended for dry hay. Weather forecasts that include information on expected drying rates are very helpful, but when the weather turns wet there is not much a farmer can do about it if he has cut forage intended for dry hay.

This publication illustrates the importance of being timely by using probability information for hay drying periods based on long-term climatic data. Examples are provided of expected yields in terms of protein and digestible nutrients from various systems of forage management.

Hay Quality

Timing of harvest is most important to ensure top quality forage feed. Optimum feed value depends on both timely cutting and a preservation system that provides a palatable feed and maximum nutrient content.

For stored feed, forage stands should be cut in the late bud to first flower stage. Cutting before this stage will provide a higher concentration of protein but total yield will be lower. Delayed cutting will result in higher dry-matter yields but will be offset by reductions in feed quality.

Alfalfa cut at medium bud stage will contain approximately 22 per cent crude protein on a dry matter basis. If cut later, at the early flower stage, the crude protein will have dropped to 17 per cent. All the leaves, which contain 50 per cent protein, are present by late bud. After the bud stage most of the growth occurs in the stems, which are low in protein, and the shaded bottom leaves begin to die and drop off.

A mixture yielding about 50 per cent of each of grass and legume will contain only 17 per cent crude protein at the bud stage and approximately 12 per cent crude protein at full flower. Farmers wishing to achieve the 20 per cent protein goal should seed to a pure legume stand and cut at the bud stage.

Alfalfa cut at the medium bud stage will be approximately 72 per cent digestible, while the same alfalfa cut later, at the early flower stage, will be approximately 65 per cent digestible. The decline in digestibility of grasses with advancing maturity is slightly greater than that for legumes. Thus, early cutting becomes essential if digestibility is to be maintained.

Rain and sun account for much of the losses in forage quality. Rain on cut forage will leach sugars and protein, bleach color and increase the potential for leaf loss. The leaves of legumes contain up to 30 per cent total protein and possess over 70 per cent of the protein in the crop. Retaining the leaves should always be of primary concern when attempting to produce a quality hay product.

Raking is usually the greatest offender in lowering the feed value of forage. Almost all dry matter loss at raking is due to leaf shatter. Alfalfa raked for haying (55 to 60 per cent moisture) will suffer leaf losses of only two to three per cent of dry matter compared with losses of over 20 per cent if the same forage is raked just before baling (20 to 25 per cent moisture). Further leaf loss will occur at time of baling. Conditioning, raking when gough and/or storing as silage are all practices which can help to retain the leaves.

Hay drying periods

Clear, warm weather with a light breeze is best for drying windrowed forage. This type of weather prevails when high pressure systems from the northwest invade Ontario. As the ridge of high pressure passes over a particular region, cold or cool air dominates for a day or two followed by a gradual warming trend. These periods can last anywhere from three to seven or more days depending on the size of the air mass, its rate of travel, and whether another high pressure system follows close behind. Rain may follow depending on the position of the low pressure cell in the disturbance that usually follows. Only three or four days are required to dry windrowed forage down to 23 per cent moisture or less in the clear dry air of a high pressure air mass.

A longer drying period is required when the high pressure air mass is of short duration or remains north of the main agricultural areas of Southern Ontario. When this occurs, low pressure disturbances dominate in the region bringing cloudy, humid and sometimes rainy weather. Under these conditions, six or more days may be required for windrowed forage to dry down to that desirable moisture (23 per cent). See Advantages on page 16A.

The rapidly changing farm economy

Better to save than to borrow

By DAVE LITTLE Farm Business Advisor
OMAF, Lindsay

What We've Come Through
The economy of the Industrial Age from 1880 to the present.

Labor replaced by fossil fuels. Result: increasing labor productivity. Rising wages. Industrial expansion.

Energy prices dropping each year. Low capital costs (interest rates). Prices of goods dropping, so greater demand for them. Accumulation of goods, capital and property.

Work ethic replaced by ethic of consumption of goods.

1950-1975 the golden age of industrialism, the longest period of sustained prosperity in history.

How Farmers Benefitted Most:

Used leverage to maximum (cost of interest always lower than escalating value of assets).

Increased productivity - more acres, more capitalization to replace labor. "Bigger is better".

Maximum yield/production concepts. Little concern for "bottom line" management.

Emphasis on volume, little emphasis on quality of product (consumer acceptability).

Where We're Going:

When oil was cartelized in 1975, energy costs went up 500 per cent. Since then, energy has become more expensive than the productivity gains it made possible.

The cost of capital has increased (high inflation in '70's, high interest rates in '80's).

The value of a worker's time has declined. So pay increases have slowed down.

Reducing demand for goods. Slowed-down economy. Rising national deficits.

How Farmers Will Survive: (If not caught too far out on a limb when things changed.)

Reduce leverage entirely (market value of capital assets are dropping considerably). See Better on page 16A.

ROP dairymen can now get Cow Genetic Indexes

Dairy Cattle Specialist
Cow Genetic Indexes have recently become available in Canada to dairymen on ROP. These indexes are generated on a program now run by Agriculture Canada. Herds on supervised DHI will receive cow indexes as soon as a reporting system is finalized. On the monthly ROP report, only the cow's milk production index is given. Indexes on milk, fat and fat per cent are provided on each cow's production certificate. Genetic Indexes for type "may be available" in the future based on the new linear scoring system and the new type proof model.

The usual goal in evaluating dairy animals for breeding purposes and selection is to define the true genetic merit of the animal for the trait or traits in which you are interested. Numerous factors may affect the expression of a cow's genetic ability for a trait (i.e. age, days dry, days open, season, year, management). Existing indexing systems will adjust for many of these factors. Indexes generally fall into three categories: 1. Adjust for various known factors (i.e. BCA's); 2. Combine traits of economic importance (i.e. milk and fat); 3. Combine a lot of pieces of information into a simple form.

Cow Genetic Indexes fall into the third category. They combine information on the relatives of an individual, and its own performance, if any. This is used to predict the genetic material that an individual will pass on to its offspring (Estimated Transmitting Ability or ETA). The Cow Genetic Index is an ETA of the cow - it's an estimate of the genetic material that she will pass on to her offspring. The ETA of a cow is expressed as a "Deviation from breed average" in BCA points for milk, fat and fat per cent. Effects due to feeding, weather and management are essentially See Cow on page 16A.

Safety with farm animals

Few farm people look upon their livestock as a source of danger. However, a number of serious injuries and deaths occur every year as a result of animal-related accidents.

Agricultural specialization has changed animal handling methods in recent years. The large size of many herds makes safety awareness imperative to efficient farm operation.

Animals: How well do you know them?

Anyone who has worked with livestock realizes that each animal has its own personality. Farm animals' senses differ a great deal from those of humans. Cattle, swine and horses see things very differently! For example, cattle have close to 360 degree panoramic vision. A quick movement behind them may 'spook' these animals.

Farm animals see things in black and white, not in color. They also have difficulty judging distance. These factors, explain why animals are often balky and skittish, particularly in unfamiliar surroundings.

Animals have extremely See Appreciation on page 14A.

Alfalfa stand establishment Weed control important for success

To establish a new alfalfa stand, effective weed control is crucial to any direct seeding program. The preferred system of direct seeding involves using a preplant incorporated herbicide to kill annual grass and broadleaf weeds, says an agronomist for Pioneer Hi-Bred Limited. Two herbicides - Treflan and Eptam - are labeled for broadleaf and grassy weed control when establishing new alfalfa stands," says sales agronomist, Morris Sagriff. Eptam applied at a rate of 3.4 kg acid equivalent per hectare is probably more active on a broader spectrum of weeds. Both herbicides must be applied before seeding and incorporated immediately. Remember that all chemicals incorporated into the soil will be worked in one-half the depth that the equipment is worked.

Always consider the previous year's herbicide program. Due to residual atrazine carry-over, alfalfa seedlings aren't recommended in areas where 1.2 kg of actual atrazine per hectare was applied the previous cropping year.

The herbicide 2,4-DB (Embutox) is labeled for broadleaf weed control applied after seedling establishment. "Alfalfa plants should have one to three trifoliate leaves before 2,4-DB is applied," says Sagriff. "Broadleaf weeds should be less than 7.5 cm tall."

He notes that while chickweed may not be adequately controlled with 2,4-DB, good control can be obtained on common mustard, common ragweed and lambsquarter.

"For best results," advises Sagriff, "don't apply 2,4-DB if temperatures might fall below 4 degrees C shortly after treatment." Also, spraying alfalfa seedlings during drought or high temperatures can severely damage them. If a perennial grass like brome grass or timothy is seeded with the alfalfa, the Pioneer agronomist says that only 2,4-DB can be used. Preplant herbicides will kill the grass seedlings. "The best procedure for herbicide application," concludes Sagriff, "is to carefully follow label recommendations."

NEW KUBOTAS HIT THE DIRT.

Now there's a tractor for the big jobs, that comes with a smaller price tag. It's Kubota's all-new M-Series tractor.

There are four new models, from 47 to 76 PTO. And thanks to some refinements to our diesel engine and fully synchronized speed transmission, our tractors work like a lot more.

Equipped with 4-wheel drive you get even more pulling power. As much as 1500 more. All this while

M-F introduces new disc harrows

Rugged dependability and the versatility to work in a variety of field conditions are necessities for a disc harrow.

Massey-Ferguson introduces three new rugged disc harrows designed to match many field conditions. They include the MF 213 mounted tandem disc harrow, the MF 223 pull-type offset disc harrow and the MF 233 pull-type tandem disc harrow.

MF 213 Mounted Tandem Disc Harrow

The MF 213 mounted tandem disc harrow is designed for tractors in the 50 to 60 hp range, and is available in widths from 6'6" to 8'1". A sturdy Category 1 three-point hitch connects to a two-section main frame which is hinged in the middle.

The hinges can be locked for a conventional, rigidly-framed machine for finish harrowing and working down land, or unlocked for independent front and rear flotation to fine finish light soils. The rear section can be locked out of the ground to add weight to the front gang for aggressive discing in heavy soils or it can be removed entirely for "bus and bog" operation in light soil.

The MF 213 is available with plain round or notched disc blades in 18, 20 or 22-inch diameters. Blade scrapers and furrow filler attachments are optional.

MF 223 Pull-Type Offset Disc Harrow

The versatility continues with the MF 223 pull-type offset disc harrow which features plain or notched 24-inch diameter blades with either 9 to 10-inch spacings.

The MF 223 is available in cutting widths from 5'6" to 9'11", allowing it to perform well in orchards and vineyards as well as open fields.

Gang angles are easily adjustable from 14 to 25 degrees to suit soil conditions. Gang hangers are available in rigid configuration for economy or spring cushioned for shock absorption.

MF 223 Pull-Type Disc Harrow

The MF 223 pull-type tandem disc harrow also offers a variety of choices. The new disc harrow is available in cutting widths from 7'8" to 12'4", and is well suited for small to medium acreage application.

Like the MF 213, the 233 can be equipped with either plain or notched disc blades. See New on page 15A.

One Foot in the Furrow

By Bob Trotter

It was in a teller's line-up at a local bank. Two men, obviously farmers - you can tell a farmer because he is wearing a Co-op cap and coveralls - were in the line. The first man turns to the other and says he is going to his accountant right after he leaves the bank.

"You got all your books with you?" asks the first farmer.

"Nope, but I got all my records right here," and he brandishes a shoe box.

And that is a true story. It was the method used by most farmers for many years. They took all their receipts and all their bills, both paid and unpaid, and dropped them into a box. At income tax time, they took the box to their accountant, if they had one.

Some old-timers in agriculture still operate this way but it won't last long. In fact, they won't last long. They are some of the farmers who have already gone belly-up in a business which has seen more bankruptcies in the last two years than any other sector of the economy.

Only the better-than-average farmers will survive in the years to come and every last one of those survivors will become competent in keeping their records straight. Gone are the days when a shoe box was the ledger. No longer can Dad or Granddad carry all the information around in his head and chat with the banker or an accountant at tax time.

Hog prices - as this is written - are higher now than they have been for many months. I know a few hog farmers who are getting that expansion gleam in their eyes again. I even know a few beef farmers who are greedily watching for the new tractor models. They want one just because it is prestigious to have the highest horsepower tractor available whether they need it or not.

Tractors on the farm can be compared to automobiles. The bigger and fancier the car, the more affluent the owner appears. The bigger the tractor, the more affluent the farmer.

Right now, because implement dealers and implement manufacturers have come the toughest time since the Dirty Thirties, farmers are being deluged with material about new models. Dealers are offering some of the best bargains in 20 years just to make sales. The offers are enticing.

But farmers who have good records and who know exactly where they stand financially will not be persuaded.

"There's a tremendous revolution going on in the agricultural community," says David Little, a specialist in farm record keeping with the ministry of agriculture and food, a revolution, that is putting business-minded, record-keeping farmers on top of the survival heap. "Good records are the key to the future."

Little is urging farmers to keep a running inventory, to prepare cash flow projections and to be cautious about capital investments. If you had used such terms with most farmers 30 years ago, you would have received a blank stare. Yet those same stares would have come from some of the best farmers in the nation, the men and women who were applying the most progressive production techniques.

No longer is the technique of farming the most important aspect of success.

The yearbook - pardon me, the microcassette - is the farmer with the best records. Some of the most efficient, most productive and hardest-working farmers in the province are in trouble because they have never deemed it necessary to keep good records.

A farmer today must be a jack-of-all-trades - a geneticist, a husbandman, a welder, a crop scientist, an animal lover, a fertilizer specialist and a dozen other things.

He must also be a master recordkeeper. The shoe box is as dead as five-cent cigars.

AGRICULTURE NOTEBOOK

Eugene Whelan

The all-Canadian bee

(NC) - Beekeepers could be welcoming the all-Canadian bee into their apiaries this year.

Two new lines of honeybee have been developed at Agriculture Canada's Beaverlodge, Alta., Research Station and are winning themselves a reputation for being hardworking and hardy.

Research at the northern Alberta station has shown honey production from the new lines is 50 to 100 per cent higher than regular bees. The average production for regular bees was about 90 kg of honey per colony. Our new bees produced from 135 to 180 kg of honey per colony on average. One colony produced nearly 250 kg last year.

Canadian bees more hardy

The other big advantage the all-Canadian bees offer is hardiness. These means they can be over-wintered with greater confidence.

Most Western Canadian beekeepers do not keep their bees over winter. New colonies are imported the next spring from the southern United States.

Many beekeepers would rather over-winter their bees. Not only is it less expensive, but a hive that has been kept through the winter also gets a better start on the honey-producing season.

Work on the new strains of bees began in 1979. One of the new lines, called Peace, has been bred for northern regions of Canada. The second line, called Prairie, is for use in more southern areas.

Although the research has been done in Alberta, the results are exciting for commercial bee keepers and hobby farmers across Canada. Queens of these new lines are available from Fairview College in Alberta for July or August delivery this year.

Eugene Whelan is Canada's Agriculture Minister.

Farm equipment on public roadways

Farm equipment on Ontario roads is a familiar sight, unfortunately accidents involving farm equipment on roads are all too common. The use of farm equipment on roads has increased steadily in the last few years, largely because of the increased size of individual farm units. Many farmers have land in several different locations that can be several miles apart, thus forcing them to move their equipment on the road. Farm equipment using the roads varies in size and purpose, however all the equipment has one thing in common - it moves very slowly in comparison to normal traffic.

The familiar triangular slow-moving vehicle sign (SMV) that was introduced in Ontario several years ago, helped warn motorists of the hazards associated with slow moving vehicles, however the responsibilities of persons operating farm equipment on the roads, go far beyond this sign. This fact-sheet will outline the operator's responsibilities.

The Operator
The Highway Traffic Act in Ontario specifies that a person must be 16 years of age in order to drive a farm tractor or self-propelled implement of husbandry on the highway. No drivers' license is required as long as the operator is 16 years of age. Farm equipment operators under the age of 16 are only allowed to drive directly across the road, not along the roadway.

It requires considerable skill and experience to operate farm machinery on roadways. Tractors and other farm equipment are reasonably stable at normal operating speeds, however, road speeds of 20 miles per hour and greater, may create a variety of hazards that an inexperienced operator may have difficulty in coping with.

Equipment Should Be Road-worthy
Operators of farm equipment are advised to make certain that their equipment is in top mechanical condition before they take it on the road.

The following are some specific points to consider in a pre-road check:

1. BRAKES
Independent brakes should be locked together. In a sudden or panic stop situation, uneven braking could throw the machine in the ditch.

2. TIRES
The tires used on all farm equipment should be kept inflated to the proper pressure. Sudden blow-out or flats can create an extremely hazardous situation. In addition to the immediate hazard, they can create a secondary hazard - large immobilized equipment that may partially or totally block oncoming traffic.

3. THE SMV SIGN
By law, all tractors and vehicles of husbandry, must have a slow moving vehicle sign, positioned at the rear of the vehicle when driven on the highway. The sign should be centred, no less than two feet or more than six feet from the roadway, and clearly visible from a distance of 500 feet.

- Signs should be kept clean. The retro-reflective material on the sign is subject to fading and, depending on use may fade within two years. Signs that are faded or damaged in any manner should be replaced.

4. LIGHTS
All farm vehicles, when operated on the highway at night (half-hour before sunrise and half-hour after sunset), or under conditions where there may be insufficient light (eg. fog) must be equipped with lights. Ideally, this should include two white lights at the front and one red light at the rear.

The lighting requirements for over-dimensional farm vehicles (greater than eight feet, six inches wide) varies with size, and is dealt with in chart form in this fact sheet.

5. SAFETY CHAINS
The Highway Traffic Act specifies that a safety chain should be used when towing wagons or wheeled equipment on the road, in case the main hitch fails. The safety chain should extend from the tractor to the axle of the towed equipment. Hitch pins should be sound and secured so they won't jar out.

6. CHECK THE LOAD
The load should be secure. Equally distributing the weight of a load will improve the handling characteristics of both the load being towed and the tractor. Implements such as bailers, swathers, should be put in transport position before they are taken on the road.

7. OTHER EQUIPMENT
Emergency tools, such as flares and fire extinguishers are useful items to carry, particularly if the equipment is frequently on the road, or being transported for a considerable distance.

WHILE ON THE ROAD
After the equipment has been thoroughly checked over, you're ready for the road. Defensive driving with slow moving farm equipment is essential. Before pulling out on the road, make certain that you have enough time to get the equipment across, or on the roadway without interfering with normal traffic.

Adjust to the road conditions; the type of equipment being used and the condition of the road will determine a safe speed. Keep the equipment on the travelled portion of the road, not on the shoulders. Road shoulders are often soft, and have ruts, wash-outs and a number of other obstacles that may cause the equipment to be drawn into the ditch.

Keep a constant look-out for traffic. If traffic starts to build behind, the operator should pull over to the right shoulder and stop, allowing the traffic to clear before See Farm on page 15A.

Gang assemblies can be easily adjusted to give 8 to 20 degree working angles. The simple pin adjustment on the gang bar gives positive control of working depth.

Farm Special

Appreciation of animal characteristics crucial to work safety sensitive hearing and can detect sounds that our ears cannot hear. Loud noise frightens animals and research has shown that high frequency sounds actually hurt their ears.

An appreciation of animals' characteristics is crucial to working safely with livestock. These traits should also be considered when designing livestock facilities.

Livestock facilities

Many livestock handling injuries are directly related to equipment or building structures. Such mishaps are not restricted to people, poor facilities and equipment can also cause injuries to animals. This can mean considerable economic loss at market time.

Considerable planning should precede capital investment in new facilities. Building design should take present circumstances into account and provide for any future expansion. County agricultural engineers can assist with the planning of new buildings or extensive renovations.

Following are a few areas that deserve special attention when designing animal facilities:

Floors

Poor flooring is a major cause of livestock and human falls. A recent U.S. study found that falls accounted for 18 per cent of all animal-related accidents. Floors should be of an impervious material, preferably concrete. The finish on concrete floors should be roughened to prevent slips under wet conditions. High traffic areas, such as passageways, should be grooved.

Floors should be constructed in such a manner that water will drain away readily. Slatted floors are commonly used to keep animals dry in a confinement system.

Fencing and gates are extremely important in any livestock facility, and should be strong enough to withstand animal crowding. A variety of materials are available; remember that the key is strength and durability. Fences and gates should also be free of any sharp projections, such as nails or wire, that could injure animals.

Alley and loading chutes should be wide enough to allow an animal to pass, but not wide enough to allow it to turn around. Use solid-walled chutes, not open fencing. This will greatly reduce animal balking in the chute. The loading chute floor should be kept clean to prevent falls.

Lighting in a livestock facility should be even and diffused. Bright spots and shadows tend to make animals more skittish, particularly in crowding or loading areas. Avoid layouts that make animals look into the sun; this is particularly important with loading areas. Animals will move more easily from a dark area to a light area than the reverse. Type and duration of lighting may play a role in the productivity of some animals.

Restraining equipment is an important part of any beef or dairy operation. A fixed restraining chute should be free from any obstacle that could hurt an animal, while allowing a handler free access to any part of the animal without having to reach over or through the chute. Use anti-kick and back-up bars to prevent balking in the chute.

Owing to the extreme stress put on restraining equipment, it should be checked regularly for loose or worn latches, pinch points, and broken railings or head gates. Portable squeeze chutes should be securely anchored to the ground before use.

Human factors in handling animals

Practical experience is the best teacher for safe handling of livestock. Farmers who have handled animals over a long period of time develop a 'feel' for, or understanding of, animals and their habits. Although handling methods may vary greatly for different types of livestock, there are some generally accepted rules for working with any animal:

- Most animals will respond to routine; be calm and deliberate.
- Announce your presence well in advance of getting close to an animal, to avoid startling it.
- Avoid quick movements or loud noises.
- Be patient; never prod an animal when it has nowhere to go.
- Respect livestock - don't fear it!
- Move slowly and deliberately around livestock; gently touch animals rather than shoving or bumping them.
- Always provide yourself with an escape route when working with an animal in close quarters.

Animal health and hygiene

Animal health is a vital part of good livestock management, particularly in confinement systems where disease can quickly affect all animals. Maintenance of a clean, dry environment is obviously important, but a number of other factors are also crucial to animal health.

Ventilation should keep dust to a minimum. Various molds may be present in feed; these can cause respiratory as well as digestive problems. All feeds should be carefully checked before being given to animals. Deal only with reliable feed dealers, and have suspect feed tested.

A number of gases associated with confinement systems can affect the health of animals. Manure gases can be detrimental to animal health if adequate ventilation is not provided. Gases associated with liquid manure systems (H₂S) and silos (No₂) have been responsible for many animal deaths.

Many farm people have become amateur veterinarians and regularly administer antibiotics and other drugs to their animals. In general, medications should not be given to animals unless under the supervision of a qualified veterinarian. Animal drugs should be kept under lock and key, and instruments such as syringes and needles kept absolutely sterile.

Animal diseases that threaten man

All animals, domesticated or wild, can be sources of human illness and parasitic infestation. Diseases that can be transmitted between animals and man are referred to as zoonoses.

Rabies:

This deadly virus affects the central nervous system, and can be transmitted by the saliva of an infected animal through a bite, open wound or sore. Widespread inoculation of pets has greatly reduced the danger of rabies. However, rural people face a greater risk owing to their proximity to wild animals. A veterinarian should be called to examine an animal that is acting abnormally. If bitten by an animal that you suspect is rabid, seek immediate medical attention.

Farm equipment on public roadways

continuing on the trip.

Use a lower gear for going up or down hills and grades. The clutch should never be shoved in, or equipment taken out of gear to allow it to "free-wheel" down hill. The resulting speed could cause severe steering and braking problems. Unlike cars and trucks, most tractors and farm machinery are not designed for downshifting gears while moving. Downshifting to a lower gear on an up-grade may cause the equipment to stall or stop.

Use hand signals to indicate turns and stops. Where rear vision is completely obscured by a load, the use of an escort vehicle may be the only means of safely executing a left-hand turn on a busy highway. Obey all traffic laws and signs.

Slow down when making a turn.

TOWING HEAVY LOADS

Trying to stop a 12 ton load with a five ton tractor can be extremely dangerous. Very few farm wagons are equipped with any type of independent braking system. Loads that exceed the weight of the tractor will require two to three times the stopping distance required under normal circumstances. The possibility of overruns and jackknifing are also dramatically increased.

Unless wagons are equipped with independent brakes, the total weight of the wagon and load (or combination of wagon and load), should not exceed the weight of the tractor used to pull them.

ALTERED MOTOR VEHICLES

The Highway Traffic Act allows motor vehicles to be altered for farm use and used on the highway. Many farmers have taken advantage of this, and have altered cars and trucks to carry produce and equipment from place to place.

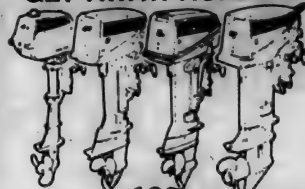

In order to comply with the "Act", the altered vehicle must be used solely for agricultural purposes. The licence plates must be removed and a slow moving vehicle sign positioned correctly. The vehicle must be operated by an individual who is at least 16 years of age, and at a speed not to exceed 25 miles per hour. If the vehicle is operated at night on the road, it must meet the lighting requirements for agricultural equipment.

If you are presently using, or considering the use of an altered farm vehicle on the road, check with the Ministry of Transportation and Communications concerning its legality.)

sease]:

Brucellosis affects cattle, goats and swine and can be transmitted to man in raw (unprocessed) milk, infected carcasses, or by an aborted fetus or afterbirth from an infected animal. Good sanitation practices reduce the chances of brucellosis infecting a herd. Animals should be periodically tested for this disease.

Trichinosis caused by tiny parasites can be painful and is sometimes fatal to man. It can be transmitted by consumption of uncooked or partially cooked pork. Trichinosis has largely been eradicated from North America. Thorough cooking of pork is the best prevention.

Salmonella organisms can be found in poultry and wild and domestic animals. They can be transmitted to man through contaminated food or water. The disease can cause severe gastro-intestinal distress and fever. Prevention includes proper storage and cooking of animal-derived foods. People handling food should use good sanitation procedures to reduce the risk of salmonella poisoning.

Other diseases

There are other zoonoses that affect man. However, preventive measures, such as keeping animal facilities clean, testing and immunization and sanitary practices in handling animals and their products, will do much to eliminate the danger.

Personal protective equipment

Foot injuries commonly occur in all types of livestock enterprises. For this reason, safety shoes or boots should be worn. Composition and type of sole configuration is also important to combat the problems of uneven and wet footing.

A good particle respirator will remove most dusts and particles associated with animal feeds. Sturdy leather gloves will help eliminate most of the nicks and bruises that can often result when handling livestock. Disposable rubber gloves should be worn when treating animals or assisting with a birth.

Safety Reminders for Livestock Handling

- Good housekeeping is essential, not only for your personal safety, but also for the health and well-being of your stock.
- Respect all animals. They may not purposely hurt you, but their size and bulk make them potentially dangerous.
- Keep children away from animals, particularly in livestock handling areas.
- In the interest of animal health, restrict or regulate entry into your operation. Sales and service personnel could bring diseases from other farms.

• Be calm and deliberate when working with animals. Always leave yourself an "out" when working in close quarters.

• Most male animals can be dangerous. There should be special facilities for these animals, and extreme caution should be practised when handling them.

• Most animals tend to be aggressive when protecting their young; be extra careful around newborn animals.

• Keep facilities in good repair. Chutes, stalls, fences and ramps should be regularly maintained.

• Liquid manure holding facilities should be secured against entry. Outdoor lagoons and ponds should be fenced.

• Stay clear of animals that are frightened or "spooked". Be extra careful around strange animals.

Open House Canada Exchange

By WENDY McWILLIAMS
BOS Specialist
(Agriculture), Picton

Fifteen 4-H members and an escort from Prince Edward, Hastings, and Lennox and Addington will be participating in the 1984 Open House Canada Exchange. We, under the title of the Tri-County 4-H Exchange Group, have been twinned with the District #39 4-H Council of Saskatchewan. Their location as they describe it, "is the southern area of the Parkland Area Prairies."

Five 4-H members from each of the three counties of our Tri-County Group will be participating. The spring '84 edition of the Hastings County 4-H Guidelines included information on this inter-provincial exchange. Only three names have been received at this point, by the Hastings Agricultural Office.

This is the last chance for any other 4-H members, at least 14 years of age by May 1, 1984 with two years 4-H experience to apply for this exchange. Each of the 15 4-H Tri-County members participating will be required to host a 4-H member from Saskatchewan from July 12 to July 24. From July 24 to August 2 the 4-H members from the Saskatchewan group will be hosting our members. This is a reciprocal exchange. 4-H members who have participated in the open house exchange in previous years are not eligible. At this point in time we are also looking for a 4-H leader, parent, or adult interested in planning and participating in the open house Canada exchange. This exchange program is sponsored by the Canadian 4-H Council, Ottawa. If you are interested I encourage you to act now by calling the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, Hastings.

The three E's of safety

The three e's - engineering, education and enforcement - are the main ingredient of any farm safety program. Manufacturers are responsible for engineering safety into the products they sell; farmers must know how to operate this equipment safely. It is the farm employer's responsibility to educate all help in safe working procedures and to enforce safety rules on the farm. "DO IT OUR WAY - IT WON'T HURT".

Advantages of timely haying

ent) for making good quality dry hay.

Drying periods are defined as the time required for windrowed hay to reach either 25 per cent moisture for dry hay or 55 per cent moisture for haylage.

Climate records indicate that there is a greater chance of having good haying weather during the week of June 7 to 13 compared to June 14 to 20. This emphasizes the importance of using weather forecasts to decide when to make the first cut. It should be remembered that cutting in early June at the medium bud stage also means a higher crude/protein content.

Hay cut June 7 to 13 would likely undergo a second cut during the week of July 19 to 25, which has 5.1 drying periods at the four out of five year probability level. Similarly, June 26 to August 1, having 2.2 drying periods, would be the second-cut week for hay first cut during June 14 to 20.

The third cutting in Central Ontario should take place before September 1. However there is practically no chance of drying hay in less than four days during the last full week of August. There is only 1.0 drying period of six days or less at the same probability level in that week.

Using the expected number of hay drying periods in each week at a selected probability level, it is possible to calculate the expected quality of hay harvested and stored based upon the effect of cutting date on protein and digestible nutrient content.

Better to save than to borrow

tion tillage, low-mechanization harvesting systems, alternate energy sources, etc.

Emphasize 'maximum economic yield' concepts. 'Downsizing' of excess or low-return assets as soon as possible. They'll be worth less next year.

Far more emphasis on high quality products.

For the first time in many years, it is better to be a saver of money than a borrower of money. Cash is king. Cash flow is all important.

Another hay season under way - are your machines ready?

Here we go into another hay season, and it looks like it's going to be a good one.

By this time most of your haymaking equipment should be ready for the busy weeks ahead. I find a number of things that should be checked are often overlooked in the last minute rush to get going.

Some of the most neglected checkpoints include the following:

1. Wheel nuts and bearings - are they tight enough and greased?
2. Hitchers on wagons and balers - are they sound and properly mounted?
3. Universal joints on P.T.O. shafts - are they tight and greased?

5. Belts and chains - are they in good condition and properly tensioned? Remember to check baler timing after chains are oiled and adjusted.

6. Gear boxes - are they free of moisture and properly filled with clean lubricant?

7. Flangers and packers - are their bearings sound and properly lubricated? Flanger rails on the older balers with slider pads should be cleaned and oiled before and after the hay season.

8. Bale chambers - are all hay dogs and retarders free and clean? Hay should be removed from the chamber after the season to prevent corrosion damage to the bale chamber.

9. Knotter, plunger, stop dog and packer adjustments - are all these components in the proper adjustment and time.

10. Round baler belts, make sure all the flat belts and rollers are free of trash and properly adjusted. Chains and slats on models sq equipped, should be inspected for soundness and properly adjusted.

11. Swathers should be checked over according to the owner's manual. Don't forget to check timing of rolls on those models with contoured steel rolls, and remember to check draper adjustment. Draper rolls should be free of trash.

12. Mowdickers. Are the sections all present, sharp, and their guards in good condition? Some models have conditioning rolls that need to be timed. Are the skid shoes tight and in good condition?

13. Rakes - teeth should be all present and tight. Are all the bearings and drive components sound and properly maintained?

14. Stokers - Is the counter box clean and free? Are all springs in good shape? Rounds should be cleaned and the oil changed.

The above list, together with the appropriate maintenance schedule should help you have a smooth haymaking season, free from those expensive, untimely breakdowns.

Smart dryer works with the grain

A lot of hot air can be a good thing if you get it from Canadian Farm Tec Systems, a small electronics company in Waterloo, Ontario.

Farm Tec is marketing the first computerized grain dryer, which is said to work more efficiently than any other grain dryer on the market. And it's a large market - there are now about 6000 commercial grain dryers in use in North America.

Grain must be dried by machine because when it comes off the field it contains a lot of moisture. The grain is usually dumped into a tall silo, through which hot air is circulated for several hours.

Because the moisture content of the grain varies from field to field and from day to day, it is difficult to know just how much hot air to blow through the grain. Operators must guess at how much heat they should apply. As a result, grain is often over-dried, which wastes energy. Also over-dried grain loses weight and shrinks, so the farmers loses money when the grain is sold by weight or volume.

Farm Tec's new computerized system was designed to overcome the shortcomings of manually-controlled grain dryers. The new system is outfitted with internal sensors that keep track of the moisture content of the grain and the temperature inside the dryer. The sensors feed their information into an IBM micro computer outfitted with a custom-designed microchip carrying the grain-drying program. The computer analyzes the data and adjusts the dryer's performance as necessary. This eliminates the need for an operator to guess how much heat to apply.

The Farm Tec dryer handles corn, rice, wheat and soy beans, and can be operated with little training.

The high-tech grain dryer was jointly developed by researchers at Farm Tec and at the University of Waterloo's Centre for Process Development.

Proposed changes to Western Grain Stabilization Program

(NC) - In Winnipeg last week, Senator Argue, Minister of State for the Canadian Wheat Board and I outlined proposed amendments to the Western Grain Stabilization Program.

The aim of these changes is to make the program more flexible and more responsive to the needs of western grain producers.

The Western Grain Stabilization Act is the main federal program protecting the incomes of prairie grain farmers.

Both Senator Argue and I agree that the basic concept of the program is sound, but it is clear we must improve the payout mechanism in order to help grain producers during their times of need.

Four major changes
We have proposed four major changes to the program.

Most importantly, we are proposing to add an additional payout trigger based on net cash flow per unit of eligible marketings.

In the past, when we calculated whether stabilization payments were necessary or not, we used total net cash flow. But increased marketings masked actual drops in grain prices.

The addition of a per unit payout trigger would make the program more sensitive to such price declines.

We also propose changing the operational basis of the program from a calendar year to the crop year.

This may not sound like a major change, but it would allow us to evaluate the need for payments under the program and make those payments faster than has been possible in the past.

Two other amendments would provide for the participation of an eligible spouse under the program and give participants a withdrawal option once every 10 years.

These changes will remove discriminatory aspects of the current legislation and increase the flexibility of the program.

These are all responsible amendments, developed in concert with western groups.

Under the current program, no stabilization payment is expected for the calendar year ending December 31, 1983.

Significant payout
However, based on marketings and prices to date this crop year, if the changes we are proposing are approved, a significant payout of more than $300 million will likely be made early this fall for the crop year ending July 31, 1984.

I believe these proposed amendments will provide western grain producers with the income protection they need for long-term security.

IF the Shoe Fits

by Ralph Heion Manager

Why can't I find cheap play shoes that fit as well as good shoes?

There are several good answers to this question - but let me first ask a question - why cheap shoes for play? Many men and women who work in industry have long since given up the practice of buying cheap work shoes. Good work shoes mean more to a person whose work requires standing than a comfortable car means to a travelling man.

We parents hate to see a good pair of shoes look old in a few days of hard play, but the abuse taken by the shoes should indicate to us that good shoes are much more important for hard play than they are for sitting in school or in front of a TV set.

Turner turns them on

the bright sun - untouched.

By 7 p.m. Friday, the leadership race was coming to a head, that only one candidate could burst. The Chretien supporters crowded into the Civic Centre in a mass, as did the Turner group. But the Turner captains sent lines of cheerleaders into the other camps hoping to "convince onlookers that their numbers were sufficient for an easy victory.

The speeches themselves were along the same lines as the candidates have taken throughout the entire 13 weeks of campaigning. Both Turner and Chretien improved their presentations, according to reports from both camps.

Madoc delegate Ron Vastokas, federal candidate for the last two elections in the Hastings, Lennox, Frontenac and Addington riding was for John Turner all the way. He said that he was surprised that Toronto Sun pundit Alan Fotheringham gave Turner an 8.5 out of 10 for his speech Friday night.

"It was a very good speech - he covered all the bases. He covered jobs and economy - something Chretien barely mentioned in his speech," said Vastokas. "He already sounded like a Prime Minister."

A week before the convention was to start, Vastokas decided firmly to vote for Turner and he said the speech Friday night, just made him "feel good" about his decision.

"I felt Chretien could have done better...He was good, but was not the best."

Lakefield soccer coaches are provided with a comprehensive manual. It was designed not only to prepare coaches in their efforts to improve team skills but also outlines the physical and social characteristics of children in various age groups. Having an understanding of the children you are coaching is an undisputable asset. These days though it's just the ham in the sandwich. It is the rare coaches' manual that doesn't include a section on "dealing with parents".

Dealing with parents has so far not been much of a challenge for the Lakefield Soccer Club. In fact, club president Bob Reid would be overjoyed to see parent attendance increase. "I coached one boy for four years before I ever saw his parents. You'd think that in four years they'd wonder what they're doing with my kid over there." Nevertheless, coaches are trained to recognize what Bill McAllister, technical director of B.C. soccer, calls the "over-anxious" parent and the "over-ambitious" parent and how to deal with them.

In the case of the over-anxious parent, an exaggerated protectiveness is exhibited. Often this is associated with risk of injury and the coach that takes time to explain his techniques of instruction and methods of protection can allay many a fear. As a by-product, the child develops self-confidence and learns not to shrink from embarrassment when he sees his parent(s) on the sidelines.

Specimen number two is the over-ambitious parent. Much has been made of this type in minor hockey. In cases where such parents are demoralizing the very child they are trying to influence, McAllister says "the coach should explain to the boy that he can ask no more of a player than his best".

To generalize though and say that for every over-ambitious parent there is a neurotic child can be dangerous. In an informal poll of the Minor Mosquitoes playing Tuesday's night's game, I found that there are two camps. Some players find that their parents' participation "psyches them up" and they love it when they turn up and scream like banshees. Others want them to stay home. "Last time my Dad was here he yelled at me. My leg hurt and I couldn't run."

Clearly it is important for parents to communicate with their kids to find out what type of behaviour will make their game the rewarding experience it's supposed to be. Getting to know the coach's philosophy and principles can also set the tone for parent participation. McAllister's number one maxim may be useful: "Be concerned with the person - not the performance."

Last Sunday afternoon, Trinity United Church was filled to capacity for a multi-denominational service to commemorate the Ontario Bicentennial Celebration.

The service featured four reverends, a community choir, Reeve John Franks of Huntingdon Township, Reeve Terry

Figden of Madoc Village, Reeve John Irwin, Madoc Township, and Mrs. Nancy Mohan who read her story on the early settlement of

Family Relief Program to start

Rich Bellamy, family relief worker for the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties' Health Unit, reports that the unit will be starting a family relief program in Madoc.

The program "aims to provide short-term care in a home and community environment for any handicapped person," while giving their parents and families a few hours or days of needed relief. We also wish to foster a greater awareness in the community of the needs of a handicapped person and that person's right to share in the life of the community," stated a health unit report.

To get the program working, the unit is asking people in the community to volunteer to provide relief for parents of the handicapped person. The unit said the volunteers will take the handicapped person into their home to relieve the parents temporarily.

"All that is required, is a willingness to share in the activities and life of a person with special needs and their family," say health unit officials.

The job of the program supervisor will be to match the handicapped person with an appropriate relief provider. He will hold interviews with potential relief providers and then arrange orientation visits before actually making the placement.

The health unit is looking for "interested people in the community who have had experience working with handicapped people or have a willingness to learn."

Gold rush coming

By BRENDA HUDSON

Madoc was the site of the first gold rush in North America on June 27 and 28. gold nuggets can again be found in a bicentennial re-enactment of "Gold Rush Days".

This is a contest for children ages 5 to 15. The nuggets will be placed around the village and young prospectors may collect and have them weighed on the porch of the public library during the two days.

The gold count will be recorded on HCV4 and the winner of the contest will be the prospector who finds the most gold (in weight).

All children are invited to participate, but the assistance of parents should be kept until the time for hauling in the find and helping with the weigh-in. Parents please make this a children's event only.

Thanks are due to the Girl Guides in their work of preparing the nuggets.

Tweed core has new look

Businesses located on the main street in Tweed are happy that the road construction is nearly finished ahead of schedule. The road is almost completely covered with a smooth layer of asphalt and the sidewalks are in good shape.

Locals say that the paving should be done by the upcoming July first weekend.

The only thing that remains, is to plant flowers and shrubs in designated spots along the main street, and the village will have a fresh, new path through its core.

'Beery Patch' is new strawberry farm

John Beer of RR 2, Madoc, says he and his wife Jo are "excited" about their first strawberry harvest.

The Beers opened up one acre of strawberries for picking last week and have found that the response has been good.

The one-acre "Beery Patch", as they call it, will yield about 3,500 to 4,000 quarts of strawberries this year, which John feels is not a bad yield for the first year. "You normally expect about 6,000 quarts per acre," says John. "But when we planted last year, we had the very dry summer which reduced the crop."

One step the Beers are taking to provide the plants with water, is to design an irrigation system using a near-by pond. John and Jo hope to have the system in place by next year.

"To get the farm going it's been a lot of work weeding, etcetera. We're going by the book, because we don't have any experience yet," says John.

But experience or not, the Beers have gone ahead planning next year's crop. They plan to plant another acre of strawberries to double the acreage for next year.

Both John and Jo are excited about the response from locals who have already been picking their own strawberries. They say that there is room for another strawberry supplier in the area, because the only other farm nearby is Spencer-Grange.

John says another reason they started growing strawberries was because of the assistance and encouragement they got from friend Bob Cobbledick, extension horticulturalist for marketing.

By now, the harvest should be in full swing.

John Beer of RR2, Madoc, picks a few choice strawberries off his one acre now producing. John and his wife Jo have just opened their "Beery Patch" for pickers. They say that berries should be fully ripe this week.

At the Library

By BARD CHAPLAIN

Although things are slowing down somewhat for the summer, with no board meetings until Sept., there are several activities planned to make the library a busy and interesting place for visitors all summer long.

"The Deckhands" puppet troupe will again perform a variety of shows for children. Their schedule is planned for our area by the Stirling Library, and we shall be receiving notice shortly of the time set aside for Madoc. In past summers, the puppeteers have delighted their audiences with some wonderful tales that many children may have read, but may not have seen performed.

Speaking of performing, don't forget the Acting Day program on Jun 29. Children may feel free to come and go at any time between 5:30 and 6 p.m. to play "Acting Games", or simply enjoy watching others act out roles. The young actors and actresses may even want to borrow a few good books to take home and tuck under their pillows.

Young, old, and in-between readers will not want to miss the library's annual used book sale. As our shelves become crammed with new volumes, it is necessary to "thin them out". There will be many interesting hardcover books at 25 cents, and magazines and paperbacks at 10 cents. If you love to browse through books, the place to be is the front porch of Deer Creek Pottery, 79 Durham St. S., between the hours of 10 a.m. and 5 p.m., on July 2nd.

At the last board meeting on June 13, the board received notice from Madoc Village Council, Huntingdon Council, and Madoc Township that our requests for financial support have been accepted. Elzevir Township Council has chosen not to include the library in their 1984 budget. As a result, library users from Elzevir Township will be required to pay a user fee of $5 per adult and $2 per child yearly, effective July 1, 1984.

Letter: Homosexual ordination issue

Dear Sir:

I am writing to you because I am concerned about some confusion that has resulted from my having been quoted by your paper in what I said at the May meeting of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada. This is regarding the issue facing our church, of the ordination or commissioning of self-declared, homosexual people. I wish to state very clearly for the information of your readers that I am against the ordination or commissioning of self-declared, practising, homosexual people. As a delegate to the August meeting of our General Council, this is how I shall vote. My stand on this issue is for a number of reasons.

First of all, the Bible states clearly that the homosexual relationship is contrary to the types of relationship intended by God. No matter how we choose to describe it: as a matter of choice or not, it is contrary to the Biblical teachings on creation and human relationships. To ordain or commission practising, self-declared, homosexual people is to deny them the possibility of help, because it is in effect saying that the United Church of Canada sees this as a state of health and wholeness. For the sake of the homosexual population, I sincerely hope this does not happen.

Secondly, all down through the ages, the Church has upheld the expectation of celibacy for its unmarried clergy and members, and faithfulness for those who are married. To violate this comes under the category of fornication, or adultery. Members of the Order of Ministry who violate these expectations can expect to come under the discipline of the church. This expectation should hold true for those people of homosexual orientation, just as it does for heterosexuals. Ordination or commissioning is not a right, but a privilege. A candidate for the ministry should be aware of and willing to accept the expectations of this privilege in order to be ordained or commissioned. To declare one's intention as otherwise is to put one's sexual preference and activity above one's sense of call, and certainly this is inappropriate.

Thirdly, from the response of the general membership of the United Church of Canada, it is clear that they are not in favour of ordaining or commissioning self-declared, practising homosexual people. I believe that for General Council to approve this would be dishonest to the people it represents, and a disaster for the church. Placement of homosexual people would be extremely difficult. Many people, including clergy and even whole congregations, would probably withdraw from the United Church. I would strongly question whether a self-declared, practising homosexual person wishing to enter the Order of Ministry has the well-being of the United Church in mind at all, and I would therefore be concerned about his or her motives for seeking ordination or commissioning.

In conclusion, I do wish to clarify my position that we should recognize and affirm homosexually-oriented people as fellow children of God, with weaknesses as we all have weaknesses of our own. We should minister to them in understanding and love, and not with the atmosphere of hate and fear which I am distressed to find is the attitude of many.

However, I do not think that we should knowingly ordain or commission people practising a homosexual lifestyle.

I would ask the prayers and support of everyone for myself and all the other commissioners to the meeting of the 50th General Council of the United Church of Canada, as we grapple with this issue which is before our church, in Morden, Manitoba this August.

Hastings farmers lobby

By DONALD WILSON
Pres., Hastings Federation Of Agriculture

Three Hastings farmers joined with nearly 150 Ontario farm leaders to make personal calls on every member of the Ontario Legislature, June 19, as part of a major lobbying campaign of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture.

bring Ontario producers in line with other provinces were called for.

The OFA urges a three year extension of the Ontario Farm Adjustment Program to deal with the new upward spurt in interest rates and the uncertainty this brings to farmers who have seen their equity in the family farm steadily declining.

Farmers urged their MPs to provide them with resources for capital investment in buildings and machinery, investments which show a sharp decline in the current scene. Capital loans at 8 percent repayable over ten years in amounts up to $50,000 are called for. These loans would be earmarked for improved environmental standards on the farm and improved efficiency but would not apply where expansion is the farmer's goal.

Hastings Federation of Agricultural members Bill Langstaff, Brian Kerby and Donald Wilson met with area MPs Mr. Hugh O'Neill and Mr. James Pollock and several urban MPs.

Farmers presented a major four-point program to improve the hard-pressed Ontario farm industry that provides one in five jobs in the province. Emergency assistance payments for the red meat producers of $67.4 million based on 1983 production levels that would

A cap on interest rates for farm operating loans is called for to protect food producers from rapid fluctuations in interest rates. The province is called upon to guarantee that rates will not exceed the original negotiated rate plus 1/4 percent.

Ron Vastokas

Vastokas seeks nomination

Ron Vastokas would rather fight than switch or quit. He tried to quit a few months ago but, having come back in contact with the system, he now finds himself the first declared candidate for the upcoming Liberal nomination for the federal constituency of Hastings - Frontenac - Lennox and Addington.

The decision to return to politics was not an easy one for him, but he made it official on Friday at a press conference in Napanee.

"I went to the Liberal leadership convention in Ottawa as a once-in-a-lifetime event," he told Cembal Publications Friday night, "and, after three days, I became very involved in the process itself. It was a lesson in democracy and, with the background that I come from, democracy is a very precious thing. That's an old cliché, I know, but I feel I have to make my contribution to the process. I've received so much from Canada - a good living and a good education - that I feel I should return something. The Liberal party is the way I can do that."

The 48-year-old Liberal hopeful is an Associate Professor of Anthropology at Trent University, who also farms 400 acres in Queensborough near the centre of the riding. He runs 40 head of Aberdeen Angus cattle on his property and he says he has come to know the problems of the red meat farmer over the past four years.

Vastokas is no newcomer to the political scene in the riding as he has contested two previous elections with MP Bill Vankoughnet. Increasingly lower pluralities in those two previous elections, the change of leadership and what he terms "the new stage of political history," has convinced him that the time is ripe for a Liberal victory in the Tory stronghold.

One of the first issues Vastokas thinks must be dealt with is a reduction in the deficit, a move he thinks his party and their new leader will work toward. But, besides the reduction of the deficit, he thinks every effort should be made to create a climate of confidence in business in Canada. "People should be encouraged to invest, spend money and create jobs," he said.

Vastokas says new leader John Turner does not feel it is unrealistic for the budget to be cut by $15 billion and that he is committed to working toward that end.

But other national issues include bringing the country together, especially the west. He sees bilingualism and separatism as things of the past as evidenced by the 21 Liberal victories in bi-elections in the province of Quebec. "We have to start working together as a country," he says.

In the local riding, Vastokas also has some strong things to say. As a number one priority, he lists the creation of jobs. "I'm disappointed that the sitting member has done so little to create jobs and lead in sorting out the problems in our riding. I feel that a politician's role is not merely to shake hands and meet people, but to provide leadership."

If he was elected, Vastokas says he would give top priority to try and do something in four sectors - forestry, agriculture, tourism and small business. He advocates separate advisory councils for each sector that would report directly to Ottawa. Another idea, an Eastern Ontario caucus regardless of party affiliation, could play a significant role in planning national and local economic policies.

While just having declared his intention to run for the Liberal nomination, Vastokas is wasting no time. He has already sent a letter to Turner asking him to delay an election until after the Queen's visit so that the effort and planning put into the visit would not be wasted. "Besides, she's a pretty nice lady and it will be an opportunity for many Canadians to meet her," he said.

Kwan Hum of the Stirling Firefighters hurries to don the firefighting gear in the first event of the Mutual Aid Volunteer Firefighters' Field Day held in Marmora last Sunday. Stirling ended up second in this event and overall took most points in the days' events.

Firefighters hold annual field day

The Mutual Aid Volunteer Firefighters of Marmora, Stirling, Sidney East, Sidney West and Ameliasburg held their annual field day last Sunday afternoon in River Park, Marmora, despite the rainy weather. "We have to fight fires in the rain, so we aren't going to call off the field day because of it," said Marmora's Fire Chief Gee Neal.

The rain eased off for the start of the event at 1 p.m. and the games got started. However, when it was time for the two-man dry run around 2:30 p.m. the weatherman decided to make it a wet run and the skies opened up. But after that the sun came out and events continued till the conclusion at 6:30 p.m.

The crowd was not as large as expected because of the weather, but those that braved the elements sat on their lawn chairs and cheered the firefighters as they matched individuals and teams from each fire department in climbing ladders, coupling hoses, hitting the target, racing with the bucket to fill a barrel on the tower and playing the ball run.

Marmora started out in great style winning the first event which was the equipment run, and the second, the 14' ladder, but fell off after that to end last with 14 points.

Stirling was the overall winner with 30 points, Sidney West second with 20, Ameliasburg and Sidney

East third with 16 points and Marmora fourth with 14.

For 10 years MTC refuses to clean out Highway ditch. As a result, water is ruining the hay field and $20,000 worth of tile drainage.

After requesting for 10 years for MTC to stop holding back water on hay field and as a result Breaking the Law, I hired Gray Bros. Const. at a cost of over $300 (without MTC compensation) and physically dug the rest by hand for a total of more than 1,100 feet of MTC ditch to relieve the water problem.

Ever since this work was done by me, MTC refused to keep the ditch clean and continues to hold water back on the hay field. At the same time MTC has just completed large ditching projects on highway property in front of Silver Lake Provincial Park and Sharbot Lake Provincial Park where there is not one drop of water. After talking this morning with MTC crew, it appears they again have no time left to clean this particular highway ditch.

On the bases of this evidence, I contend that this is a clear case of MTC abuse of me as an area farmer and should be rectified at the earliest possible convenience.

Craft and fitness classes

Susan Brodie Binsdale of Belleville, supervisor of a new craft and fitness program starting in Huntingdon Township, is asking anyone interested in participating to contact the township.

The program, starting June 25 and running to August 24, will run five days a week and is totally free. Money for the supervisor, two instructors and building rental comes from a Summer Canada Grant.

The programs run in morning and afternoon sessions. Susan says they will be flexible and may be able to fit classes in when participants are free.

"We're hoping for classes of at least 15," says Susan. "If there's more, I'm sure we can make adjustments for it."

Susan says young people, teens, adults and seniors are all welcome to participate. Classes will take place at Huntingdon Township Hall in Ivanhoe and the Moira Community Centre.

"We are hoping to get some volunteers to assist with some of the handicraft sessions, like for quilting, crochet and needlepoint," says Susan.

Three morning classes are set for about half an hour of exercise, with warm up and cool downs. Susan says they also have weights available for those interested.

"The craft sessions could be two hours or the whole afternoon if the demand is great," says Susan.

Registration for the program is accepted any time. For more information, call Huntingdon Township Office at 613-473-4030.

Madoc WI meets

by A. HAGERMAN

Several members of the Madoc's Women's Institute enjoyed a delightful and educational outing.

The first stop was at Quinte Web. Press in Tweed where we were given a tour of the premises. We were amazed to see how much exacting work goes into publications we take for granted.

We watched the progress of the newspaper from a roll of plain paper to a printed, folded - newspaper in a matter of a few minutes. A machine bought five years ago is now obsolete, so rapid has been the advance in computers.

We enjoyed coffee and doughnuts before proceeding to our next stop - The Domini Chocolate Ltd., in Belleville, where we learned about the manufacture of chocolate, with samples to test. These didn't spoil our appetite for the sumptuous lunch at China Gate Restaurant.

Our last stop was at Corby's Distilleries, the second largest in Canada. They are located on 25 acres of land, and employ 200 persons in slack season and up to 400 in full operation. Over 150 tons of Canadian corn is used daily - only enough rye and barley for flavoring as corn produces the best alcohol. The color comes from the smoked oak barrels. The original dam built in 1857 by Henry Corby is still in use.

Mothers' Auxiliary Final

BY SHARON PHILLIPS

The Madoc Hockey Mothers' Auxiliary once again reports a very successful year both financially and in parental and community support of their major fund raising activities.

The Hockey Mothers earn money through two major activities. They are managing the canteen at the arena and the annual Millionaire's Night. The purpose of these activities is to financially support the Madoc Minor Hockey Program. This past year we paid all the OMHA team registration fees, supplied one tournament fee per team, sponsored the East York Atom Exchange, and paid for busing and new equipment. All of this totalled $2,800. In addition to this we donated $3,000 to Minor Hockey to help pay for ice time. All of this spells 'Low Registration Fees' for your child.

Hockey Parents - give yourself a big pat on the back and a thank you from your Auxiliary for sharing the help of working in the canteen. A special thank you to the group of parents who are willing to work when their child is not involved on the ice. Remember we are responsible for the canteen in early fall and late spring when minor hockey is not organized. The canteen is at its busiest during the Junior games and men's tournaments.

The Tenth Annual Millionaire's Night was, once again, a sellout and a big success. This is an evening of dinner, dancing, games. See Auxiliary page 19

The week before last, the Tyendinaga Indian dance group went to Madoc Public School to demonstrate dances to students as part of our bicentennial celebrations this year. There were students for the public school and grade six students from Madoc Township School being entertained, and later they participated. Many of the students were picked up to dance along with the Indians. Seen here is an Indian boy (right) leading a student through

7. Charges for Not Long Term Liabilities

The charges for long term liabilities assumed by individuals in the case of tile drainage and shoreline property assistance loans are not reflected in these statements.

8. Contingent Liabilities

The municipality is contingently liable for long term liabilities with respect to tile drainage loans. The total amount outstanding as at December 31, 1983 is $5,500 (1982 $ Nil) and is not recorded on the "Consolidated Balance Sheet".

9. Other Notes

Changes in Accounting Policies

Effective January 1, 1983, Ontario municipalities and their local boards must follow the accounting principles outlined in the Municipal Financial Reporting Handbook. The new Handbook substantially revised many of the accounting and reporting requirements applicable to Ontario municipalities for the fiscal year 1983. The 1982 figures presented for comparative purposes have been restated, where determinable, to conform with the new presentation in 1983. The following summary outlines the more significant changes made.

- (i) Previously assets were not segregated between restricted and unrestricted. For 1983 the assets of reserves funds are now reported as restricted assets.
- (ii) "Capital outlay financed by long term liabilities and to be recovered in future years" on the "Consolidated Balance Sheet" includes the amounts previously described as "Capital outlay to be recovered in future years" with certain exceptions. These include amounts related to the long-term liabilities and for tile drainage loans. Similarly the related long-term liabilities with respect to tile drainage loans are excluded from the "Consolidated Balance Sheet".
- (iii) The overviews (or underviews) for school boards and the county, which had previously been recorded as fund balances at the end of the year on the "Consolidated Balance Sheet", are now reported as "current liabilities" ("other current assets").

As a result of the above changes, the effect on the Consolidated Statement of Operations has been an increase of $32 in the net change in "Municipal fund balances" for 1983. The retroactive effect on the fund balances on the "Consolidated Balance Sheet" as at December 31, 1982 have been reflected in the 1982 comparative figures in this report and is summarized below.

Municipal Fund Balances

Agriculture brief

More than 300 Newfoundland farmers have received financial management training during the past five years under a program operated jointly by Agriculture Canada and the Newfoundland Department of Rural, Agricultural and Northern Development.
Courses were prepared covering everything from simple bookkeeping and budgeting to estate planning, taxation, farm law, wills and farm credit.

The program had spin-off benefits too for the professional community. Many of the professionals recruited as resource experts generally had little experience working with farm clients before participating.

Drive In Church to start

Pastor John McEwen and members of Madoc Pentecostal Church, 32 Wellington St., will be conducting "Drive In Church Services" again this summer, at the IGA parking area, Elgin St., Madoc, Sunday evenings starting 7 p.m., July 1, through Sunday, August 26.
Rev. John McEwen and wife Alice were members of the Kingston Pentecostal Church, 195 Queen's St., Kingston, before entering full-time ministry. They were united in marriage by their Pastor Rev. W.B.
Greenwood on September 6, 1941.

For a number of years they were engaged in lay ministry as Pastors and evangelist. Mr. McEwen received his ordination in March 1958.

The McEwens have travelled extensively in the work of the ministry and have preached in both small and large churches, street services, tent crusades, Radio and TV ministry and on Indian reserves in Eastern and Western Ontario, Northern Quebec and Maritimes.

Mrs. McEwen was converted to Christ at the age of 11 in a revival meeting led by a travelling evangelist.
Rev. Marshal Ruthvan, in her home town of North Brook, Ontario, and has given strong support to her husband's ministry both in the home as well as the office.

Mr. McEwen dates his conversion to street services held by the "Ford Evangelistic family" on the market square in Kingston at the age of 16. At that time he was an out-patient from the Kingston General Hospital.
The Ford family were preaching, singing Gospel songs and praying for the sick.

Mr. McEwen says: "I went forward with a number of people, knelt for prayer and was prayed for. It made a big difference in my life."

Mr. McEwen began to attend services in Kingston Pentecostal Church as a teenager where he says he received his call to full-time ministry.

The McEwens have three daughters, Mrs. Fred Woodcock (Barbara) of Deseronto, Carol at home and Mrs. Timothy Kellar also of Deseronto, five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Rev. and Mrs. J.
McEwen have been in Gospel ministry for 37 years and have spent the past 4 1/2 years pastoring the Pentecostal Church in Madoc.

Mr. McEwen says, one of the highlights of the ministry has been the street meetings and the open air Drive-in Church services that they have held in country crossroads, villages, towns and city shopping centers.

Sunday, July 1, 7 p.m.,
The Gospel Jewels, Bluegrass gospel singers of Verona, Ontario, will be singing. Pastor J. McEwen of the Madoc Pentecostal Church invites you to attend these Drive-In Church services with the slogan,
"Come as you are, and stay in your car."

Strawberry social cancelled

Due to the large number of events taking place in conjunction with the Bicentennial celebrations, the Hart's-Riggs' Women's Institute have decided to cancel their annual Strawberry Social for this year.

For the past several years the Branch has sponsored a lawn social at which strawberries, cake, ice cream and hot and cold drinks were served. Large crowds gathered to visit and enjoy the fresh berries while basking in the sun or enjoying the cool shade on the lawn at the home of Joe Foley.

It was after much discussion at an executive meeting last Wednesday evening that the ladies decided to give preference to the special celebrations taking place this summer, thereby not conflicting with those dates and also enabling our members to enjoy the festivities.

Hart's-Riggs' Branch appreciates the support and response the socials have received in the past and look forward to seeing all of their supporters back next year.

NOTES TO THE CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

FOR THE YEAR ENDED DECEMBER 31, 1983

1. Accounting Policies

(a) Basis of Consolidation

(i) Consolidated Balance Sheet

This statement reflects the assets and liabilities of the revenue fund, reserve funds and the capital fund. Interfund assets and liabilities are eliminated.

(ii) Consolidated Statement of Operations

This statement reflects the consolidated sources of financing and expenditures of the revenue fund, reserves, reserve funds, and the capital fund of the municipality. Interfund sources of financing and applications are eliminated.

(iii) Non-consolidated Entities

For those local boards, municipal enterprises, and utilities of the municipality which are not consolidated, the "Consolidated Balance Sheet" does not reflect their assets or liabilities except to the extent of amounts due to or from those entities. The "Consolidated Statement of Operations" does not reflect their revenues and expenditures except to the extent of the municipality's contribution to those entities.

Those entities which are not consolidated are as follows:

- (i) Madoc and District Recreation Centre Board
- (ii) Madoc Memorial Library Board
- (iii) The taxation, other revenues, expenditures, assets and liabilities with respect to the operations of the school boards, and the County of Hastings are not reflected in these financial statements except to the extent that overlevies (underlevies) are reported on the "Consolidated Balance Sheet" as "other current liabilities" ("other current assets").

(b) Basis of Accounting

- (i) Sources of financing and expenditures are reported on the accrual basis of accounting.
- (ii) The accrual basis of accounting recognizes revenues as they become available and measurable; expenditures are recognized as they are incurred and measurable as a result of receipt of goods or services and the creation of a legal obligation to pay.
- (iii) The historical cost and accumulated depreciation of fixed assets are not reported for municipal purposes. Instead the "Capital outlay to be recovered in future years", which represents the outstanding principal portion of unamortized long term liabilities for municipal expenditures or capital funds transferred to other organizations, is reported on the "Consolidated Balance Sheet".

2. Operations of School Boards and the County of Hastings

Further to note 1(a) (iv), the taxation, other revenues, expenditures and overlevies (underlevies) of the school boards and the County of Hastings are comprised of the following:

	School Boards	County
Taxation and user charges	$215,315	$ 34,995
Requisitions	215,375	56,180
Overlevies (underlevies) for the year	(10)	(7,183)
Overlevies (underlevies) at the beginning of the year	(41)	1,184
Overlevies (underlevies) at the end of the year	$ (31)	$ 19

These revenues and expenditures are not reflected in the "Consolidated Statement of Operations". The overlevies (underlevies) at the end of the year are reported as "other current liabilities" ("other current assets") on the "Consolidated Balance Sheet".

3. Contributions to Unconsolidated Joint Boards

Further to note 1 (a) (iii), the assets and liabilities of unconsolidated joint boards have not been consolidated and are not reported on the "Consolidated Balance Sheet", except to the extent of the long term liabilities to be recovered from general taxation. The operations of these joint boards have also not been consolidated. The "Consolidated Statement of Operations" includes only the following contributions made by the municipality to those boards:

	1983	1982
Madoc and District Recreation Centre Board	$ 19,008	$ 9,383
Madoc Memorial Library Board	3,464	3,539
	$ 22,472	$ 12,922

4. Net Long Term Liabilities

- (a) The balance of net liabilities reported on the "Consolidated Balance Sheet" is made up of the following:
 - Total long term liabilities incurred by the municipality including those incurred on behalf of school boards, other municipalities and municipal enterprises and outstanding at the end of the year amount to $ 5,500 $ -
 - Of the long term liabilities shown above, the responsibility for payment of principal and interest charges for tile drainage loans has been assumed by individuals. At the end of the year, the outstanding principal amount of this liability is $ 5,500 $ -
 - Net long term liabilities at the end of the year $ Nil $ Nil
- (b) Approval of the Ontario Municipal Board (or approval by private legislation) has been obtained for the long term liabilities reported on the "Consolidated Balance Sheet".

5. Municipal Fund Balances at the end of the year

- (a) The balance on the "Consolidated Statement of Operations" of Municipal Fund Balances of $8,323 (1982 $10,604) at the end of the year is comprised of the following:

Book describes Madoc gold rush

Excerpts from "Fabric Of A Dream" on the gold rush in Madoc describe the frenzy that took place here briefly. It was a series of events that were to influence Centre Hastings forever...

In 1865, following Sr. W. Logan's recommendation to the government, the MacFarland report was prepared concerning hematite iron ore presence and the location of other minerals in Madoc township. This should have substituted means for a government grant of a half million acres of land and a road to assist settlement and passage. On this assumption, many small iron ore mines went ahead.

In 1866, on Lot eighteen of the Fifth Concession on the farm of John Richardson, Marcus Powell, a division court clerk and part-time prospector, along with an old miner named Snider, thought they had struck a good find of copper. Their disappointment became elation when they were told it was gold.

Word of the discovery was kept secret for awhile, but it was hard to keep this kind of secret for too long, especially when the free gold was running twenty-two carats pure!

Mr. Anstee, experienced in the gold fields of Australia and California, found traces of gold in a swamp behind the Richardson property. John Moore found a 'boulder' of gold on his property which refused to sell for $1,000. Specks of gold were reportedly found further along the Moira River and even in Deer Creek in the village.

The original discovery had been made in August when the Eldorado area is balmy and golden in the late heat of summer, but as winter came the fervor of gold fever was as prevalent as ever.

Thousands were pouring into the area and new hotels could not be built fast enough. Buildings were converted to accommodate prospectors and many were forced to sleep on the floor.

The merchants of the village found considerable advantages in this, almost overnight excitement, prices went up and business boomed.

The name of Madoc was in newspapers and magazines all across Europe. One Madoc resident on holiday in Britain, read about the gold rush in a newspaper and immediately rushed home!

The farm of John Moore which adjoined the Richardson property was subdivided by C.F. Aylsworth for a townsite which became Eldorado. In a matter of nine months, a town of eighty buildings had grown up out of two farms with a log shanty. In a race with winter, many homes were hurriedly placed on the stumps from which their lumber had been cut. Few of these remain today.

In Madoc village the population of nine hundred had rapidly expanded to five thousand. The concern of the village residents for protection of themselves and their property, caused the government to declare the area part of the Quinte Gold District under Federal jurisdiction and on April 15, 1866 the Mounted Police Squad of 25 men under the direction of Sergeant Major Foxton arrived in Madoc. Some boarded at Bull Farm, the rest at two other homes with stables. A barracks was built with help hired outside the village. It cost $5,000 and was erected behind the Presbyterian Church.

"Cariboo" Cameron, probably the most colorful character of the era, had recently come from the gold fields of California and the Caribou. He was reputed to have earned $250,000 in the Caribou when he sold his claim. At that time he employed eighty men whom he paid $10 to $16 a day. When he left Madoc for the Yukon, where his name became well-known (a town was named after him), he had accumulated another $15,000. His wife, a girl whose family and home were in Cornwall, was persuaded to accompany him out west where she died. To satisfy a dying wish to be buried in Cornwall, "Cariboo" accompanied her coffin by dog sled and pack train and finally by ship sailing around Cape Horn.

When the ship pulled into New York, the customs officials did not believe "Cariboo's" story that the coffin was lead lined and filled with whisky to preserve the body. They drilled holes to ascertain the truth of this, and finally opened the coffin to discover the body beautifully preserved and dressed as she had been when she died, several months before.

The year of 1867 saw everybody digging for gold. The "gold fever" sickness had become a widespread epidemic and the local newspapers were full of it. Advertisements for mining lands appeared each week, along with those for maps and equipment. One report tells of a Dr. Elmer who sold one and a half acres to John and Smith for $700 and a few hours later it was resold to Brown and Johnson for $4,000.

The Sophia Diamond gold mine produced gold in 1896 and two veins were discovered. Work ceased there in the early 1900's whilst machinery was overhauled and it was never fully resumed.

Not only were machine breakdowns a problem, but water constantly had to be pumped from the mine and only Powell seemed to have known exactly the location of the gold vein; information he released only on payment.

The Richardson mine and others were barely profitable ventures but in the intervening boom in commerce and building, in prospecting and settlement a richer pattern emerges and the weaving extends itself into dreams of the planning of this community.

Angela Labossiere is only 17 years of age, but already she is an accomplished woodcarver and crafts-

Crafts and other wares

Angela Labossiere's second hand store on Highway 7, one mile west of Marmora is not your ordinary second hand shop.

Open on Saturday until the end of June and starting July 1st, Monday to Saturday, 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. the store offers not only a variety of second-hand furniture, appliances, books and knick knacks but also hand crafted items turned out by Angela and friends.

There is a beautiful wooden swing cradle, hand-made by a friend, that would be a joy to rock-a-bye a baby in, wall mirrors and shelves, ornaments and plaques hand carved by Angela, furniture she has refinished, crocheted items she has made, and material and wooden novelties such as thread and scissors holders - a wide variety of gift items.

Especially noteworthy are hand-carved wooden figurines crafted from single blocks of wood, polished and finished with painstaking care, and hand-carved wall plaques with "praying hands" sculpted into the wood.

Angela, who has just completed her Grade 12 studies at Nicholson's, first opened the store last summer when she was unable to obtain other employment. She did well and hopes to expand the operation this summer and to continue to catch local and tourist trade.

Many of her furniture pieces on which she has worked attest to long hours of patient toil. One especially beautiful piece is a library table from the 1920s which she has stripped to the original wood and finished with clear acrylic.

Of course, her second-hand section has more mundane items such as refrigerators, a radio, TV, electric kettles, chinaware, bric-a-brac - you name it.

WI presents quilt to legislature

The activity and hum of voices issuing from the Public Gallery Lobby of the Ontario Legislature attracted everyone's attention on the afternoon of June 11, 1984. The gathering crowd was awaiting the unveiling of a bicentennial gift for the Province of Ontario.

Mrs. Charlotte Johnson, President of Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario, formally presented the organization's gift: a quilted wall hanging which they had designed and created.

The centre of the embroidered wall hanging features an illustrated map of Ontario depicting early pioneer life in the province and a small Ontario community with a focal point of church and school which was typical 200 years ago. In the upper left hand corner is the Bicentennial logo and in the lower right hand corner is the official crest of the Women's Institute with its motto "For Home and Country". Forty-eight other blocks depicting highlights from the counties, districts and regional municipalities of Ontario were designed and embroidered by Women's Institute members from across the province who supported this project and gave so generously of their time and talents. A special group of ladies from Bruce Centre District assembled the blocks, quilted and finished the wall hanging.

Hon. Dennis Timbrell, Minister of Agriculture and Food, thought the location of the wall hanging - across the gallery from the painting of the Fathers of Confederation - was very appropriate because they had organized the country and the Women's Institute had built upon it.

When you next visit the Main Legislative Building, be sure to take a few minutes to view this wall hanging on the Third Floor - it will be time well spent.

Kingston tour is guided by young area woman

An interesting tour has been set up in Kingston thanks to Summer Canada, the Kingston branch of the United Empire Loyalists and -- tour guide Pamela McInroy, who just happens to be a young Marmora woman. Pam, the daughter of Eric and Isabel McInroy, Deloro, who is a graduate of Centre Hastings Secondary School and a BA Honors English literature graduate of Queen's last year, helped introduce the tour in Kingston which is called Walk the Loyalist Way, and she is directing the same tour this year with the aid of two other Queen's students.

At appointed hours, the Confederation Park-based trio, dressed in period costumes, conduct tours of the downtown area and point out the architecture, styles and techniques the Loyalists brought with them. They mention some of the prominent UEL families and describe their lifestyle, what Kingston and Upper Canada were like after the American Revolution.

Until June 22 the students are conducting tours Monday to Friday. After that date, their service will be available seven days a week. They will guide a handful of people, classes of students or a large group. Best of all the service is free. If you or your guests are interested in booking a special tour, call the Bicentennial office in Kingston City Hall, 546-4291.

Last year Pam guided 800 people on the tour and expects more this year because of Bicentennial year.

This is the third summer that Pam has been engaged in a summer job involved with the United Empire Loyalists. Two years ago, at Queen's Archives, she was part of a team that created a Loyalist multi-media display for school children.

On Wednesday, June 13th, at 1:30 p.m. the regular meeting of the Marmora Women's Institute was held in the Senior Citizens' club rooms with 16 members present. No meetings are scheduled for July or August. Marmora WI will entertain Madoc Branch at a potluck dinner at 6:30 in the Sr. Citizens' club rooms Sept. 12th.

President Eileen Demorest opened the meeting with a poem on "Father's Day", followed by the "Institute Ode" and Mary Stewart Collect. The roll call was "Name a Family Loyalist and where they settled", and also $5 in lieu of a summer bake sale was collected.

Secretary Bernice Doyle gave the minutes, correspondence and financial statement. An invitation was given by the CWL to attend a "Peace Caravan Campaign" with speaker and film in their school on June 21st at 7:30. One minute reports were given by the standing committee conveners.

Helen McKeljohn, Marmora WI Bicentennial Convener, after giving her report, introduced our guest speaker Harol Mumby. She said he was a neighbor who was an educator in his own right. A graduate of Trinity College, he taught history in high school in Port Hope for many years and is very interested in the history of our area and the Bicentennial here. He has increased his interest in the United Empire Loyalists and will speak on the Bay of Quinte Loyalist development in the Quinte area.

All members enjoyed his talk and a gift was given in appreciation and he and Marion were given an invitation to stay for lunch.

Ellenore Barker gave her report on the North Hastings District Annual held in Carlaw United Church on May 29th. Four delegates and five non-delegates attended from Marmora. The theme was "Celebrating Together (1784-1984) in WI". Marmora Branch was in charge of entertainment and did a skit pertaining to the "Mary Stewart Collect." Ellenore Barker and Eileen Demorest attended the Hastings North Bicentennial Tea in Ivanhoe on June 9th and enjoyed it.

Four of our members attended the "More Cents Than Dollars" Summary Day in Madoc Central Hastings Secondary School on June 7th at 7:30. Many groups from North Hastings District participated. Leaders present were introduced. Ivy Adair and Eileen Demorest were the Marmora leaders. Kathy Findlay of Stirling was guest speaker and explained all the varieties of bean sprouts, etc. Valerie Clarke stated the Fall course will be "Rug Braiding". Excellent nutritious casseroles were sampled by all. It was moved and seconded to give donations to the Marmora Agricultural Fair Board, and also to the Provincial

By DR. DOUG HARCOURT

Agriculture Canada
After a three or four year lull, populations of the alfalfa weevil will be high enough this year to warrant attention. This turn around results from a high rate of survival in 1983 combined with a low degree of winter mortality.

A survey of the Quinte area last week showed that the over winter adults have now begun to lay their eggs. Fortunately the alfalfa crop is developing rapidly and in most areas should be ready to cut before the weevil larvae cause economic losses. However growers are reminded to keep a watchful eye on those fields with a history of early weevil attacks.

The Saturday morning children's league bowling banquet was held last Saturday at the Belmont-Methuen Township Hall. High triple and high single winners included Kim Hebor, Bruce Farrell, Roxanne Pattison, Elaine Watson, Cindy Henry, Corey Burgess, Kelly Wilkes and Bobby Johnston.

Switzer Sports lead Lakefield

Switzer Sports ball club are one game away from being at the half way point of the 1984 season in Lakefield Men's Softball League play and have led the league for the first 15 games.

Although Home Hardware have two games in hand, they won't be able to catch Switzers until at least after the midway point. Switzers have compiled a record of 10 wins, three losses, and one tie.

Their latest winning streak was stretched to three last Thursday with a 7-2 win over Bowes & Cocks. Bruce Switzer drove in five of those runs with two singles and a sacrifice fly. Kevin Gilders yielded five hits as the winning pitcher. Rod Harris was the losing pitcher with teammate Greg Coyle picking up two singles and a walk.

Two nights before, Switzer Sports shutout Blakes

IGA 5-0, as again Kevin Gilders was stingy on the mound giving up just two hits, one to Mike Wasson and seventh inning single to Tom Birch. Francis O'Brien took the loss while Perry McCracken stroked a triple and single.

In other action last week Bowes & Cocks moved into third place by defeating Dixie Lee 12-2, as Kevin Robinson gave up five hits en route to being the winning pitcher. Rod Harris had a single and a double for Bowes, while Dixie's George Payton picked up two singles.

Fifth place On The Spot defeated second place Home Hardware for the second time this season. Thursday night was a come from behind 11-8 victory. Grant Shewen was the winning pitcher, while Doug Hill took the loss.

Men's League Tournament

Four teams from the Fenelon Falls league will be in town this Saturday night and Sunday for a tournament with four teams from the Lakefield league. The tournament will begin Saturday night at 7 p.m. with Lakefield's Bowes & Cocks against Welch's Fuels, while at 8:30 Switzer Sports will play On The Spot. Play resumes Sunday morning at 9 a.m. when Lakefield Dixie Lee will play Pinder Electric and at 10:30 Lindsay Cleaners will play Franks Real Estate. The Consolation Championship will begin at 6 p.m., while the Championship game is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Beauties play in Belleville stay undefeated

By ISABELLA SHAW

On Thursday, June 14, the Beauties travelled to Belleville and managed to keep their undefeated streak in tact by coming home with a 1-1 tie. It's funny how two people can watch the same game and come home with different reports. The Belleville-reporter reported a two hitter, while my interpretation was Andrew Peters pitched a no-hitter, giving up four walks and chalking up nine strike-outs. Belleville's only run was scored with one out in the bottom of the seventh.

Andrea scored the Beauties only run in the top of the fourth, when she reached safely on an infield hit. She scored when Lynda Bailey tripled to right field. Suzanne Franks collected the only other hit for Eldorado when she singled, also in the fourth. Stephanie Smith on the mound for Belleville gave up three hits, three walks and had

At home the Springbrook Peewee Boys handed our boys a defeat by five runs.

On Friday evening the diamond reverted to the men's league. The Eldors handed the Queensboro Boys their sixth loss of the year by a 23-7 score. Sam Lewis scored a home run for Queensboro and for the Eldors; Al Curtis scored a solo home run; Cyril Shaw had a two run homer and Lloyd Holmes had a grand slam.

In the second game Cooper jumped into an early lead and hung on to defeat Moores Corner's 8-6. Mike Burris hit a towering line drive which resulted in a solo home run. On Saturday O'Haras and Tannery played to a tie game. Bannockburn chalked up their fifth win of the year by handing Queensboro 19-1 loss. The Panthers stayed one game behind in the win column by defeating the Factory.

Monday, June 18, the Peewee girls hosted Queensboro and finished ahead in the run department at the completion of the game. Final score Eldorado 21, Queensboro 19.

Our Atom boys suffered their first loss of the year on Tuesday when Madoc boys dropped them 18-16, but they bounced back the next night to defeat Springbrook 16-14. Springbrook squirts defeated Eldorado 6-2 on Wednesday night.

The Peewee boys collected three points this week with a 7-7 tie with Springbrook and a 11-9 win over Stoco. Bantam boys dropped two games to Madoc.

See Beauties page 4A

High average winners were Jamie Watson, Dee King, Shelley Miles and Dwayne Dandford in the background. Troy Ward was absent for the picture.

Madoc Peewees run over Tweed

By BILL DENISON

Running over Tweed on Tues., June 20 in Stoco to the tune of 21-8 was easy for the still yet-to-be-beaten Madoc Peewees. The boys have now won six straight. Todd Jewell had five RBIs for Madoc with a two for four at bat. Other Madoc hitters with two for four were Alan Danford, Robyn Plumbie, and Shawn Chapman. Derek Chapman had two hits in five at bat.

Paul Whalen led Tweed hitters with a triple and a single in three at bat.

Summer Hawks

The Bay of Quinte Minor Atom Summer Hawks will be participating in a tournament in Arnprior on June 30, to July 8. On July 1, at 7:50 a.m. the Summer Hawks meet the Ottawa Capitals. At 12:50 p.m. on July 2nd, the Summer Hawks meet Montreal followed by the Western Selects at 11:10 a.m. on July 4th. July 5th, the Summer Hawks meet Ottawa Valley at 7:50 a.m. and they meet Ottawa 67's at 7:50 a.m. on July 6th.

The Summer Hawks must win four of their five games to qualify for the semifinals. Five practices have been scheduled in Ottawa during the week.

On July 14, the Summer Hawks play two games in Amherstview at 9:50 a.m. and at 9:10 p.m.

Good show for fans predicted

Twenty Ontario Sired Two Year Old Trotting Fillies answered the call on Tuesday night for the first OSS event of 1984.

"I'm as nervous as the owners," stated OSS Publicity man, Herman Burghouts, "we want a good show for the fans."

It was a good show for the fans from the unpredictable Juvenile Trotters.

Each division raced for $41,785 and test starters went behind the gate.

The group makes its next start at Kawartha Downs on Saturday, June 23rd. They'll race for an estimated $50,000 that night.

Colgans Kim an Archie filly, won the first division in 2:07.3/5 and Vickis Carolynne (Dream of Glory) was victorious in the second with a brilliant 2:05.4/5 clocking.

The $131,000 yearling purchase, Ambro Dave

Canada's most expensive

yearling purchase on the trotting gait has already banked over $11,000 in just three appearances.

"The Prince knightling his players" Springbrook to host "Clown Prince"

We've all heard of the Crown Prince, but how many of us have heard of the Clown Prince? Well, if you haven't heard of him but you want to see him, be at the Springbrook ball park on Thursday, July 5th. The Prince and his Knights will be taking on the Springbrook Royals at 8 p.m.

Jim Martell makes up one quarter of the four-man touring softball team called The Prince and His Knights. Another special attraction is Golden, and that's no beer.

Nobody seems to know much about the Clown Prince and his Knights, but it's bound to be full of fun and there might even be some good baseball played. Admission is $2.50 for adults in advance or $3 at the gate. $1.50 for students in advance of $2 at the gate and children pay $1.

For further information, contact Ron Andrews at 395-5686, but you're going to have to see it to believe it.

The Beauties travelled to Springbrook on Tuesday and collected a six run inning in sixth to pull out a 13-5 victory. Suzanne had five strike outs and Andrea had seven in the game. Back home on Wednesday the bottom fell out and the girls suffered their first loss of the year by dropping a 9-3 decision to Belleville. Even in defeat our girls still remain ladies.

On the ladies' side the Cougars chalked up their first win of the year by defeating the Bandus on Monday night. However on Wednesday they were out-hit and outscored in a 28-18 decision to the Cheddar-ettes. The Goldgrasses lost a decision to the Whirlwinds.

night and the Raiders came back to defeat the Cooper Connections 8-4 on Thursday.

The Combines dropped both their games on Thursday night to the Flintlin team.

Hannah Electric defeated the Raiders 9-7 on Tuesday

Well that's news from the diamond for this week. See you next week.

Thirsty US States

Water diversions out of Lake Michigan to supply thirsty U.S. states could occur despite the objections of the Great Lakes region, Minnesota Senator Dave Durenberger warned the Ontario government's Futures in Water conference recently.

Mr. Durenberger said the water could be needed by the high plains states to recharge their principal source of water, the massive underground reservoir called the Ogallala Aquifer, which is now being rapidly depleted.

"We've diverted great rivers, created great reservoirs, so I can easily imagine an attempt to replenish great aquifers," said Mr. Durenberger, who is also co-chairman of the National Water Alliance (NWA). The NWA was established in the U.S. "to seek consensus of the American public on fundamental issues of water policy."

Mr. Durenberger pointed to a number of recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions that raise doubts that the laws of any one state or province -- or even the resolve of a group of jurisdictions -- "would be able to prevent a privately-organized diversion of Great Lakes waters to meet the needs of some far-off region."

"The first principle of water policy in my country is that rational thinking doesn't apply," Mr. Durenberger added. "Water is a political, not an economic commodity. Economic rationality is not a consideration."

Mr. Durenberger's comments were in sharp contrast to those of Paul Robinson, the U.S. ambassador to Canada, who spoke at the conference Wednesday night.

"Canada has nothing to fear from the U.S. on this issue of regional water sharing," Mr. Robinson said. "We would never contemplate any action that would jeopardize Canadian interests."

Blair Seaborn, Canadian chairman of the International Joint Commission, told delegates that "under existing and reasonably foreseeable circumstances, I do not regard as a likely possibility a major diversion from the Great Lakes to that part of the continent (the U.S. Southwest)."

Ontario Natural Resources Minister Alan Pope said the wide range of opinions concerning the threat of diversions and consumptive uses of Great Lakes water "clearly indicate a necessity for us to learn more about these vital, emerging issues."

Mr. Pope said a unified approach was needed. "We must work closely with our American neighbors, the federal government and the Province of Quebec to forge a regional consensus with respect to diversions -- and also to develop basin-wide approaches to reduce consumption."

Bill Andrews, president of the Conservation Council of Ontario, was more outspoken on the question of diversions. "I believe large-scale diversions will occur within two decades, unless we start right now to implement conservation measures," he told the meeting.

"A serious deficiency exists in Canadian knowledge about the effects of lower lake levels. Large projects such as trans-basin water transfer systems are irreversible."

Mr. Andrews called for studies "to ascertain the full environmental impact of proposed diversions well before the political and economic interests have put capital into it."

Robert Timbrell, president of the Dominion

Marine Association, said a permanent lowering of levels in the shipping channels of the Great Lakes/St. Lawrence system would have "a major negative impact on both nations. A decrease of one inch will result in the loss of over a million tonnes of cargo capacity per season."

Jerry McIntyre of Ontario Hyaro added that lower lake levels would mean multi-million dollar losses for hydroelectric utilities on both sides of the border. A 10,000-cubic-foot-per-second reduction in flow -- which would cause an approximate 15-centimetre lowering of lake levels -- would cost Ontario an estimated $20-million annually in lost hydraulic power, he said.

The three-day conference, which ended Thursday, was held at the Harbour Castle Hilton Convention Centre in Toronto. Close to 400 people, representing government, consumer and environmental interests, attended.

If the Shoe Fits
by Ralph Meron Manger

Why don't cheap shoes fit like 'good' shoes?

"Good" shoes are made to be fitted from the heel forward, through the arch, to the ball of the foot. A properly fitted "good" shoe does not fit the toes. It must be roomy ahead, on the sides and above the toes. With this roominess up from the arch and heel sections must fit well to keep the foot from sliding forward and popping out at the heel. Such construction requires better, slower, shoemaking and that costs money.

The other concept of a shoe fit regards only the toes. The one criterion is that the toes must be at or very near the front of the shoe. The heel won't slip because a short shoe exerts enough pressure to hold it on. After a brief time, the too-fitted shoes give enough to allow the great toes to hit the ends of the shoes. Then every walking step is crowding those toes forward which exerts pressure that is six to eight times the weight of the child's body. This is a high price to pay for cheap shoes, and the corns and bunions that result.

The famous 16th century astronomer, Tycho Brahe, had a gold nose -- a replacement for his own which he lost in a duel.

Fishing with Frank

"An embarrassing tail"

By PHIL LUNKER

"Let's use minnows tonight," said Frank.

"No," I replied, "this worm harness seems to be working just fine."

"Well then, I'll buy my own minnows," grunted Frank, as he tore off indignantly to the bait shop.

A little while later, we were both at our favorite fishing hole, waiting for the fish to come to us. They were winning for the first hour, until Frank caught and released a small pickerel.

"That fish really hit my minnow hard," he said, "sure you don't want to buy a minnow from me?"

"No," I insisted, "I'm sure these worm harness will work soon."

And they did! I caught two suckers and a big carp. Frank muttered something about big game fishing.

"What was that remark?" I said.

"The price of these minnows has just doubled," he answered, as he reeled in another pickerel.

"I'll wait 'til you catch three fish before I switch," I replied.

I didn't have to wait long. On Frank's next cast, he hooked and landed a good keeper.

"Oh go ahead, use one of my minnows," said Frank. "You can pay me tomorrow."

I hastily knotted a fresh hook, and with a lively minnow on my line, I cast out. Instantaneously, the walleye hit so hard he hooked himself. I reeled in and snapped my first fish onto the stringer. Frank laughed as he reeled one in just after mine. The moment was just right - the perfect time to catch our limit was at hand.

"Go ahead, use another minnow," offered Frank.

I placed my rod on the railing, reaching for the minnow bucket, when the unmentionable happened.

"Your rod!" yelled Frank.

"What about it?" I asked.

"It's gone!" he replied with a somber face. I quickly turned to see my rod slowly sinking into the current to the bottom of a 20 foot hole.

"Give me your rod!" I pleaded.

"I'll try to snag mine on the bottom."

"Not when they're biting like this," said Frank, "maybe later."

Completely frustrated, I rushed to my truck to get my spare rod. I glanced into my rear view mirror to see Frank doubled over with laughter. He was slapping his knee so hard, he could hardly fish. By the time I returned to the water, Frank had reassumed his somber face and was casually fishing.

"Awfully nice of you not to laugh at my misfortune," I said.

"Don't mention it," he replied. "Could happen to anyone."

After 15 minutes of dragging the bottom for my rod, I gave up. Frank was still catching fish right and left, so I decided to join the action. I tied on my trusty worm harness, and on my third cast a small miracle happened. I had hooked onto my sunken rod. I was so happy, I tied my bait onto the waterlogged rig and did a little dance while casting out into the current. I only had to wait a few minutes when a two-pounder grabbed my bait and took a short run.

"Looks like a good one," yelled Frank.

Too busy to answer, I landed the fish. And while busy removing the hooks, the unspeakable happened again. The fish wiggled right out of my hand into the water and after a slight hesitation, swam into the dark depths. Frank heard the splash and turned.

"Did you release that fish?" he inquired.

"Why yes I did," I answered with a grin.

"What the heck for? It was a beauty."

"Oh, I was just so happy to get my rod back, I thought I'd give the fish another chance," I amply answered.

"I've never known you to be such a good sport before," Frank replied with shock in his voice.

"Oh I am a good sport," I said. "Always have been."

Nutrition regulations

To protect the public from the increasing risk of improper nutritional advice and care to ensure the maintenance of high professional standards, the Ontario Dietetic Association (ODA) is seeking authority from the provincial government to regulate the practice of dietetics and nutrition. The ODA proposes that the government bring the profession under Ontario's Health Discipline Act and thus enable the creation of a College of Dietetics and Nutrition whose principal function would be to protect the public interest.

At present the ODA provides voluntary registration for more than 1,100 professionals in government, industry and private practice. It now seeks self-regulation with the force of law through a compulsory licensing system for Registered Dietitian Nutritionists.

There are currently five comparable professional bodies performing self-regulatory functions in the province: College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario. See Public page 11A

Hubbell Reunion plans

Bicentennial plans of the Hubbell clan were made at the home of Beatrice Trel-laven near Madoc on Sunday. Further plans were made for the Hubbell weekend to be held in the Havelock arena on Aug. 18 and 19.

Helen Tucker of Peterborough reported the ordering of plates with the Bewdley (England) Church on it. This was the church that the Hubbells attended before going to the U.S.A. In 1784 Nehemiah Hubbell came as a UEL to Hubbell Hill between Campbellford and Stirling. Plates will be on sale on reunion weekend.

Although Hubbell reunions began in 1950, this is the first one that American Hubbell cousins will attend in a large group. There will be a Saturday evening of euchre and dancing. Myrtle Morgan of Peterborough is in charge of euchre and the Wrightly Band will provide music for dancing.

Bernie Cassidy, 10, joined the Summer Hawks from the Marmora Atoms. He plays right wing for the Summer Hawks.

Grazing management

By JIM REID

Two factors greatly influence our pasture production: pasture condition, and livestock density on pasture. Control of these two factors will determine the use we can make of our grazing land.

Pasture responds to what is done to it. The way we graze our pasture will affect how much it grows and, in the longer term, what species do grow.

Animals left grazing in a field for several weeks, or months, (See Stocking) have a detrimental effect on the pasture condition. Consider the reason why. There are two basic principles to appreciate when understanding how pastures grow.

1) After a cow grazes a plant, it takes about three days to recover from the "shock" of being eaten, and start to regrow. Ideally, the cattle should be off the field within three days to stop them eating the first regrowth.

2) The regrowth needs to be left ungrazed to develop fully. During this time (20 days in spring, longer in the summer) the plant grows and is able to store some energy in its roots, ready for its next period of growth. It is the stored energy that gets the plant growing again right after being grazed. Once it has developed some new leaf it starts to manufacture energy again.

What happens when stock are left on the field for several weeks? The pasture still grows, but not as well. One plant can be eaten several times before it can regrow sufficiently to start storing energy again. Each time it is eaten, it needs to take more energy from its roots to get it growing again. But if it hasn't had a chance to develop fully and replenish the store of energy in its roots, then the plant gets weak, doesn't grow as much, and is more subject to winterkill. Naturally, the plants that get the worst damage are the tenderest and the best tasting. So the legume population is the hardest hit and the coarser plants, thistles, and noxious weeds are left alone to flourish, increase, and spread.

The grazing system that has been developed to overcome these problems is called Rotational Grazing, not because the cattle graze in circles, but because the livestock are confined together on as small an area as possible (high stock density) and moved or rotated from field to field, spending just a few days on each section of pasture. Because of the high stock density, more mouths to eat less pasture, the animals are forced to eat all the available forage. They can no longer pick and choose, eating the tenderest and tastiest plants, and leaving the coarser plants alone. Due to this more even grazing, the legumes are not overgrazed, and so do not lose out in competition with the weeds.

Grazing practices affect the quantity of pasture grown. They also affect the quality. Most energy and protein is in the young leaf. We want to keep the pasture green and leafy, not brown and gone to seed.

Of course, to improve our pasture condition with good grazing management, using a rotational grazing system requires dependable, low cost fencing methods. With Paige wire material costs running around $9.50 per rod and rail fence construction and maintenance needing most of the season to keep up, economic reasons dictate that low-cost, multi-wire "New Zealand type" electric fencing is the only affordable way to go. Permanent 2-wire fencing costs can be as little as $2.80 per rod, and two men can erect a mile or more in a day or two. High power electric fence controllers can power many miles of fence, enclosing and subdividing up to 500 acres controlled from the Hydro powered fence.

Ideally a large number of permanently fenced pastures are available to rotate livestock throughout the grazing season. But a common and economical method of increasing pasture area is to subdivide hayfields with temporary electric fencing for controlled grazing of aftermath. Temporary electric fences either taking power from the permanent fences surrounding the field, or powered by a portable, high powered, battery operated fence controller can help with the job of controlling livestock on more, smaller areas of pasture, to make better use of available forage. With costs around $1.25 per rod, the outlay is small compared to the value of extra useable pasture.

Even if ideals cannot be reached, it is an established fact that subdividing our pastures into smaller units will increase the amount of useable forage to our animals. Simply by cutting our pastures into halves, and grazing them as two separate areas we can reduce the wastage of feed, and grow more feed by keeping the pasture in better growing condition.

With better grazing management we can improve our pastures and make more of what forage we have. Using our livestock to do the job for us, controlling their grazing, we can get better yields from pasture than we've ever seen before.

Small business

The fees of management consultants are often prohibitive. The Small Business Consulting Service at Queen's University is designed specifically with these enterprises in mind. The service is particularly attractive to small business owners/managers because it combines high quality work and low rates, subsidized by the Ontario Ministry of Industry and Trade.

The consultants are graduate business students and final year commerce students enrolled in the School of Business at Queen's University. They draw information from their studies, their own widely varied work experiences, the faculty of the school and the local business community.

The SBSC has serviced more than 500 clients over the last twelve years. These have ranged from larger firms to one person cottage-type industries.

The staff have consulted in all the functional areas of business including: finance, marketing, accounting, production, personnel, operations and computer applications.

How does the service work? After a client makes the initial contact, he or she is interviewed by a team of two consultants to determine what type of work is required. There is no charge for this initial interview. The consultants then prepare a proposal letter outlining the work they will do, the time it will take to complete the project and an estimate of their fee. Work will commence once the terms of the proposal have been accepted.

"We know that the small businessman is an expert when it comes to running his own business. However, even the most capable manager can benefit from the objective advice of an outside consultant," says Mr. Stan Simpson, the new manager of the Small Business Consulting Service.

"The student consultants have consistently maintained a reputation for thorough and sound analysis and have a good relationship with the local business community," explains Simpson.

Any company located within a 150 kilometre radius of Kingston is eligible for the service which can be contacted by phoning (613) 547-8475.

Farmers lobby for 4 point program

More than 150 farmers visited Queen's Park recently, and lobbied provincial members of parliament for a four-point program designed by the Ontario Federation of Agriculture (OFA) to solve some of the problems in the agriculture sector.

"The lobbying campaign was an unqualified success," OFA president, Harry Pelissiero said. "We made contact with all the MPPs or their staff, and both the farmers and their suggestions were well received. The members said this personal approach is an excellent way to keep them informed about the concerns of the OFA's members."

At its monthly meeting on June 15, the OFA's board of directors decided that the farm delegation should visit all the MPPs. "We want the MPPs and the public to think more about agriculture," Pelissiero said. "We want them to realize that when agriculture suffers, the entire economy suffers," Pelissiero said.

In this day of high-tech, primary industries often get ignored, he said. He cautioned that "we should keep in touch with these sectors because they still employ the majority of residents in the province and still produce many of the goods and services...in Ontario."

"In other words," Pelissiero said, "when you think of an apple, think of a fruit, not a computer."

Besides stressing the importance of agriculture to the economy, this lobbying campaign also emphasized the special requirements of the farm sector. "The major problem today with the agricultural economy is that it continues to stagnate, while the rest of the economy shows signs of strengthening recovery," Pelissiero said.

The program proposed by the OFA was designed to deal with what Pelissiero calls the "new specific issues of the sector."

The program includes an emergency assistance plan for red meat producers, changes to the Ontario Farm Adjustment Assistance Program (OFAAP), an interest rate cap on operating loans, and a capital loans program.

Red Meat Assistance

In the last three years, there has been a substantial deterioration in the financial position of many Ontario red meat producers. Unless there is a dramatic and quick response to their problems, in the form of a cash infusion, hundreds of beef, pork and sheep producers could soon be out of business.

The OFA recommends an emergency payout of an estimated $70 million for red meat producers, based on 1985 production levels. This payout would help Ontario red meat producers stay in business until the stabilization plan and the red meat initiatives take effect.

Extend OFAAP

The provincial assistance program was introduced to help food producers with low equity deal with high interest rates. Since high loan costs have persisted longer than expected, the federation recommends that the OFAAP be continued after 1984 and be renewable for a three-year period. The eligibility criteria for the program should also be expanded to include farmers with 70 percent and less equity in their farms. The current cut-off point is 60 percent equity. The OFA also recommends that the interest subsidy be lowered to 10 percent from the present 12 and be extended to cover mortgages.

Interest Cap on Loans

Changes in short-term interest rates affect all farmers who have operating loans with a floating rate. To protect food producers from the rise and fall of interest rates, the OFA recommends that the provincial government guarantee that farmers will not pay more than the negotiated rate plus half a percent. Any cost above this level would be paid by the province, up to a maximum loan of $250,000.

Capital Loans

Investments in capital items, both buildings and machinery, have lagged or fallen in recent years. These investments are needed to improve productivity and to help Ontario's farmers maintain their competitive edge. The OFA recommends that a capital loans program be established, making eight-percent loans of up to $50,000 available for 10 years. These loans would only be for changes that would significantly improve the environmental standard of the operation or its efficiency.

Public interest in nutrition

Ontario, Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario, Ontario College of Pharmacists, College of Nurses of Ontario and College of Optometrists of Ontario.

The province is now conducting a broad review of legislation governing the health professions and the ODA put forward its case in the form of a brief to the Minister of Health, the Hon. Keith Morton.

Coordinator of the review team is lawyer Alan M. Schwartz. "There has been a welcome surge of public interest in nutrition, but this has been accompanied by a rapid increase in the circulation of potentially hazardous information by unqualified people," says ODA President Barbara Tucker, R.P.Dt. She adds that the risk factor is being escalated by the growing number of so-called "nutritional" products coming on the market.

The ODA believes that ways must be found to protect the public from misinformation and misuses of food products, supplements and advice. "The failure to assure that all those providing nutritional assessment and counselling are competent and responsible professionals is having damaging effects on the general public," contends Mrs. Tucker.

MEMORIALS

RADFORD - In loving memory of a dear husband Clayton, who passed away
June 30, 1981.
So many things have happened.
Since you were called away.
So many things to share with you.

Had you been left to stay.
No one knows the grief I bear.

When families meet & you're not there.
The tears I shed can be wiped away.

But the ache in my heart will always stay.
Lovingly remembered & sadly missed by wife Mary.

LEWIS - In loving memory of my husband, Keith, who passed away 4 years ago
June 27, 1980.

Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger everyday.

Remembrance keeps him near.
Always remembered, wife Madalene.

MCMULLEN - In memory of Malcolm A. McMullen, who passed away July 4, 1982.

They say time heals all sorrows & helps us to forget.
But "Dad" & "Daddy" 2 years have only proven to us how much we miss you yet.

There's a special corner in our hearts, we keep it just for you.
As long as life & memories last, we will always think of you.

Loved & deeply missed by Muriel, Gerald & Lisa Morgan & Shirley, Ralph, Colleen & Colin Carlisle.

Crops Tour

The Ottawa Valley will be the focus of a two day Crop Tour planned by the County Soil and Crop Improvement Association, July 10th and 11th. Pick up will be at approximately 8 a.m. on the morning of the 10th with the first stop at the Frontenac Institute for a tour of the farming operation at 9:30 a.m. From here the group will proceed to the Cardinal Starch Company for a tour of the processing operation.

Two stops are planned for the afternoon at the farm of Bill Hardy at Inkerman, a well known crop producer and seed grower in the area.

The second stop will be a visit of the crop trials and plots at the Kempsville College Crops Research Farm.

Overnight will be in the Holiday Inn, downtown Ottawa, with some free time for taking in the sites or visiting the Arts Centre.

The second day of the tour will get underway with a bus tour of the Central Experimental Farm in Ottawa. This will be followed by a stop at the Bill Burden and family operated dairy farm, specializing in forages and cereals. The second stop in the morning will be to the farm of Jack McClure and family, also a dairy operation with emphasis on direct seeded alfalfa and the feeding of raw soybeans.

Three stops are planned for the afternoon. One to Gillan Brothers, a large mixed farming operation involving beef, hogs, dairy and cash crop corn. The second stop will be to the farm of Jack McGill and family, a mixed farm operation and pedigreed seed grower with a particular interest in minimum tillage. The final stop will be at the farm of Graham Hudson and family, another family farm operation involved in the production of beef, hogs and cash crops.

Nutrition Tip

Does olive oil conjure up visions of evil purganas, stuffed peppers, eggplant rollatini luscious pastas? It's indispensable for all those Italian favorites, of course, but did you know that it also adds that special something to all-African broiled fish, sauteed chicken, herb-based sauces, vegetable dishes and salads galore?

In other words this unique ingredient, prized for centuries and surrounded by colorful legend and lore, also qualifies as a health food. Containing the popular myth, it contains absolutely no cholesterol. And clear, golden Bertoli, world's best-loved olive oil, lends its distinctively light, delicate flavor, its smooth, blendable consistency to a wide variety of tasty recipes that are "legal"
even if you're dieting.
